STEAM TO ENGLAND.

QUEENSLAND ROYAL MAIL STEAMERS.

The British-India Company, being under postal contract with the Queensland Government for the Conveyance of Mails monthly between Queensland and England, the following magnificent steamships will be despatched from Brisbane for London, via North Queensland ports, Batavia, Aden, and the Suez Canal:—

QUETTA, 3302 tons, Captain J. E. Withers, TUESDAY, 14th July.

DORUNDA, 2977 tons, Captain N. R. Sayers, TUESDAY, 11th August.

Passengers by this route have the advantage of visiting the Queensland ports, and can leave Sydney by any of the steamers of the Queensland Steam Shipping Company, embarking on board the British-India steamer at Brisbane, Townsville, Cooktown, or Thursday Island.

The magnificent scenery, smooth-water passage, and the frequent opportunities afforded to travellers to break the monotony of a long sea voyage by visiting Batavia and other interesting ports of call, offer great inducements to passengers.

The steamers are fitted with all the latest improvements, and the accommodation and table attendance is unrivalled.

The agents now issue passenger tickets on the following moderate scale:—
Saloon, Sydney to London ... £55 0 0
* Second Class ... 36 10 0
* Third Class ... 20 0 0
Saloon, return (available for 12 months) ... 85 0 0

Through passages issued to Padang, Samarang, Sourabaya, Macassar, Singapore, and other ports in the Eastern Archipelago, exchanging at Batavia to the fine steamers of the Netherlands-India S. N. Company.

* Should sufficient inducement offer.

For full particulars apply to BURNS, PHILP, and CO., Limited, Agents, Bridge-street.

QUEENSLAND STEAM SHIPPING COMPANY, Limited.

DRESSMAKING DEPARTMENT.
The immense business done in this department speaks for itself. We have retained the highest talent, and its efficiency warrants our belief that this season will be marked by increased success. To produce with ease and exactness the costumes of the present day, and in the arrangement of the colourings without in the least bordering on the vulgar, is a positive artistic study, and one which commands talent of no mean order. Our models bespeak all this, and we can confidently assert that no lady need fear that expense will deprive her of what is really seasonable and beautiful. The first selections from the Parisian and other Continental markets can be faithfully copied to meet the requirements and wishes of our patrons; and an economy can be exercised without detracting to any marked extent from the prevailing fashion of the season. Our spacious fitting rooms are remarkably light, and every expedition is used in completing any orders entrusted to us. NOVELTIES NOW BEING OPENED.
FARMER and COMPANY.

VELVETS.
OUR WINTER NOVELTIES afford unparalleled scope for taste and beauty, and exceptional inducements for purchases. Our goods—direct from the manufacturer—are not burdened with intermediate profits, and, consequently, are submitted to our patrons at but a small advance on first cost of production.
THE BEST GOODS AT LOWEST PRICES can be inspected in this particular department, and a range for colourings and design unsurpassed in any house in the world.

VELVETS.—A further shipment of our celebrated velvets at 4s 6d yard, in Bronze, Moss, Olive, Sultan, Ruby, Grenat, Cardinal, Claret, Myrtle, Rembrandt, Cinnamon, Seal, Nut Brown, Prune, Navy, Sapphire, Drab, 19in. wide. The above colourings, in qualities, at 7s 6d and 10s 6d. Splendid value.
COSTUME VELVETS.—Rich Lyons Velvets, specially produced for costumes, in Bronze, Ruby, Sultan, Myrtle, Rembrandt, Sapphire, Prune, Light Brown, Seal Brown, 15s 6d yard. Pure silk.
FANCY BROCADED VELVETS.—Our stock is unlimited in these goods. The highest novelties are to hand. We note Moss, Olive, Rembrandt, Myrtle, Seal Brown, Nut Brown, Prune, Marine, Sultan, Grenat, Burgundy, in various and curious designs, 10s 6d, 12s 6d, 15s 6d yard.
HANDSOME BROCADED TERRY VELVETS, in the above colours, 15s 6d yard.
FARMER and COMPANY.

EVENING, DINNER, and WEDDING SILKS.—A consignment of magnificent goods to hand for this counter. Our home buyers have secured for us the choicest goods we have ever yet offered, and such as may fairly claim to occupy the first place in the field of fashion in Australia. For evening, dinner, or wedding wear, silks will undoubtedly take for ever a leading place, and the novelties in colours, apart from make or design, only lead to anticipations of further successes. The following we note as being of exceptional value, being rich in colours, sound in texture, and wonderfully cheap:—
COLOURED DUCHESSE SATINS, in pink, salmon, coral, primrose, cream, French grey, amber, cardinal, odenil, sky, royal, China, splendid value, specially for evening wear, 2s 9d yard

Public Companies.

PROSPECTUS
FEDERAL HOTEL COMPANY, LIMITED.

To be Incorporated under the Companies' Act.

CAPITAL: £100,000, IN 20,000 SHARES OF £5 EACH.

Of the above, 19,000 Shares are being offered to the Public on the terms specified hereunder, 1000 shares, paid up to £2 10s cash, being retained by the Proprietors as part payment.

30s per share to accompany application, 20s per share to be paid on allotment, 5s per share in 3 (three) months, and 5s per share in 6 (six) months after allotment, it being anticipated that further calls will not be required. [See financial suggestions appended below.]

If deemed advisable to make further calls, such calls not to exceed 2s per share per month.

As soon as 10,000 shares shall have been subscribed for, it shall be at the option of the Provisional Directors to close the list and register the Company, retaining the balance of the Shares for future issue, the original Shareholders to have a prior claim in the allotment of such shares, the exceptionally strong financial position of the Company being a sufficient ground for such a step.

Provisional Directors:

Secretary pro tem.:
W. CURPHY CORLETTE, 12, Bridge-street, Sydney.

This Company is being formed for the purpose of erecting a high-class Hotel in immediate connection with the great shipping interests concentrated at the Circular Quay, to be presently further enhanced by the establishment there of the new railway terminus and tram station.

A magnificent corner block of FREEHOLD land, with frontages of 108 feet 4 inches to Albert-street, 90 feet to Macquarie-street, and 46 feet 8 inches to the Circular Quay, has been secured, and on this site it is proposed to erect a really first-class Hotel, containing about 160 rooms, to be replete with every modern comfort and convenience.

This site, from its splendid position and grand outlook, cannot be surpassed in the city.

The services of a competent Manager and Chef de Cuisine are now being arranged for, and no pains are being spared in order to ensure success.

In addition to the ordinary accommodation of a house of this class, Grill Rooms, &c., can be established on the English system—and owing to the especially favourable position of the Hotel, in relation to the Government, Lands, and Public Works Offices, the Treasury, the principal Woolbrokers and Shipping Establishments, and the Passenger Railway Station, it must inevitably command an enormous trade.

Communication by Telegraph and Telephone will be established with the General Post Office, Exchange, &c.

The exceptionally favourable site of this block of land, close to the points of arrival and departure of the P. and O., Orient, Messageries, A. S. N., Aberdeen, and other lines of steamships, as well as to the public buildings before referred to, ensures it a continuous increase in value.

As an investment, therefore, it is uplifted far above the common run of bank or other shares, or even ordinarily first-class city property.

Private capital has been already proffered in abundance sufficient to have carried out this scheme to a successful issue; but it has been thought better to enlarge its sphere by throwing it open to the public.

The Building is estimated to cost £40,000, and the Furniture £8000.

In addition to these outlays there will of course be the usual charges, viz., brokerage, legal expenses, stamp duty, interim interest (at bank rates) on the purchase money, advertising, &c.

Owing to the valuable position of the land, large advances for a fixed period, and at a low rate of interest, can be obtained, if needed, as the building progresses.

Under such circumstances it will probably be more to the advantage of the shareholders to borrow on such terms than to call up the remainder of their capital.—Vide preamble.

The following approximate financial statement, and the annexed plan of the site, will give a general idea of the Company's position and the very great present and prospective value of the site obtained.

Sketch plan of the building herewith.

EUROPEAN NEWS.

The English mail per Orient Company's steamer Cuzco was delivered in Sydney yesterday morning. We have received our usual English and foreign correspondence for the week ending May 8, and files of London papers to the same date.

OUR LONDON LETTER.

LONDON, MAY 8.

The now almost assured prospect of a settlement by the arbitration of the King of Denmark of our difficulties with Russia, though it has much to be said in its favour from a humanitarian point of view (and if moderately satisfactory, will give an impetus to the cause of international arbitration), yet is not very agreeable to the feelings of Englishmen at large. It is true, as Lord Salisbury pointed out in the course of his speech at Hackney this week, that it would have been impossible to have gone to war with Russia without an effective casus belli, which, at present, we do not possess. The Komaroff incident is too trivial to be the cause of war between two great nations, and although there exists a deeply grounded belief that, sooner or later, perhaps sooner, we shall by "manifest destiny" be compelled to draw the sword against Russia, yet there is a reasonable disinclination to make the independent integrity of the Afghan empire a casus belli. The Ameer has declared his indifference to Penjdeh, and it is clear that the Afghans do not want British troops either at Herat or anywhere else in their country. But yet a feeling of quiet dissatisfaction undoubtedly exists at the pacific turn affairs have taken, though it would at first sight appear to be unjustifiable. But inquiry and conversation reveal the fact that it is not so much the prospects of peace which are regarded with an unfavourable eye as the way in which those prospects have been brought about. A pure and simple arbitration upon the covenant of March 17th and upon the Penjdeh incident would have been absolutely unexceptionable, and would have afforded no handle to carping criticism. But the arbitration does not stand alone. It is accompanied by several distinct concessions to Russia, the most important of which are the recall of our Commissioner, Sir Peter Lumsden, and the transfer of the labours of the Afghan frontier delimitation commission to London. Mr. Gladstone has by no means made apparent the necessity for yielding these two points, and hence the public generally are disposed to regard them in the light of a needless wound inflicted upon our amour propre.

An animated debate took place upon the report stage of the 11 millions vote of credit on Monday, and next Monday, when the subject again comes up in the form of a Consolidated Bill, the Government have promised the night for an exhaustive discussion. Lord Randolph Churchill has declared his intention of doing all in his power to throw out the bill, and thus stop the Government supplies at the last moment.

There have been some rumours of the St. Petersburg Government being willing to pledge themselves never to take Herat. Of course a Russian pledge is not of greater value than the paper it is written upon, or the breath with which it is made; but, at the same time, it would very much improve the position of the English Government if, before the debate comes off on Monday, they could announce that they had obtained this pledge from the Muscovite Power.

The Redistribution Bill continues to drag itself slowly along. A hope has been expressed that it may finish its Commons stages this week, but the expectation is a very sanguine one. On Tuesday night the Conservatives brought forward a motion to pay the expenses of registration out of Imperial instead of local taxes, and upon this subject the Government only escaped defeat by a majority of two. In spite of the Arlington-street compact, the fight over the bill is very stubborn, and Sir Charles Dilke, who has now nearly sole charge of the measure, has at times a hard battle. [We learn by telegram that the bill has passed both Houses, and now only awaits the royal assent.—ED.]

The first report of the Royal Commission on the housing of the poor was published yesterday, and to-day it has been very eagerly read, but there has not been time for an opinion to be formed upon it. The main features about the report are the admission that the dwellings of the poor have immensely improved within the past 30 years; secondly, the absence of any demand for special legislation, and the expression and belief that existing laws, if put into operation, would be sufficient to effect the required remedial ends; and, thirdly, a suggestion that the metropolitan prisons, which take up 45 acres of space, should be removed elsewhere, and the land now occupied by them should be utilised for the erection of labourers' dwellings.

The labours of the Suez Canal Commission seem likely to come to a near and satisfactory termination. The sub-commission has agreed upon a very favourable and workable scheme, which is practically a merging into one of the best points of the two schemes presented by the English and French delegates, while, at the same time, the limits of Lord Granville's circular of 1883 have not been overstepped. The Paris correspondent of the Times says: "This scheme has, in a word, given all the Powers without exception every guarantee and every security, and made the Suez Canal the great maritime highway of the world, without restriction and without exclusion." During the week there has been signs of an inclination on the part of France to try to get in the thin end of the wedge which shall lead to the internationalisation of Egypt, but they have not developed into anything serious.

The unpleasantness connected with the Bosphore Egyptien incident has not yet passed away. At the time I last wrote it was understood that Nubar Pasha would express to the French representative the regret of the Egyptian Government at the legal informalities which had attended the suppression of the paper; and it was also reported that, though the Bosphore Egyptien would be allowed to reappear, a reasonable time would elapse before it came out again, and, when it did, that its form would be somewhat altered. On Monday night, however, we learnt that the English Government "were ready to associate themselves with the regret which they had advised the Government of the Khedive to express as to the incidents which had attended the suppression." The proprietor of the paper has expressed his intention of publishing it again in its original form next Monday, and the French Government have declined to use any influence they may possess to dissuade him from doing so.

Mr. Childers' budget proposals are exciting, as is only natural, a good deal of criticism, and we hear some extraordinary stories of merchants dealing in commodities affected by them endeavouring to anticipate their operation. More than £100,000 duty was paid on wines and spirits in two days after the Budget proposals were made known, and the various co-operative stores are busier now with wine and spirit orders than at Christmas.

The Home Secretary has taken the very proper step of ordering that the Public Prosecutor shall inquire into the circumstances attending the death of the little boy at King's College School. Your readers are aware that the Metropolitan of Australia, Dr. Barry, was formerly principal of King's College, though he had no control over the school. Had anyone like him been at the head of affairs there the lamentable occurrence could not have happened, for Dr. Barry was gifted with rare disciplinary powers.

The renewal of the Crimes Act is occasioning almost as much anxiety as the Russian difficulty. A party in the Cabinet is opposed to a renewal of the stringent provisions contained therein, while Lord Spencer is said to have declined to carry on the work of the Government unless he has his hands strengthened by a renewal of the measure. There have been rumours of a compromise on the basis of re-enacting the Arms Act of 1880, and making some of the provisions of the Crimes Act part and parcel of the criminal law of the entire kingdom. But an invidious compromise of this kind will obviously not be assented to without a struggle.

The Gladstone Government has suffered another severe (sic) blow by the secession of Lord Brabourne, better known as Mr. Knatchbull Hugesson. Ever since his elevation to the House of Lords the noble peer has done nothing but oppose the Government to whom he owes his coronet, so that his absence from the Ministerial ranks will not be greatly felt.

The London season is considered to be formally opened by the banquet at the Royal Academy, and this took place last Saturday. The private view the day before was very largely attended. Amongst the politicians were Mr. Gladstone, Mr. Childers, Mr. Peel, the present, and Lord Hampden, the late, Speaker of the House of Commons, both of whom were observed to be diligently examining a portrait of the latter. Amongst the ladies were Gladys, Countess of Lonsdale, now Countess de Grey, Mrs. Langtry, Miss Mary Anderson, and Mrs. Bram Stoker, wife of the indefatigable secretary of Mr. Henry Irving. Whenever Miss Anderson appears in public she generally makes a point of presenting in her attire a great contrast to the elaborate toilette of the Jersey Lily. On this occasion she wore a light-fitting coarse homespun undress.

The banquet on the following day was remarkable from the fact that the Prince of Wales and his eldest son were both present, this being the young Prince's first appearance at a public dinner. None of the speeches were of a nature to call for special comment save that of Earl Granville, who departed from the usual custom of avoiding political topics and threw out some significant hints as to the prospects of peace with Russia. The dinner began at 6 o'clock, but the galleries were thrown open to the view of the guests at 2, and many of the latter availed themselves of the opportunity of having a quieter look round than they could obtain at the more crowded private view the day before. It is noted that the name of the young Prince was placed upon the printed list of guests as that of Prince Albert Victor. Sir Frederick Leighton, however, referred to him in one of his speeches as Prince Edward, and so he was reported in Sunday's Observer. But in Monday's papers Edward was altered to Albert Victor. It is now understood that Prince Albert Victor is to be the "society" name of the young Prince, while he will continue to be called Edward or Eddie in private life. The pictures at the Academy this year are fairly good, and already nearly 300 of them have been sold. The picture of the year, Mr. Orchardson's "Salon of Mme. Recamier," is said to have been purchased by Mr. Aird, of the firm of Lucas and Aird, for the sum of £10,000. The other picture galleries are also fairly up to, if not above, the average of former years, though there are no works of eminently superior merit.

Mr. Irving had an enthusiastic reception at the Lyceum on Saturday, though it was clear that the audience did not care very much for Hamlet. When, at the close of the play, Mr. Irving came forward to say a few words to the audience there was a demonstration and a counter demonstration on the part of the old and new pittites which, at one point, threatened to become rather serious. There were shouts of "Old Pit," "Thanks for the numbered seats," and the rival factions became very excited. Mr. Irving said it was impossible for him to accept these manifestations of opinion as conclusive either one way or the other. But he had no other desire save that of consulting the convenience of his audience. It seems, however, probable that, in time, the numbered seats will be generally appreciated.

Mr. Edmund Yates will return from the Continent at the end of the present month, and his numerous friends and admirers intend to give him a public dinner at which a large attendance is anticipated. Sir Algernon Borthwick, proprietor of the Morning Post, is to preside. Mr. Sydney Waterlow is the honorary secretary of the committee which is getting the affair up.

Gladys, Countess of Lonsdale, and Earl de Grey, eldest son of the Marquis of Ripon, were very quietly married yesterday, at St. Martin's Church, in Charing Cross. None but relatives of the bride and bridegroom were present.

The May meetings are now in full force, and the aged Earl of Shaftesbury is still taking an active part in them. During the week he presided at the annual meeting of the British and Foreign Bible Society. The report of this body stated that during the year there had been a circulation the world over of four million copies of the Bible, which was a quarter of a million beyond the highest figure ever reached before.

The Inventions Exhibition was opened on Monday by the Prince of Wales. There was nothing in the ceremony to call for special notice. The Exhibition is still in a very incomplete state, but the bands and the gardens are there, and that is practically all that the majority of the public require. Consequently the attendance, even during the first week, has been good.

A protest has been lodged by the colonies of Victoria, Tasmania, and Queensland, against the retention of the 31st clause of the Enabling Act. South Australia objects only to the abrogating proviso at the end of that clause. Negotiations have been opened, I believe, with Mr. Goschen in order to induce him to support the view of the objecting colonies.

A paper has been published in the Pall Mall Gazette, from the pen of Lord Augustus Loftus. This was evidently written in some haste, and is doubtless the result of an invitation from the editor of the paper, who is anxious to publish the opinions of Colonial Governors on the suggestion of Lord Grey for a revival of the Committee of the Privy Council on Trade and Plantations, the same to be attached as a council of advice to the Colonial Office. Lord Loftus does not approve of Lord Grey's scheme. He considers that the democratic colonies of Australia would not agree to any council exercising important duties such as these unless it was an elective body. He appears to think that some such organisation as the German Reichsrath might be acceptable, and he throws out that suggestion.

At the annual convocation of the Supreme Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of England, held this week, charters were granted for new Royal Arch Chapters for Sydney, New South Wales.

OUR PARIS LETTER.

PARIS, MAY 8.

About a week ago, when war between England and Russia seemed imminent, a politician of long experience said to me, "I believe England and Russia to be on the brink of war, but black as everything looks, if I were a speculator, I would speculate on peace. There is only one road that leads to war, but there are many roads that lead to peace." Subsequent events have shown the force of this observation. When two persons hate one another and both want to fight, a battle may be considered inevitable; but when, notwithstanding that they hate one another, they do not want to fight, whatever cause of offence each may have given the other, and however the code of honour may have been set at defiance, we may be pretty sure that no fight will take place. Does the case of England and Russia correspond with the second of these illustrations? If so, peace is assured, and has been assured from the beginning of this crisis. Nations do not fight against their inclinations any more than individuals, although it must be admitted that it is much easier to arrange a quarrel between two individuals, who have fallen out over some matter of a temporary nature, than one between two rival races, whose rivalry is caused in a great measure by forces which develop slowly, and over which they have little control. Is the sudden break in the war cloud which a week ago stretched over Europe and Asia, to be explained by the disinclination of England and Russia to encounter the tremendous difficulties and risks of a war for supremacy in Asia? Or is this disinclination only genuine on one side, while on the other it is assumed in order to gain time, to be better prepared for the storm when it breaks? If there were an oracle at Delphos or elsewhere that could be consulted on these questions, and if implicit faith could be placed in the answers, Europe would be able to breathe much more freely, for it would know exactly what to expect, and could take its measures accordingly. But the only oracle who is supposed to have entered upon the succession of the Delphic one is Prince Bismarck, and he is as silent as the Sphinx. Now, it is just this Sphinx-like attitude of Prince Bismarck, who has come to be regarded as the man who knows everything that is going to happen in the world, which is the chief element of disquietude at the present moment. There is a general impression all over Europe that if his opinion of the Anglo-Russian difficulty could be obtained, the situation would be greatly simplified, for better or for worse. The journals which he is said to inspire, and which he, no doubt, does frequently inspire for political reasons, with opinions quite contrary to those which he holds, are consequently being scanned with much curiosity and some anxiety. Assuming that they do reflect at this moment the Chancellor's views, the opinions which find expression in them are not at all calculated to clear the atmosphere. The tone of all the German official or semi-official journals is pessimist, much more so, indeed, than when war appeared inevitable. This circumstance, taken with others—such as the certainty that Germany did not move a step to pour oil on the troubled waters when the tempest was blowing up between London and St. Petersburg, and the resolve of the Emperor William not to play the role of arbiter—is causing much uneasiness, not only in England, but in France. The following extract from an article published to-day in the Soleil explains with sufficient clearness why this attitude of the German Government and the German press is making Frenchmen uncomfortable:—

"If the advice of the Berlin Post was followed at London and St. Petersburg, no concession would be made on either side with regard to the delimitation of the frontier. Russia, in order not to expose herself to the charge of having acted frivolously, would exact of England that she should submit to the possession by Russia of all points lately occupied by her troops; and, on the other side, England, in order not to sacrifice the military security of Afghanistan, would exact of Russia that all points occupied by her troops should be ceded to the Ameer. On these conditions there would be no chance of agreement. After having avoided a war over the Penjdeh incident, war would become inevitable over the frontier question, according to a well-known proverb, on n'aurait reculé que pour mieux sauter. We have always stated that in our opinion a war between England and Russia would be a great misfortune, and that France, especially in the present state of Europe, would have nothing to gain, and might have much to lose from it. The articles which the German papers are now publishing only tend to confirm these ideas. If the Post and other German sheets, which, judging from appearances, wish to excite England and Russia against each other, are, in however small a measure, the interpreters of Prince Bismarck's thoughts we are justified in believing that the Chancellor desires nothing better than to see the two great Powers—which he has termed 'the whale and the elephant'—engage in a duel which, however it might terminate, would certainly enfeeble both. What is Prince Bismarck's motive in wishing to see the power of England and Russia weakened? He can only desire the enfeeblement of England in order to strengthen the position of Germany from a maritime and colonial point of view; and the enfeeblement of Russia in order to have his hands freer in Europe. The interests of France will certainly not be advanced by the consolidation upon the Continent of that preponderating influence which Germany acquired in consequence of the war of 1870-71. Nor has she anything to gain by Germany, whose trade is already in formidable competition with that of France, becoming a great maritime and colonial Power. In any case a war between England and Russia, under existing circumstances, would leave France en tête à tête with Germany. This tête à tête might be agreeable to Germany. It would be a cause of anxiety to France."

The discussion of the Recidivistes Bill in the form in which it left the Senate a few months since will be commenced and perhaps finished to-morrow by the Chamber of Deputies. Meanwhile, the Recidiviste question is once more occupying the attention of publicists. The opponents of the measure are putting forth all their strength to influence the action of the Chamber, but it is a significant fact that these writers express no hope whatever that the principle of the bill will fail to become law. M. Jules Levelle, who has returned from his mission in Guiana, addresses in the Temps a final protest against a measure which he says has been "badly conceived and badly constructed." He admits that the Senate has mitigated to some extent its pernicious tendencies, but he still sees a great deal that is objectionable in it. He says:—

"The Senate, after long and conscientious study, has, without doubt, upheld the obligatory character of relegation; but it has modified on two important points the project as it left the Chamber. It has somewhat reduced the number of subjects for relegation, because it has struck beggars out of the proscriptive list drawn up at the Palais Bourbon, and it has curtailed that absolute liberty which M. Gerville-Réache had too lightly promised to recidivistes, who are now to be subjected to confinement within a prescribed area. Labour is also to be made compulsory—if they have no other duly certified means of existence. But are the changes which the Senate has introduced sufficient? Is relegation, such as the Senate has at length defined it, worthy to take a place in our penal legislation? It has voted the principle of compulsory labour, but it has made it subordinate to a singular condition. According to the Senate the Administration ought to show a distinction in the treatment of recidivistes who have resources and those who have none. Our ancestors of 1789 decreed that no privileges should exist in the penal system, and the Senate establishes by its innovation a veritable privilege in favour of rich recidivistes over poor recidivistes. I condemn this distinction without hesitation. I may be told that I have not sufficiently read the text adopted by the Senate, that the poor rélégué may also escape from compulsory labour by obtaining a situation with some colonist. This is all very well; but the employer has to be found. Has anyone taken the trouble to inquire if in our penal colonies there are many men capable of giving employment to a considerable number of workmen? The distinction set up by the Senate amounts to this: the recidiviste, in easy circumstances, will have the right to walk about and do nothing, while the needy recidiviste is mercilessly condemned to hard labour."

M. Jules Dietz, in a keenly logical article in the Journal des Debats, observes:—

"Everybody describes the Recidivistes Bill as bad and inapplicable, and yet everybody adds that it must nevertheless be voted just as it is. From this point of view nothing could be more curious than the statements just made by the Minister of the Interior before the Commission of the Chamber. They may be summed up in these words: 'The law is worthless—but adopt it.'"

The salon which opened on May 1st, at the Palais de l'Industrie, presents the usual contrasts of good and bad work to which we have grown accustomed at these exhibitions. The immense number of pictures annually admitted renders such contrasts inevitable. The visitor stands delighted before a grand historical composition, or some beautiful and simple reflection of rustic life, and a few minutes afterwards his eyes rest upon a picture not only badly painted, but grossly suggestive. Extremes meet in the salon both socially and pictorially. Consequently, all tastes are satisfied. I will mention a few of the paintings which the artistic year has produced. We have here what will probably be reckoned the finest work yet painted by M. Benjamin Constant. It is called "La Justice du Cherif," and illustrates a tragic incident of Moorish life in Spain in the fifteenth century. By the Sheriff's orders, all the women of his harem have been murdered. They are lying in various postures in the dimly lighted harem, their blood forming little crimson pools on the marble floor, or trickling towards the fountain in the centre. Two Nubians, as black as coal, and whose knives show traces of their bloody work, are seated as immobile as statues keeping watch over their victims. The painting is a marvel of luxurious colour. It is difficult to imagine how the art of the colourist could be carried to a higher excellence than it is here. M. Clairin has also painted a very large historical work, illustrating Moorish Spain. It depicts a scene outside the Alhambra after a victory by the Moors over the Christians. It is strong in composition and colour. M. William Bouguereau takes a very conspicuous place among living painters of religious subjects in France. Beautiful as his pictures are in the harmony of their outlines and the delicacy of their colour, they are marked by a certain insipidity which is very characteristic. This defect is strongly pronounced in the diptych which M. Bouguereau sends to the salon this year, representing the "Adoration of the Magi" in one panel and the "Adoration of the Shepherds" in the other. M. Bonnat has a remarkably fine portrait of a lady, and a very poor decorative picture of "St. Denis taking up his head after his martyrdom." It is simply grotesque, but it is intended for the Pantheon. M. Jules Breton has two delightful landscapes, with figures, "Le Dernier Rayon" and "Le Chant de L'Alouette." M. Carolus Duran is disappointing. He has painted a very showy and ostentatious portrait in the worst taste. The tableau à sensation this year is M. Jean Beraud's "Les Fous." It depicts a scene in the recreation-ground of a lunatic asylum. It is terribly and sadly realistic. There are about a hundred pictures by English and American artists. One of the best of these is by Mr. Henry Mosler, the painter of "Le Matin de la Noce," in the Sydney Museum. It is called "L'Orage qui Approche" ("The Coming Storm"). A peasant girl has been sent to fetch water at the back of a cottage. She there meets her lover, a young mower, who naturally detains her. The mother, suspecting the cause of the girl's delay, arms herself with a stick and stealthily creeps round the house. It is just at the moment when she rounds the corner and sees the youth's arm encircling the girl's waist, and his face very near to hers, that the artist has painted the scene. The figures are admirably drawn, and the whole picture is true to nature.

From our files of London papers to the 8th May we extract the following intelligence:—

THE AFGHAN FRONTIER QUESTION.

We collate from the letters of the St. Petersburg and other Russian correspondents of the Times the following information respecting the Afghan frontier question. Telegraphing from St. Petersburg on May 1 the Times correspondent says:—"A special council was held to-day at Gatschina, under the presidency of the Emperor himself, to consider the English propositions of which I informed you last week. They appear to have been communicated to M. de Staal in London on Saturday last, and although their substance was at once telegraphed to St. Petersburg the full text is believed to have arrived here only yesterday. To-day's council was convoked by the Czar in order to put an end to the present acute crisis in one way or another previous to his Majesty's visit to Moscow to patronise the centenary jubilee of the Russian nobility. In all probability his Majesty will start for Moscow to-morrow, as several high officials of the Court have already gone on in advance to see that everything is ready in the Kremlin. The council at Gatschina included the Grand Dukes Vladimir and Alexis, M. de Giers, and all the Ministers, M. Solky, Controller of the Empire, M. Abaza, and several other members of the Council of State. To-day, therefore, the crisis may be said to have reached its climax."

On May 2 the same correspondent wrote:—"From what I can learn, yesterday's council is regarded as having come to a definite result not unfavourable for peace. A high dignitary, who came from Gatschina last night, remarked that the Emperor had gone to the utmost limit of concession. If this be the case, it is to be inferred that the English proposals have not been altogether rejected, and that the prospect of an understanding is much brighter. In any case, although we have no positive information, the impression already produced by hearsay as to yesterday's council is one of relief, as though the immediate danger that has been looming nearer and nearer every day had at last been effectually staved off for the present. It would, of course, be premature to form any decided opinion as to peace or war until more is known, and I believe that an official communiqué will appear in the official press to-morrow or next day that will remove all doubts on the subject. The other day the Emperor was reported to have said that he would have no war, and would make no concessions. This remark very well expresses the exact state of the case here during the last few weeks. The military party would like war, as a matter of course; but the naval authorities, who well know their weakness, are altogether opposed to it. The newspapers have done all they could to form a public opinion in favour of war, but I do not think they have very well succeeded. It is a fact that should always be borne in mind that while English newspapers represent British public opinion, Russian newspapers do not represent Russian public opinion, but try to form it, which is a very different thing. In high Government circles there has been a great deal of obstinacy in regard to military honour, prestige, &c., but no very strong desire to precipitate a war. And now it is clear that Mr. Gladstone's honest endeavours to preserve peace are beginning to make an impression, and it is sincerely to be hoped that the result of the council will lead to an amicable settlement of the dispute."

Again, on May 5 the Times correspondent writes:—"The result of the council at Gatschina on Friday has been that further counter-proposals have been submitted to the British Cabinet, which transfer the next move in the matter to London. After the council on Friday night a telegram was despatched to M. de Staal, and in all probability the English Cabinet was yesterday (Saturday) in possession of the further offer which the Imperial Council decided upon making to the English Government in answer to its latest propositions. The result of the council, however indefinitely known up to the present, has no doubt thus far favoured the ends of peace rather than the chances of war. It now depends upon London to give an equally favourable reception to the counter offers from Russia, in order to secure an amicable arrangement. Some of the St. Petersburg journals, like the Novosti, which had thoroughly made up its mind for war, are now very loth to change their warlike tone, and an arbitration clause in the agreement is by no means to their liking. The Novoe Vremya says that General Komaroff's conduct will, of course, not be the subject of investigation of any kind; while the Novosti declares that the very offer of arbitration is a slight on Russia. The latter newspaper is still convinced that war will ensue sooner or later, in spite of all agreements."

RUSSIAN OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

St. Petersburg, May 8.—The following communication appears in to-day's Official Messenger:—"The Official Messenger of the 30th ultimo, published a note relating the circumstances which provoked the conflict between the Russian and Afghan troops on the banks of the Kushk River. From this statement it appeared that, in taking action against the Afghans with a view to forcing them to abandon the right bank of the Kushk, General Komaroff did not place himself in contradiction with instructions which he had received from the Ministry of War. According to these instructions he was forbidden only to occupy the Penjdeh oasis, where the troops of the Ameer had already taken up their position. He was, therefore, perfectly right in acting as he did in the affair of the 30th of March. Nevertheless, in consequence of this incident, a disagreement has arisen between the Imperial Government and that of her Britannic Majesty, as to which of the two Cabinets interpreted the more faithfully the arrangement concluded between them, and in virtue of which, until the solution of the frontier question, no offensive movement was to be undertaken either on our part or on that of the Afghans. The point was to determine whether the instructions given to General Komaroff were really in conformity with the arrangement in question, or whether, as maintained by the Cabinet of London, the imperial Government ought to have enjoined the commander of the Russian troops to abstain absolutely from all attack upon the Afghan outposts from the moment when he received the order not to undertake any offensive movement. Neither of the two Cabinets has thought it possible to abandon its particular view on this point. For this reason, and in order to avoid the obstacles which impeded the solution of the frontier question, it has been decided that, in case of necessity, the difference of opinion should be referred to the judgment of an arbitrator, who would indicate a mode of solution compatible with the honour and dignity of the two States. At the same time the two Governments have agreed to resume the negotiations for determining the frontier on the bases employed up to the present, but with the difference that the principal points of the frontier line should be fixed by means of a previous understanding between the Cabinets. The demarcation on the spot of the line of frontier in its details, as well as the placing of the indicating posts, will be reserved for commissioners which the two Governments will furnish with powers for this purpose. In order to facilitate the work of delimitation, the outposts on both sides will not be required to retire from their present positions until after the arrival of the commission on the spot; and, as fast as the direction of the frontier line is fixed, the frontier points will be occupied by the troops of the two parties concerned. It will then be the duty of each to maintain order and security in the territories awarded to them respectively."

THE NEUTRALITY OF TURKEY.

It is reported that Turkey has prepared, if not actually despatched, a circular to the Powers in reply to the verbal inquiries of the ambassadors of Germany, Austria, and France, in which an assurance is given that she will maintain absolute neutrality in the event of war. The preparations to give effect to this promise are now attracting attention. As the result of the report of the special commission sent to inspect the defences of the Dardanelles, it has been decided to incur a considerable outlay in order to embarrass any fleet which may attempt to force a passage in defiance of existing treaties. In order to obtain the required funds it was first decided to apply to the Ottoman Bank for an advance of £60,000, but subsequently it was preferred to find the money out of the ordinary revenues, and urgent telegrams were sent to certain vilayets to remit this capital portion of the proceeds of the somewhat worn-out sheep-tax for this purpose. The fortifications are to be strengthened and torpedoes to be laid down, but for the immediate present a quarter of the sum mentioned is considered sufficient by the military authorities. A portion of the ironclad fleet is now being overhauled in the Inner Horn, and will shortly be stationed in the Dardanelles. The commission also recommends the establishment of torpedo stations along both shores, and the employment of the electric light to prevent a surprise at night. The new Bosphorus battery will mount 20 heavy guns. The Constantinople correspondent of the Standard understands that the order for this show of activity to defend the neutrality of the Straits emanated direct from the Sultan, notwithstanding that several Ministers and a not inconsiderable portion of his Majesty's entourage were opposed to measures which cannot be considered in any other light than as a menace to England. The Sultan added that his dislike, not to say hatred, of Mr. Gladstone was greater than his fear of Russia. The Sultan, moreover, is greatly alarmed at the attitude of Austria, whose Government had actually prepared a Note, warning his Majesty that if Turkey declared for an English alliance they would consider the treaties affecting this country at an end, and take such measures as they might consider necessary or advisable in their own interest. The Sultan, being privately informed of the views of Austria, begged the Vienna Cabinet not to send a Note, promising, at the same time, the maintenance of strict neutrality.

THE SUEZ CANAL COMMISSION.

Although every effort is being made to bring the work of the Suez Canal Commission to a speedy conclusion, it is progressing but slowly, and much time is lost over the discussion of details. At the present moment the question of the liability of the Governments for the damage caused to the canal by their war vessels is still under discussion. Upon the principle of such liability there was no divergence of views, but some of the delegates were of opinion that it was such a matter of course that it was superfluous to make extra provision for it in the treaty which the commission is charged to prepare. It was, however, finally decided that it would be better to insert a clause to that effect, and for the last two sittings the details of that clause, according to both the English and French proposals, have been under discussion. The crucial questions connected with the guarantees for the free navigation of the canal in time of war have not yet been approached. It is stated that the Russian and French Governments display great anxiety for bringing the work of the commission to a speedy conclusion. In the event of the outbreak of war between England and Russia, the commission would at once break up.

A SMART RUSSIAN CRUISER.

The New Russian Telegraph says it has been informed that, in view of the example set during the late Russo-Turkish war, a suggestion has been made to obtain, by subscriptions collected throughout South Russia, a large ocean cruiser, to be called the South Russian, and that the ports of Akerman, Odessa, Cherson, Nicolaieff, and Sebastopol should each furnish a torpedo boat for coast defence. These boats would probably, it adds, be purchased in Germany or Sweden, at a cost of from 40,000 to 65,000 roubles (£4000 to £6500) each, and would have to be delivered in complete working order at Odessa and Sebastopol. The cruiser should be capable of attaining not fewer than 18 knots an hour; and all who volunteered to serve on board of her should be of Russian birth, or, at any rate, of Slavonian descent.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT IN IRELAND.

The Standard says:—"We believe that a bill dealing in a comprehensive manner with local government in Ireland has been drawn up, and will probably be brought in before the close of the session. The bill establishes popularly elected councils in the Irish counties, to which will be transferred the administrative duties now performed by the grand juries. The bill will create a central council in Dublin, the members of which are to be chosen by the county councils. To this central body will be handed over the functions now discharged by the Board of Works, the Education Board, and other similar bodies in Dublin. We believe also that it is contemplated to abolish the Lord-Lieutenancy and to create a Secretary of State for Ireland; but that on this question no definite decision has yet been arrived at. The measure will be presented with the object, not of passing it this year, but of placing its proposals before the public."

THE ARCHBISHOPRIC OF DUBLIN.

The Standard's correspondent at Rome telegraphs:—"Monsignor Donnelly has confidentially begged the Pope to permit him to decline the Archbishopric of Dublin, on the ground that his nomination would cause discord. I am further informed that Mr. Errington, in his latest conversation with Cardinal Simeoni, though not withdrawing his opposition to Mr. Walsh, insisted less peremptorily on his objection to that gentleman. In an interview with the Pope, the Archbishop of Tuam, while recognising the difficult position in which the Holy See is placed, ventured to represent to the Holy Father that the fact of the Vatican having shown greater deference to the English Government than to the wishes of the Irish clergy would produce a very bad effect in Ireland. My impression is that Mr. Walsh will be appointed; but the Pontiff continues to hesitate."

THE PRECEDENCE OF THE IRISH ROMAN CATHOLIC BISHOPS.

Mr. Gladstone, replying to the resolution forwarded to him by the committee of the National Club respecting the recent order regulating the precedence of Roman Catholic dignitaries in Ireland, says that the order of precedence is simply a formal recognition of an act of courtesy which has long ago been practised in Ireland towards dignitaries holding rank in their respective Churches; that it carries with it no substantial privilege or power; that it is confined to Ireland, where there is no Established Church; and that he is not prepared to recommend the Queen to cancel the order.

CRITICAL CONDITION OF LORD SHERBROOKE.

The St. James's Gazette of May 5 says:—"We deeply regret to announce that the alarming rumours regarding the condition of Lord Sherbrooke prove, upon inquiry, to have been only too well founded. This morning's bulletin reads: '8.55 a.m. Lord Sherbrooke passed a restless night, muttering incoherently to himself and writing with his finger on the bedpost. A little after 4 o'clock he fell asleep with the 'Rhyming Dictionary' in his hand, and dozed fitfully until 7. Condition unchanged.' During the early part of the forenoon nearly a hundred cards were left. A number of friends called to condole with his sorrowing relatives and implore him, even at the eleventh hour, to give it up. These were denied admission to his presence. The streets round the house have been laid with straw to deaden the traffic, and in the stillness the perturbed sufferer can be distinctly heard pacing his chamber. Strange declamatory noises come from the same direction. At 11 o'clock a messenger arrived with a basket of hot-house grapes from the Queen."

A LEAP FROM BLACKFRIARS BRIDGE.

At the Mansion House, on May 7, Edith Bertram, a well-dressed young woman, 16 years of age, appeared before the Lord Mayor to answer a charge of having attempted to commit suicide. Thomas Pearson, an inspector of the Thames Police, deposed that at 11.30 on the night of the 10th April he was on duty in the police galley off Blackfriars Bridge. He heard loud cries for help proceeding from the bridge, and immediately rowed in that direction. He learned that a woman had thrown herself off the bridge, and he then saw the defendant clinging to the woodwork of the new railway bridge. The witness got her into the boat and found that she was sensible. She said, "Oh, Jack, you have deceived me; you are a married man with six children." The witness conveyed her to Guy's Hospital, where she had since remained, suffering from a fractured thigh and a broken arm. A gentleman entered the witness-box and said he knew the girl's mother, and she was willing to take charge of her daughter and provide for her. The Lord Mayor said the best thing would be to discharge the defendant and hand her over to the care of her mother. The defendant was then discharged, and left the court with her mother and friends.

CROSSING THE CHANNEL BY ELECTRICITY.

At the invitation of a foreign Government, Mr. Reckenzaun, who has done much for the application of storage batteries to tram car locomotion, has produced designs for a torpedo launch service, to be propelled at high speed by electricity. The conditions enjoined are that this craft should make a voyage across the English Channel and back in moderately fair weather. It is confidently believed that the test can be complied with, and the construction of the vessel and machinery is to be commenced without delay. In view of important improvements in the electrical appliances, her speed may be expected to exceed anything hitherto attempted.

FOOD FOR STOCK.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I have just perused your sub-leader of the 22nd ultimo.

Though late, and having no ambition to appear on the roll as a public writer, still I cannot permit you, unchallenged, to give an erroneous colouring to the evidence I gave before the Water Conservation Commission at Walgett; such was given on the spur of the moment, having had no previous intimation of the nature of the questions likely to be propounded, else possibly it had been more particular. You pose me before the public as one whose eyes are dazed, who can only see matters of public interest through the medium of a squatter's lens. You write on information presumedly based on that afforded by the reporter for the S. M. Herald who accompanied the Water Conservation Commission. It is to be regretted that he did not more substantially report my evidence, for then, perchance, you had hesitated ere you drew invidious comparisons and painted me as the founder of ridiculous figures and the exponent of mischievous theories. I professed to a comparative ignorance of agricultural farming, yet stated as my belief that, if the soil were properly tilled and irrigated, it would produce anything adapted to the hot climate.

On the subject of artificially feeding stock in times of drought I was more decided, and said it would not pay to do so. To corroborate, in part, my assertion, I produce figures roughly drawn (I had not time to study minutely the question); and although you, Sir, pooh-pooh these figures, I think I can prove in the main that though my estimate of the probable cost of producing fodder by artificial means may be wrong in the abstract, that any attempt to feed stock artificially in large numbers will result in failure in a pecuniary sense. The late drought still existing in many parts, commenced at the end of 1882, or early in 1883. I had then some 50,000 sheep, and had I determined to artificially feed one-half—had such an undertaking been possible—and let the balance take their chance fare from natural sources, or till sufficient rain fell to produce sufficient grass or herbage, I believe I should have gained the unenviable knowledge that I had done a very foolish thing. Herewith I append a calculation on which I base my argument.

Twenty-five thousand sheep, valued at 8s. each, £10,000; each sheep will eat 4lb. of food per day, produced at a cost of 15s. per ton. (Although I maintain the impossibility of producing artificial fodder in desired quantities, at that or any price approaching to it by any known method, or by any principle emanating from the fertile imagination of the wildest theorist.).

25,000 sheep will thus consume 100,000lb., or some 40 tons of fodder daily. In 12 months they will consume 14,600 tons, will have cost for feeding alone (not counting the attendant expenses of feeding), a sum equal to £10,950, or at the rate of 8s. 9d. per head. At the end of the second year they will have consumed 29,200 tons of fodder, at a cost of £21,900. In favour of the sheep place the value of each year's clip of wool, say for the first year value be £5000, at the rate of 4s. per head, the same amount to the credit for the second year. The balance will be £1900 on the wrong side, as the sheep will have cost this sum over and above their value. To produce 29,200 tons of hay it would be necessary to plough, sow, and irrigate 7300 acres of land, or over 11 square miles of country, calculating that on an average each acre produces four tons. The cost of 15s. per ton is supposed to cover the expense or outlay in buying the seed, ploughing, sowing, rolling, and irrigating the land, erecting a marsupial-proof wire-netting fence, at a cost of £80 per mile, for 12 miles, purchasing necessary machinery to carry on this extensive farming. In this instance we cannot depend on the caprice of contractors, so many being required at the same time, as the sun will not stand still to suit the will of man, and crops must be cut when ripe, ere they spoil. Harvesters cannot be identified with shearers, for though delay in shearing may be prejudicial, it cannot have so serious an effect as delay in cutting ripening fodder. Estimating all these expenses at the cost of £3 per acre, to be expended by the far-seeing, provident squatter, who has abundance of idle money to spare, on the chance of some day reaping a benefit therefrom in case of emergency or drought (if, meantime, fire has not annulled the effects of his enterprise). It may happen that seven years may elapse ere a scourge in the form of a drought occur. During that period the provident squatter could gaze each day on his vast possessions of stacked fodder, if he adopted the ensilage system of storing he could contemplate the huge mounds covering 29,200 tons of fodder, and calculate the rate of interest he was losing by having so much money built up or buried. As many stations depasture from 100,000 to 300,000 sheep, by multiplying the figures I give the results can be arrived at as to the quantity of fodder required for one or two years, and those who take the trouble to inquire will, I think, arrive at the same conclusion as myself—that it will not pay to artificially feed stock in large numbers. I understand Mr. Wills-Allen attempted irrigation on a large scale on some 40 acres of land.

I am, &c.,
F. G. WOLSELEY.

Eureka, Walgett, May 28th, 1885.

[Possibly the readiest answer to Mr. Wolseley's statement and calculations will be found in the work now being done by Mr. Wills-Allen, Mr. George Faucett, and others about Gunnedah and Narrabri. These gentlemen having experimented with tens of acres are going on to hundreds, Mr. Wills-Allen contemplating cultivation and irrigation of 1200 acres for the express purpose of feeding stock. A little practical experience might teach Mr. Wolseley a good deal more than his elaborate but disheartening calculations will ever teach others.—ED. S.M.H.]

ALLEGED OVERSTOCKING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In Mr. E. J. Bloxham's letter in your issue of this morning I find the following:—"Nelyambo was the next station visited, and is said to contain 600 square miles, but in reality 346,604 acres. The sheep are set down at about 100,000."

Now, sir, the acreage of Nelyambo station, on which these 100,000 sheep were depastured, is 848,454 acres. If Mr. Bloxham's figures are as accurate in other cases as in this one, I fear we shall not learn much from his experience or his figures.

I am, &c.,
DARLING SQUATTER.

LAW REPORT.

SUPREME COURT.—MONDAY, JUNE 15.

Banco Court.—(Before his Honor the CHIEF JUSTICE and a jury of four.)

MACNAMARA V. THE MUNICIPAL COUNCIL OF FIVE DOCK (PART HEARD).

Mr. Salomons Q.C., and Mr. Want, instructed by Mr. T. M. Williamson, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Pilcher and Mr. Knox, instructed by Messrs. Pigott and Trickett, for the defendant.

In this action, which was brought to settle the question of title to certain lands at Half-moon Bay (Iron Cove), within the municipality of Five Dock, the addresses of counsel were concluded on Friday, and the hearing was resumed to-day.

His HONOR, in summing up, pointed out to the jury that the question they had to determine was whether, on the 27th February last, the plaintiff had a good title to the land in question. It was not, therefore, an ordinary case in which the jury had to try, where there was a plaintiff and a defendant; but there was this abstract question, had plaintiff a title to the land at the date mentioned? There could be no doubt that so far as title by deed was concerned the plaintiff had no title tracing back to the grant from the Crown. His title was derived from one M'Cleer, and so far plaintiff had conveyance from M'Cleer to him, and his title depended upon M'Cleer, who had no title except that by possession, because there could be no doubt from the evidence that M'Cleer did not have conveyed to him at any time the property which was the subject of this inquiry. If it was a title which M'Cleer acquired by possession and possession only, then in order to enable him to make out a title they must be satisfied that he had exclusive possession of the land for 20 years. If for 20 years M'Cleer had exclusive possession of the land, then, although he might have no more right to it than any other stranger, that would, under the circumstances disclosed in this case, give him a title. The law was this: that if a person went on another person's property and took possession of it, and did acts which indicated to the outside world that he was there exercising dominion over it, and intending to exercise dominion over it, then, if the owner asserted no right to it for 20 years, he lost it. But the thing which precluded him from asserting his right must be visible occupation for a period of 20 years, an occupation which could be interpreted only in one way—that was to say, that the occupation was such as would convey to the public that the person occupying the land was exercising dominion over it. If he did those things which people who ordinarily hold land generally do, and that was to build upon, fence, and cultivate it, that would be enough. He overruled the contention that the owner of land could dedicate it to the public by his auctioneer. There might be a dedication of a highway by a person going upon the land and announcing that he dedicated it to the world, or he might dedicate it by allowing persons to use a road through his private land for a certain period. Under certain circumstances the law would assume a dedication, and after a certain period the owner could not get it back again. But there was no evidence here of such dedication, or that Market-street, which ran through the land, was ever used by the public at all. His Honor then placed the main points of the evidence on either side before the jury.

The jury, after ten minutes' consideration, found that plaintiff had a good title to the whole of the land, the subject of the application.

(Before the CHIEF JUSTICE and a special jury of twelve.)

ADAMS V. THE COMMISSIONER OF RAILWAYS.

Mr. Darley, Q.C., and Mr. Pring, instructed by Mr. W. C. Proctor, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. M. H. Stephen, Q.C., Mr. Salomons, Q.C., and Mr. C. B. Stephen, instructed by the Crown Solicitor, for the defendant. This was an action brought by plaintiff, George Adams, to recover compensation for injuries sustained by him, owing, as alleged, to the defendant having so carelessly, negligently, and improperly constructed a certain railway line between Bethungra and Cootamundra, and the culverts, waterways, and embankments thereon, that afterwards a large portion of the said line was washed away and destroyed by the waters of a certain creek or watercourse, and a train of the defendant's then running on the line, and in which the plaintiff was a passenger, was overturned, and the plaintiff was seriously injured. Damages were set down at £1000. Defendant entered a general plea of not guilty.

Mr. Darley, Q.C., opened the case for the plaintiff at considerable length, but at the request of the Court his address is withheld. He however stated that the plaintiff was a miner who, on the 26th January last, the date of the accident, had taken a second-class ticket to a place called Culgairn (?), this side of Albury, for Sydney, and was proceeding on his journey there when the disaster occurred. In consequence of the accident plaintiff sustained a wound on the head extending some four or five inches, though his skull fortunately was not fractured, and the worst injury was that to his back, from which he was likely to suffer for a very considerable time, even if he did ultimately recover from it. The accident took place on the far side of Cootamundra, about one and a half to two miles from Cootamundra station. The largest station near Cootamundra where the train stopped was Bethungra, and the train was running between these two places when the accident occurred. The learned counsel then proceeded to describe the nature of the country, the size of the culverts, &c., and the means taken to prevent the disaster which afterwards occurred, and stated that evidence would be forthcoming to show that not only were the culverts insufficient to carry off the storm waters which were swept down into them from the creeks, but proper steps were not taken to stop the train before it reached the scene of the accident.

The case was then adjourned till Thursday morning, and the jury left by special train at 3.15 p.m. to view the locality.

Jury Court.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice INNES and a jury of four.)

MORRIS V. JONES (part heard).

Mr. Harris, instructed by Messrs. M'Culloch and Pope, appeared for the plaintiff. Defendant appeared in person. This was an action brought by William Morris, a timber merchant, residing at Belmore, near Canterbury, against James S. Jones, publican, of Newtown, to recover the sum of £100 advanced to the defendant as a loan in May last year. The case was tried before the Chief Justice on the 15th September last, when a verdict was returned in favour of the defendant. On February 15 a rule absolute for a new trial was obtained. The defence set up was that the money was paid to the defendant by way of deposit for the purchase of the Prince of Wales Hotel, Newtown. The case has already been fully reported, both during the previous trial and on the application for a re-hearing. Plaintiff's contention was that the money was given by him as a loan when he was under the influence of drink, while, on the other hand, defendant swore that the money was paid by plaintiff as an ordinary business transaction and as a deposit for the purchase of the hotel in question.

The jury returned a verdict in favour of the plaintiff for the amount claimed.

JONSEN V. SOLOMON.

Mr. Pilcher and Mr. O'Connor, instructed by Mr. Lewis Levy, for the plaintiff; Mr. G. H. Simpson, instructed by Messrs. Shepherd and Crossman, for the defendant.

This is an action for slander, brought by Albert Nathan Jonsen against Harris Jacob Solomon. The defendant's name was set out in the writ as Harris Jacobs, but on being called he said his name was Solomon. It appears from the evidence, which is now closed, that plaintiff and Mr. Levy, manager of the Mont de Piété Company, had a transaction in some shares, and a cheque for £600 being given in consideration, plaintiff offered to get it cashed, and thereupon sent one Max Roth, an insolvent, to the bank to cash it. Roth had twelve £50 notes in his hands when he met defendant, one of his creditors, and this led to Roth being examined in the Insolvent Court as to the money. Subsequently defendant said to Mr. Levy, "I know all Roth's affairs, it is a swindle, and Jonsen is at the bottom of it." The defendant and one witness denied that the words had been used as charged, but there is a similar case against the witness.

Counsel will address the jury to-morrow.

In Equity.—(Before his Honor the PRIMARY JUDGE.)

MARSDEN V. PLUMB AND ANOTHER.

Mr. Darley, Q.C., and Dr. Sly, instructed by Mr. G. J. Sly, for the plaintiff; Mr. Knox and Mr. Lingen, instructed by Messrs. Shorter and Fitzgerald, for the defendants.

This is a suit arising out of a partnership, the object of which was to stock certain blocks of land in the Kimberley district. The parties all reside at Blayney, and the principal question is, whether the purchase of the steamer Albambra (?) was the act of one partner on his own account or was a partnership concern. The steamer was subsequently sold, and on accounts being made up there was a considerable deficiency. The plaintiff now seeks to have the defendants Plumb and Oliver ordered to pay him £799 each.

The suit stands as part heard.

Darlinghurst Court.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice FAUCETT and a jury of four).

NELSON AND CO. V. SCOTT AND ANOTHER.

This was an action brought by Scott and Co., civil engineers and millwrights, of Sydney, to recover the sum of £16 15s. 6d. for goods sold and delivered to the defendants, Scott and Mullaly, millers, of Cootamundra. Mr. Coghlan appeared for the plaintiffs; the defendants were not represented. The supply of the goods to plaintiffs' order was proved by A. J. Nelson, of the firm of Nelson and Co., plaintiffs. The jury found a verdict for plaintiffs for the amount claimed, his Honor refusing to certify for costs.

KYNGDON V. HANLEY.

This action was brought by the plaintiff, who is a brewer, of Sydney, to recover the sum of £117 7s. for beer supplied to the defendant, Thomas Hanley, publican, on the Illawarra railway line.

Mr. Browning appeared for plaintiff; defendant did not appear either personally or by counsel. Plaintiff proved the supply of the goods to the order of defendant, and also proved that defendant, on May 27 last, on the occasion of a meeting of his creditors, admitted the indebtedness.

The jury found for plaintiff for the amount claimed.

KENYON V. SMART.

This was an action for ejectment, brought by Mrs. Fanny Maria Kenyon, of Woodlands, to recover possession of some 30 acres of land at Fairfield, at present in possession of the defendant, Arthur Frederick Smart.

Mr. Owen, Q.C., with Mr. K. Barton, instructed by Mr. A. S. Gilder, for the plaintiff; Mr. Rogers and Mr. Heydon, instructed by Messrs. Jones and Jones, for defendant.

From the plaintiff's case it appeared that this land, which adjoins the Fairfield railway station, was originally conveyed by deed of grant from the Crown under date August 25, 1812, to a person named Killian. There were several subsequent conveyances, including one for a farm of 100 acres, adjoining the land in dispute. On October 8, 1850, there was a conveyance of the 30 acres only from J. Horsley to Joseph Kenyon, sen., who died in 1860, leaving his son, Joseph Kenyon, jun., devisee of all his real and personal property. Joseph Kenyon, jun., died in May, 1880, devising all his real and personal property to his wife, the plaintiff in the present action. Mr. Rogers, for defendant, admitted that Joseph Kenyon, jun., was heir-at-law of Joseph Kenyon, sen. He also admitted the death of Joseph Kenyon, jun., in 1880, and that the present plaintiff was the wife of Joseph Kenyon, jun., but objected that there was no mention in Kenyon, sen.'s will of this 30-acre farm, although both real and personal property were specifically devised and bequeathed. Mr. Owen said he admitted that the will dealt with particular and specific properties, but did not know whether all the properties were mentioned in the will.

The case stands as part heard.

INSOLVENCY COURT.—MONDAY, JUNE 15.

(Before the CHIEF COMMISSIONER.)

In the matter of Benjamin Nelson. The plan was altered, and was then confirmed.

In the matter of August L. Deutscher. The insolvent was examined by Mr. Irving (on behalf of a proved creditor named Bearet) with respect to the equity of redemption of a selection sold to Mr. May, and afterwards re-sold by May to one East, who, it was alleged, purchased on behalf of the wife of the insolvent. The meeting then terminated.

In the matter of George Evans, an adjourned single meeting. Insolvent was ordered to file his statement under rule 20, and to file a supplementary schedule. Insolvent was then examined with respect to his transactions with Friedman. Evans deposed that he was now indebted to Friedman for upwards of £300, for money lent at various times, and for which security was given; witness had leased the tools of trade and stock-in-trade from Friedman under a written document at £4 per week; witness had been carrying on a losing trade; he had since his insolvency paid hundreds of pounds to his creditors under his former insolvency. The meeting then terminated.

In the matter of Jabez Brown, examination of insolvent, &c. The insolvent was examined with respect to the destruction of certain memoranda, from which he alleged he made up his accounts, and also regarding various business transactions. The meeting then terminated.

SURRENDERS.

Robert Redshaw, of Bega, fruiterer. Liabilities, £87 11s.; assets, £5. Mr. Stephen, official assignee.

Elias Cohen, of 449, Crown-street, clerk. Liabilities, £562 8s. 11d.; assets, £7 10s. Mr. Lloyd, official assignee.

SCHEDULE FILED.

James Corbett, of Stonehenge, near Glen Innes, farmer. Liabilities, £195; assets, £597 12s.

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT COURT.—MONDAY.

(Before Mr. District Court Judge WILKINSON.)

O'BRIEN V. COHEN.

This was an action brought by Lucius O'Brien against Louis Cohen, of Barrack-street, for the recovery of £100 with respect to a promissory-note (alleged to be payable on demand) made by the defendant in favour of Messrs. Mills, Pile, and Gilchrist, and endorsed by that firm to Mr. L. O'Brien. Mr. G. H. Reid, instructed by Mr. T. O. O'Brien, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Nash, instructed by Mr. G. E. Russell Jones, for the defendant. The defence was that defendant made the promissory-note and delivered it to the payees without consideration, which the plaintiff well knew, and the payees endorsed it without consideration, and there had never at any time been any consideration for the note; and for an equitable plea the defendant said that the payees acted as agents for the plaintiff in regard to the sale of certain property in Sydney, and had certain negotiations with the defendant concerning the purchase by him of the said property, and the defendant said that at the request of the payees he made the note and delivered it to them, and it was agreed by them, as agents for the plaintiff, with the defendant, that the sum of money (£100), for which the note was made, should form part of the purchase-money if the sale should be completed; but that the note should not be put in suit unless the sale should be completed, and the sale had never yet been completed. His Honor found that there was a consideration; but did not find that the note should not be put in suit. The evidence showed that O'Brien undertook to abstain from dealing with the property in question, and had, accordingly, abstained from dealing with it. The verdict would be for the plaintiff for the amount claimed.

MATHEWS V. FONTANI.

Claim, £28 10s., balance due on rent of furniture lent by Solomon Mathews to A. W. Fontani. Judgment was given for the amount claimed.

RITCHIE V. EVANS.

John Ritchie brought this action against Richard Evans for the recovery of £55 0s. 10d. for groceries, dairy produce, and other goods. Mr. Field, instructed by Mr. Brennan, appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Teece, instructed by Mr. G. M. Dunn, for the defendant, who paid £35 11s. 8d. into court, and pleaded not indebted as to the remainder of the claim. Judgment was given for the plaintiff for the amount claimed less the money paid into Court.

BROWN V. ROBINSON.

This was an action brought by the trustees of the late John Brown, of Lane Cove, for the recovery of £29 19s. 4d., the value of goods supplied by him to James Robinson. Mr. Brady appeared for the plaintiff, for whom a verdict was entered for the amount claimed.

POLICE.

Mr. Whittingdale Johnson, D.S.M., presided in the Charge division of the WATER POLICE COURT, yesterday. Several offenders were fined or sent to gaol for a term for drunkenness. George Wilson, a plasterer, was fined 20s. and costs for being drunk and disorderly in Cumberland-street. Alfred Neil, for using obscene language in the bar of the Oriental Hotel, Queen's Wharf, was fined £2 or 14 days to gaol. Maggie Smith, charged with having insufficient lawful means of support, was ordered to be imprisoned for three months with hard labour. Alexander M'Phail, for using obscene language within hearing of persons passing in Rowe-street, was fined £2 or 14 days' gaol. Ellen M'Kinley, for having insufficient lawful means of support, was sentenced to two months' gaol with hard labour. Mr. G. W. F. Addison, S.M., sat in the Summons division and disposed of a large amount of business. Inspector E. Oram prosecuted about 25 persons for breaches of the Metropolitan Transit Commissioners' by-laws. Convictions were obtained in the majority of the cases.

Mr. T. K. Abbott, S.M., sat on the Charge side of the CENTRAL POLICE COURT yesterday. About 30 drunkards were fined. James Mahoney, 15, a drayman, was fined £5, or two months, for having assaulted Emily Sarah Judson. The prosecutrix was walking with her mother in Goulburn-street on Saturday night, when the prisoner, a perfect stranger, caught her by the arm and tried to kiss her. She struggled, whereupon he slapped her in the face and made off. William Briggs, 17, also a drayman, was fined £5, or two months, for having assaulted Mrs. Catherine Judson, on the same occasion, by slapping her on the ear. For having used indecent language, he was further fined £5, in default three months; the sentences to be cumulative. Andrew Thomas, 28, a labourer, was fined £5, or two months, for having impersonated a detective. It appeared that he had represented himself as such to one John Hennessy, a publican, and endeavoured to obtain a glass of liquor upon the strength of his statement. John Connolly, for drunkenness whilst in charge of a cab in St. John's-road, Glebe, was fined £1, or seven days. William Boyd, 28, bootmaker, was fined £5, with the option of two months, for indecency in George-street West. Charles Thomas M. Longlands, seaman, was sentenced to six months' hard labour, for having stolen a coat, the property of William Trenberth, from White's Restaurant, George-street. Stephen Pendergast, labourer, for drunkenness, disorderly conduct, and assaulting Constable Dukes, was fined £6, or nine weeks' gaol. Andrew Murdoch, labourer, was fined £4, or nine weeks, for indecent language and riotous behaviour in Kippax-street. On the Summons side, Mr. O'Malley Clarke, S.M., dealt with 70 small debts cases.

At the REDFERN POLICE COURT on Monday, before Mr. Buchanan, S.M., Michael Allison, for having used indecent language in George-street, Waterloo, was fined £5, or three months. James Dawes was fined 40s., in default 14 days' imprisonment, for offending against decency on the Botany-road, Botany. Alexander Devine, 21, a labourer, was charged with stealing a shirt, tablecloth, &c., value £1, the property of William Dwyer, on 3rd February last. Prosecutor said that prisoner lived close to him on the Beaconsfield Estate; hearing his dog barking on the night in question, he went out into his yard, where there was a quantity of clothes drying, and saw prisoner entering his house with a bundle of clothes; he followed him, but could not get admittance; on returning he missed the articles off the line; he informed the police, and next morning went to prisoner's house, but he ran away. Mr. Austin, pawnbroker, of Regent-street, stated that prisoner attempted to pawn the articles with him about 9 o'clock the same evening, but as they were wet he would not take them in. Prisoner, who had previous convictions against him for stealing, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment with hard labour. A number of persons were fined in sums varying from 5s. to 20s., with costs, for neglecting to send their children to school, and as some of them had already been fined four times for a similar offence, Mr. Buchanan remarked that the maximum penalty was absurdly small, and completely failed to effect what was desired. It showed that while the parents found it so much more profitable to send children of 9 or 10 years of age to work in factories and elsewhere they would do so, quite regardless of the injury they inflicted on them by neglecting their education. The penalties ought to be largely increased. Francis Burdett v. Isabella Burdett. This was an application to vary an order made by his Worship for the payment of £2 per week for the support of the appellant's deserted wife. Mr. S. Bull appeared for the appellant, and Mr. Williamson in support of the order. The appellant's case was that he had been obliged to sell all his horses and drays to his father to pay his debts, and that at present he was merely his father's servant, only earning £2 per week, and therefore unable to comply with the order; he admitted owning a house worth £600, but said it was mortgaged for £350; that his father paid the interest, and collected the rent; he also admitted being acquainted with a young lady, and driving her to Botany in a cab. He was willing to pay £1 per week. Mr. Williamson, without calling any witnesses, said it was evident from the appellant's own statement what the state of affairs was, and drew attention to the appearance of two documents which had been put in as evidence, one of which was an alleged receipt from the son to the father for the amount of purchase money for the drays; and the other a memorandum book containing certain entries of amounts alleged to have been the weekly earnings of the drays since the father had purchased them. These entries, it was alleged, had been made at various times, but there was a smudge down the page, made in blotting them, that did not support this. Mr. Buchanan said he wished the plaintiff had appealed to the Quarter Sessions, or to one of the other magistrates, rather than have asked him to re-consider his own decision. He saw no reason for altering the order. He confirmed it, and ordered appellant to pay 42s. professional costs.

At the BALMAIN POLICE COURT on Monday, before Mr. Yates, D.S.M., Margaret Nolan, an interesting and intelligent little girl 8½ years of age was brought before the court for protection. The child, who was almost destitute of clothing, went to the house of a Mrs. Wincot of Belmore-street, on last Friday week, when she was kindly taken in and clothed. The child's father is dead, and her mother appears to be leading an improper life in Sydney. She was recommended for admission to the Benevolent Asylum.

CORONER'S INQUEST.

Yesterday morning the City Coroner, Mr. H. Shiell, J.P., held an inquest at the Soudan Hotel, George-street North, on the body of a female infant which was found in the water at Balmain on Saturday last. Dr. Evans, jun., stated that he had made a post-mortem examination of the body, and he was of opinion the child had been born alive; the cause of death was asphyxia by submersion. The jury, after due deliberation, returned a verdict of murder against some person or persons unknown.

THE PORT MACQUARIE BAR.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—A few days ago a report appeared in your columns recording the loss of the small steamer Josephine at the above locality. Being a frequent visitor to Port Macquarie, and having some interests there, may I claim the indulgence of a little space in your valuable columns in order that I may publicly ventilate a few of the grievances of that beautiful but much-neglected spot? Some 12 months since I visited the place after an absence from it of nearly 40 years. On arriving off the bar a most painful sight became visible, viz., the wrecks of two fine steamers (the Ballina and the Richmond), one to the right and the other to the left of the channel, standing out like two dismal, gaunt skeletons as a warning to all vessels entering the port, as well as to those passing by. Now we have the record of yet another wrecked steamer to bear the others company, and it is perhaps needless to say that in all probability more will follow if something is not done to lessen the dangers of the entrance to the port, which, with no very lavish expenditure, might be converted into a safe and excellent harbour. From statistics I find that nearly 300 sailing vessels—not counting steamers—enter and leave the port annually. The district, being unsurpassed in the colony for its timber, gives employment to three large steam mills, and consequently to a large number of men in this industry alone. Stretching inland from the port flow three grand rivers, viz., the Hastings, the Maria, and the Wilson, with their various tributaries, dotted with farms and homesteads. Some of the lands are rich beyond compare, growing annually large crops of maize and yielding other produce, with plenty of room for a large accession of industrious population. Limestone and other minerals abound in the district. For salubrity of climate and beauty of scenery it is unequalled on the coast line of the colony, and yet, notwithstanding all this, the place is utterly neglected by every successive Administration, and, comparatively speaking, unknown to the great majority of the people of the colony. Here we have the spectacle of one of the oldest settlements of Australia almost ignored. Scores of thousands of pounds have been and are being lavished on the entrance to the Clarence, more notably on Trial Bay—on the latter, in the opinion of many, uselessly—but not a shilling is forthcoming for the purpose of reducing the difficulties and dangers of Port Macquarie bar. In grim relief the ghosts of three steamers rest on the outlines of the port, a shocking spectacle to hosts of passing ships; and, what is worse, blocking and rendering more difficult of navigating the narrow channel, made narrower by the intrusion of at least one of these wrecks, that of the Ballina, which the expense of a few charges of dynamite would remove. With no very great outlay of money the harbour of Port Macquarie might be immensely improved, in fact it could easily be made a port of refuge. When once entered it is safe from every wind, but the bar blocks the way. Why should it not be removed, or even improved? What crime has the unfortunate district perpetrated that while its immediate neighbours are coddled and enriched by State disbursements it should be so continuously ignored and left out in the cold? A few thousand pounds spent judiciously in erecting a not very extensive sea-wall along the north spit would turn the now dangerous bar into a deep and safe entrance. In the meantime if a few pounds could be spared for the purchase of a package or two of dynamite to be used for the purpose of blowing-up the wreck of the Ballina, which lies midway in the entrance of the harbour, and divides the channel, a little immediate improvement of the bar would doubtless ensue, and perhaps the masters of vessels trading to the port, combined with the inhabitants of the district, might rest contented for the present with such small mercies.

In conclusion, for the information of the many thousands of your readers, I will explain that Port Macquarie lies about 175 miles north of Sydney. The colony being so saturated with "Macquaries," some explanation is necessary; therefore, I will simply state that the locality I refer to is not East Macquarie nor West Macquarie, neither is it Lake Macquarie nor Macquarie Harbour; it is not Fort Macquarie nor Macquarie-place, nor does it aspire to be Macquarie-street; but in the course of time it will, as events march on, become what it should be, viz., the sanitorium and watering-place of Australia.

LOST AND SAVED.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I do not object to fair criticism, and I acknowledge that "A Lover of the Truth," in your issue of the 13th instant is entitled to a civil reply to his question, viz.,—"Does Mr. King wish us to believe that all the aborigines who have died without human teaching will be eternally lost."

Mr. King said nothing about the future destiny of the unenlightened aborigines; but he remembered the words of the Great Teacher,—"Go into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature, baptising them," &c.; and the very cogent observation of the great Apostle,—"How shall they hear without a preacher? and how shall they preach except they be sent?" Preaching or teaching embraces the human means employed, and these means are commanded to be exercised towards every creature throughout the world.

And, on moral grounds, perhaps there are few who will dispute the truth of our belief, that civilisation, education, and domestic habits are improvements on the savage life of the Australian blacks. Take the actual case of which I can speak from my own experience.

I walked out, one morning, into the Australian bush, and found eighteen aboriginal children in the wilderness in a state of absolute nudity; the most debased in habits and the least happy of all the creatures which the forest sustained. I lead them, with the full consent of their parents, to a comfortable home, under the care of a kind, thoughtful, and intelligent matron, where they were cared for and instructed as European children in their own happy home. And after seven years of careful instruction and judicious discipline I had the satisfaction of leading three several couples of those educated blacks up to the altar of God and hearing them pledge their vows of fidelity to each other, advisedly, reverently, and intelligently, in the presence of the Bishop of Adelaide, who performed the marriage ceremony for those six educated blacks in my Church at Fremantle on that morning.

Look at the picture of their childhood in the desert on the one hand, and then on that of their Christian married life on the mission farm on the other hand, O thou "lover of the truth," and shall we not agree that it was good for those children to have been taught the truths of Christianity—without our discussing the question of "the lost and the saved."

I am, &c.,
GEORGE KING, LL.D.

CALLAN PARK ASYLUM.

About an hour's drive from King-street by the Balmain omnibus deposits the visitor at the terminus within less than a minute's easy walk to the entrance-gate to the grounds of the Callan Park Lunatic Asylum. Arrived there, one naturally gives a sigh of relief on being freed from the inconvenient crowding incidental to omnibus travelling on a well patronised route. Not that this is because there happens to be a lunatic asylum at one end and the city at the other, there being no necessary relation between the two, but because the whole distance has within the past very few years become a thickly populated suburb. A stranger visiting the place for the first time would find it difficult to define the tortuous route, and if asked how he reached the goal might well answer, in the words of the poet, "Straight down the crooked lane, and all round the square." The asylum is built on 100 acres of high land, sloping prettily to the water at West Balmain, about three and a half miles distant from Sydney, the site commanding an extensive and beautiful prospect, embracing the Parramatta River, Ashfield, Burwood, and Five Dock—a view to which it may be said, without any invidious meaning, that distance lends enchantment. The aspect of the asylum from the public road does not give the spectator the dismal idea too often conveyed in the words "lunatic asylum." The buildings are prettily situated far back from the road, with ornamental faces and approaches capable of being made very attractive. There is abundant scope for the display of the landscape-gardener's art. The buildings consist of 17 blocks, so placed as to form a perfect square, covering an area of 10 acres of ground. They are built of freestone, each division consisting of three distinct parts. One block is for the administrative offices, and contains two wards—one for the sick, and the other for recent and acute cases. The second block consists of three pavilions, connected with the asylum by means of verandahs or corridors, intended for violent or noisy patients, the convalescent, and those in a better position in life. The length of verandahs aggregates one and a quarter miles, having a width of 9 feet. The grounds are enclosed by three and a half miles of fencing, and the area within walls amounts to 13½ acres. At the entrance to the grounds is a neat little lodge, and between it and the asylum extends a stretch of forest land, on which some "old inhabitants," though not very large ones, in the shape of trees, are still standing. This portion of the land has not yet been brought into perfect subjection to man, and the natural channels cut in the sandstone were running on the occasion of our visit like miniature mill-streams. The "old building," as it is termed, which is used for patients, is at present undergoing renovation, and its red tile roof shows conspicuously from the public roadway. The asylum proper, that is the new buildings, are enclosed with walls, but the back wall has been so placed that, whilst making the premises secure, it does not shut out the beautiful and extensive views. The cost of these buildings, including the original contract, which was let to Messrs. Low and Kerr in 1880, together with the extras, was £235,539, and this amount also included the cost of some cottages. The various buildings, with the exception of one cottage, have been completed, and are all ready for occupation, the only work now going on being the erection, at a cost of £2960, of a cottage for paying patients. This building will accommodate 12. The contract time for its completion expired on the 13th instant; but the probability is it will not be finished before the expiration of three or four months. Three smaller cottages were built on the female side; but this one could not be proceeded with at the same time on account of the ground being occupied. It is not at present intended to carry out any more works than those of levelling, ornamenting, and planting portions of the ground, which are now being proceeded with. Other works had been contemplated, but were abandoned in consequence of the Government deciding not to pull down the old building, but to utilise it at any rate for the present. When handed over by the contractors the building was nearly ready for occupation, but numerous fittings were required, and, according to the annual report of the Inspector-General of the Insane, there was considerable delay in the supply of the furniture. The ground was broken on February 11, 1880, and the first stone was laid on April 22, in the same year. On July 1, 1884, the first ward, known as No 3 ward, was opened, and about 50 male patients were drafted from the old building on the ground; towards the end of the year all the patients were transferred to the new wards, "the change being effected in a few days, and without any hitch," thanks to the energy and zeal of the officers and attendants. On the 19th December, 1884, the first transfer of women was made to the asylum, when 15 arrived from Gladesville, and from that time detachments have been continually received, until at the present there are 110 female patients and 303 males in Callan Park Asylum. These increases not only include drafts from Gladesville, but arrangements have been made under which this hospital receives the whole of the new cases of insanity occurring in the metropolitan district, except such as the friends of patients may prefer having sent to other institutions. During the months of November and December last year sixty-one patients were transferred to Callan Park from the temporary hospital for the insane at Cooma. All the male wards are occupied, though not fully, but three of the female wards are unoccupied. "The buildings will accommodate 766 patients, distributed as follows:—In the main hospital, 636—318 of each sex; in detached building, containing two wards for special class of male patients, 90; in cottages, 36; and in gate lodges, &c., 4." The number of buildings in the asylum is 30, with an area of four acres of roofing. The number of single rooms is 170. There are four padded and four panelled rooms, and 44 dormitories and day rooms. The bathing accommodation comprises 51 baths and 16 foot baths, and there is complete arrangement for meeting the sanitary requirements of so large an institution. In addition to these appliances communication throughout the asylum is facilitated by 45 wire pull-bells, 25 electric bells, and there also six telephones. The land is admirably situated for purposes of drainage, which has been provided for by a brick sewer 4 feet in length, and 2 feet 2 inches by 3 feet 3 inches in size; also by a brick sewer 1974 feet long, with dimensions of 2 feet 3 inches by 1 foot 6 inches; whilst the length of the sewer drain pipe is 8119 feet, and of the clean water pipe 11,881 feet. An ample supply of water has been provided by the excavation of two underground tanks, each 152 feet in length, 50 feet wide, and 20 feet 3 inches in depth, the tanks when filled containing together 1,886,452 gallons. There is a large water tower 100 feet high, which contains two large tanks for supplying water in case of fire. One of these tanks is at an elevation of 34 feet, contains 14,987 gallons, and weighs 67 tons; the second has an elevation of 74 feet, contains 14,250 gallons of water, the weight being 63¾ tons. The water is forced into them by a Targye pump in the boiler room, placed there for the express purpose. For supplying water over the premises there is a length of 11,886 feet of piping and 387 taps, and for supplying hot water there are 4380 feet of piping and 110 taps. The hot water is supplied from three large water-heaters in the boiler building, the water in them being heated by means of steam pipes. The internal economy of the establishment appears highly satisfactory. There is every effort made to conserve energy by the use of labour-saving machines, and in this respect the washhouses and laundry are well worth a visit. The washhouse contains two revolving washing machines, one dash-wheel, and three hydro-extractors, one fitted with bevel friction gear, the other two being what is known as the bevel cog-wheel. There are also four large boiling vats, in which the clothes are boiled by means of steam, 17 brick and cement washing troughs for both hot and cold water, and two wringers. The whole of these machines are worked by steam power. The laundry contains two mangles and one glosser, also worked by steam power, the power to drive the whole of the machinery in the washhouse and laundry being derived from the boiler-room by means of shafting and belts, the shafting being 287 feet long, carried through a tunnel 8 feet by 6 feet, and a shorter tunnel at right angles to the first, and about 40 feet long, of 4 feet by 6 feet dimensions. Attached to the washhouse is a large drying-room, fitted with 17 Bradford's patent drying horses. Each horse travels along a pair of rails, and is drawn out to have the clothes placed upon it for drying, when it is pushed back into its place, the outer end forming an iron door when the airer is in position. This keeps the hot air in, as, when all the airers are in their place the part occupied by the clothes is like an immense oven, the interior of which is heated by steam pipes, and so the clothes can be regularly and well dried, independently altogether of the state of the atmosphere. A steel coil, heated by the passage of steam through the pipes, is used for drying horsehair, or mattresses if need be. The laundry for the officers is distinct from that of the patients, and is similarly, though not so elaborately, fitted, with the exception that the wringers, washing machines, and mangles are worked by hand. In place of the extensive drying system attached to the patients' washhouse there is here a drying-closet with two radial drying-horses, with a furnace for heating the closet and the irons for the laundry. The kitchen is fitted with the most modern and complete appliances, not only for cooking the food in abundance but, by means of a large steam cutting-up table, for serving it up hot. The steam for pumping, as well as for other operations, is generated by three Cornish boilers of steel, and the steam for driving the washing machinery is from an eight horse-power horizontal engine. A chimney 101 feet high carries off all the smoke. In all these arrangements, where naturally danger from fire would be most looked for, one cannot but be struck with its absence. Indeed in going over the premises, not only here, but through the day rooms and dormitories, the idea suggests itself that a fire would almost starve from want of sustenance; there is so little woodwork about and so much freestone. Every attention appears to have been paid to the comfort and well-being of the patients. Their day-rooms are cosy and nice, rendered bright on the occasion of our visit by fires, where numbers of patients were scattered about the room, some reading, others conversing, two engaged in a game of billiards, and a few sitting apart nursing some mad phantasy of the brain, apparently oblivious of what was passing around them. In these "day rooms," where the patients thus pass the time, 25 superficial feet of space is allowed to each one, this being considered sufficient in view of the good ventilation, the yards open to the sea breeze, and the extensive verandah accommodation. In the large "associated dormitories," that is, those dormitories in which the patients are grouped as if in barracks, 50 superficial feet space is allowed for each one, and 60 cubic feet for ordinary patients in the corridors. In the dormitories for violent patients the allowance is 75 cubic feet, and the same in the corridors. The allowance in the dormitories is 80 cubic feet for each sick patient. In the "associated dormitories" each patient is provided with an iron stretcher with exceedingly comfortable mattress and abundance of warm clothing. These are for the ordinary class. The better and more orderly patients are in some instances placed in smaller dormitories, and provided with chests in which to keep their clothes. The appearance of the inmates is that of people who are well cared for, and the institution throughout is as clean as it could possibly be made. There are many means adopted for making the detention of these 413 people as homelike and enjoyable as possible. There is a comfortably furnished visitors' room, where they may see and converse with their friends; and a private room attached in which friends may be closeted free from the interruption of the presence of strangers. A chaplain's room provides similar accommodation for patients who may desire to speak in private with their spiritual adviser. Outdoor amusements are provided by cricket, lawn tennis, trips in the steam launch, picnics; and during the winter months by dances, concerts, &c. There is a fine amusement hall, and, in addition, billiards, chess, draughts, dominoes, and cards are provided; whilst there is a small but good library, and an abundance of newspapers. The recreation hall and church—for the same room answers both purposes—is a fine hall, 80 feet long by 40 wide, and on each side is a dining room of the same length but only 32 feet wide; the one for the males and the other for the females. These may, if necessary, be thrown into one large room by lifting rows of revolving iron shutters which form the sides of the interior of the church. Of the patients, the majority are non-paying, in other words, are supported wholly by the State, thus, while the total annual cost of Callan Park Asylum in 1884 was £8182, the amount collected for maintenance was only £643; but in this connection it must be borne in mind that a large number of patients have neither property of their own nor friends to contribute to their support. Some of the patients who are able assist in the work of the establishment, as in kitchen work and washing for instance. Others are employed in tailoring, carpentering, blacksmithing, and mattress making, and, although not doing everything required, make many of the articles used in the establishment. The ordinary patients have three meals per day, and those of the males who work receive half a pint of beer, with bread and cheese, for lunch, in addition to their regular dietary scale; or in place of beer they can have limejuice. The female patients who work, receive coffee and bread and cheese for luncheon, and tea in the afternoon. The patients are called up regularly every morning during summer at 6 o'clock, and at half-past 6 o'clock every winter's morning, retiring at 6 o'clock during winter, and 7 o'clock in summer time, but patients may obtain permission to remain up till 8 o'clock. The experience of the principal lunatic asylums in the world has been drawn upon in planning and carrying out the arrangements at Callan Park, and to the ordinary layman everything that could be reasonably expected has been done to ensure the quiet, the comfort, and the restoration to health of those unfortunate fellow colonists whose reason through some cause, having been dethroned, has led to the necessity for their detention.

SYDNEY JEWISH EDUCATION BOARD.

The annual general meeting and educational exposition of the above board was held at the New Masonic Hall, Castlereagh-street, on Sunday morning last. The president (Rev. A. B. Davis) occupied the chair. Proceedings were commenced with hymns sung by the pupils in a manner that reflected great credit on their teacher, Mr. L. Pulver, who presided at the harmonium. The examinations were then held, during which Mr. Pulver introduced his system—which met with hearty appreciation—of instruction in the alphabet and vowels by means of signs only. The Rev. A. B. Davis and the Hon. H. E. Cohen, as respectively the mover and seconder of the adoption of the report and balance-sheet, regretted the apathy evinced by a large majority of the parents of pupils who were absent on such an occasion. The following gentlemen were elected to the board for the following year:—President, Rev. A. B. Davis; vice-president, D. L. Levy, Esq.; treasurer, H. S. Levy, Esq.; secretary, I. Reginald Cohen, Esq.; committee of management, Hon. H. E. Cohen (M.L.A.), Messrs. G. J. Cohen (J.P.), I. L. Isaacs (J.P.), E. Meyer, S. Ackman, B. Marks, C. Cantor, and M. Menser; auditors, Messrs. L. Samuels and J. Collins. The meeting, after a vote of thanks to the chair, closed with the National Anthem by the children. The report read as follows:—

"Your committee present to the subscribers and public the third annual report and balance-sheet of the Sydney Jewish Education Board, and may fairly congratulate them on the success of the scheme which has now been in operation for nearly three years. They consider that whatever may have been lost in the religious atmosphere breathed in a school of their own, has been more than compensated by the far larger number of children who have benefited by the present mode of instruction, which must, likewise, have proved a greater convenience to the parents, who have been enabled to select a school within easy distance of their own dwellings. The roll of Jewish children at the Crown-street school alone has reached over 200, a positive proof of the popularity of present arrangements. It is also satisfactory to record that the attendance at the Sunday morning classes under our own management is nearly equal to that under the previous system. Your committee deem it necessary, in consequence of the large increase at the Crown-street Public school, to provide an assistant teacher, as it is impossible for one master, however zealous and competent, to do justice to so many pupils in the given time. Your committee, with deep regret, refer to the death of Hyman Isaacs, B.A., late master, whose earnestness in his labours was unmistakable. The children of the various schools, as a mark of their great esteem for him, have subscribed towards a monument to be erected over his remains. The vacancy has been filled by the engagement of Mr. Louis Pulver, who was selected from among a large number of candidates, and judging from what has already been achieved under his able discipline in so short a time, and from the interest he takes in the religious and mental culture of his pupils, his appointment will doubtless be productive of excellent results. Bequests have been received from the executors of the late Montague Levy for £50, and of the late Hon. L. W. Levy for £100; and your committee have decided that bequests and donations of £50 and upwards shall be permanently invested. In order, however, to carry this into practical effect, it will be at once recognised that subscriptions should be increased, for it must be borne in mind that the addition to our teaching staff will necessitate a larger expenditure than hitherto. By reference to last year's balance-sheet it is observable that the income of this year (excluding bequests) is considerably less than that of preceding year, and this is due to the withdrawal of many subscribers, who are now asked to continue same. Your committee confidently look forward to a marked increase in the finances of the institution, thereby securing more permanent advantages. During the absence of the hon. secretary from the colonies the duties were efficiently carried out by Mr. M. Menser, to whom the committee tender their thanks for services rendered. Before closing this report, it is to be regretted that many of the pupils are allowed to absent themselves from school for apparently the most trivial reasons, and that the performance of home-work has been very rarely insisted on by their parents. It is to be hoped, however, that with the improved organisation these disadvantages may cease; for it cannot be questioned that our community appreciate the value of the religious and Hebrew training imparted through the medium of this board. It will be the duty of this meeting to elect a committee of management and auditors for the ensuing year."

THE TRAMWAYS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—There can be no doubt that our present system of tramfares is most unsatisfactory, both in regard to the fares themselves and the mode of collecting them. I do not propose to offer any opinion upon the scale of charges further than to suggest that short sections at penny fares would prove more remunerative to the Government than either of the schemes already tried, the last of which has proved such an egregious failure. What I wish to draw attention to is the absurd practice of collecting fares either in cash or by ticket, and enforcing a fine of about fifty per cent. on the ordinary rate on those who pay in cash. As the tramguards are not allowed to sell tickets, the immediate result of this is that if an intending passenger does not happen to be near a shop where tickets are for sale, and only intends to travel a short distance, he probably resents the imposition and walks.

A system I have seen in practice on some European tramways appears to me to be far superior to ours. Each guard has a supply of tickets for sale, and is furnished with a punch so constructed that each time it is used a gong sounds, and a register records the fare—very similar in these particulars to the dials fixed on the coats of our guards. If a passenger offers a ticket in payment of his fare, the guard punches it and returns it to him. If, on the other hand, the fare is paid in cash, the guard punches one of his own tickets and gives it to the passenger, the gong sounding each time the punch is used. By this method passengers pay the same amount whether by cash or tickets, and tickets once used cannot be presented again. The check on the guards is as good as, if not better than, it is with us, as they are necessarily bound to punch each ticket before giving it to a passenger, and the act of punching records the payment of the fare. The instrument is suspended from the belt by a short strap when not in use.

I presume that the chief objection on the part of the authorities to the sale of tickets by guards on our tramways is the difficulty of checking the number sold, otherwise I cannot see why the prohibition should exist. The system I have described fully meets this difficulty, as the same ticket cannot be sold twice, and it has the still greater advantage of creating a uniform tariff. It is easily understood, and as easily worked, and does not cause the petty annoyances of our present anomalous scheme. Another objection may be that perhaps much of the guards' time would be employed in selling tickets, but in the tramways I have spoken of this is not the case; and if the suggestion of a correspondent in Friday's issue of the Herald were carried into effect, namely, that purchasers of a batch of tickets could obtain them at a slight discount, as in South Australia, all regular passengers would buy their tickets beforehand, and only casual passengers would buy them in trams.

I am, &c.,
THOMAS HUGHES.

SOMETHING ABOUT SKIN DISEASES.—What cures of blood and skin diseases, and scalp affections with loss of hair, can compare with those of the Hon. Wm. Taylor, Boston, State Senator of Massachusetts; B. E. Carpenter, Henderson, N.Y.; Alderman Tucker, Boston; Will. M'Donald, 2541, Dearborn-street, Chicago; F. H. Drake, Esq., Detroit, and many others from infancy to old age, details of which may be found in future editions of this paper, and all of which were properly and permanently cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES? We will leave it to the editor of this paper to say whether stronger testimony has ever been published in favour of any other medicine.—[ADVT.]

FEMALE BEAUTY.—Give to your face, neck, arms, and hands fascinating beauty, brilliancy, and charming fragrance of the lily and the rose, by the application of Bridal Bouquet Bloom. INSTITUTE OF ARCHITECTS.

The annual general meeting of the Institute of Architects of New South Wales was held last evening, under the presidency of Mr. Thomas Rowe.

The Secretary (Mr. P. Fletcher Watson) read the annual report, in which reference was made to the paper on the "White Ant," read by Mr. Cyril Blacket, and to that on the "Architecture of Japan," read by Mr. John Smedley. A most important step had been taken during the year by the appointment of Mr. P. Fletcher Watson as secretary to the institute, and it was hoped that the labours of that gentleman would result to the advantage of the institute. A list of new fellows and associates having been given, the report proceeded to state that the society had made arrangements for the holding of a conference on sanitation. At the end of last year there was a credit balance of £55, but the cash now in hands amounted to £67 6s. 9d. The roll of the institute showed that there were now 37 fellows and 5 associates.

The report having been adopted, the election of officers took place, and resulted in the choice of the following gentlemen:—President, Mr. Thomas Rowe; Vice-President, Mr. Cyril Blacket; hon. treasurer, Mr. James M'Donald; hon. secretary, Mr. John Smedley; committee, Messrs. H. C. Kent, W. Martin, and J. Dixon-Chater.

A discussion took place with reference to the proposed conference on sanitation, and a circular and code of questions to be submitted to various municipalities were adopted. It was pointed out that since the institute had initiated a movement with a view to the holding of a conference regarding sanitation, the Royal Society had taken steps with a view to holding a gathering of a similar nature. Some of the members considered that very little would be gained by two bodies holding conferences of a similar nature, and it was eventually resolved that the president and secretary be authorised to communicate with the Royal Society, and tender the co-operation of the institute in the movement undertaken by the Royal Society.

At a later hour of the evening the members of the institute, to the number of 25, assembled at dinner at the refreshment rooms of Mr. Baumann, in Pitt-street, and spent three hours in an exceedingly pleasant manner. The chair was occupied by the president. The toast of "The Queen" having been loyally honoured,

Mr. M'DONALD, in a brief speech, proposed,—"Success to the Institute of Architects of New South Wales." It was, he said, a toast which needed no eloquence to command it, and one which in a company such as that he saw around him was bound to be received with the enthusiasm it deserved. (Applause.) Their society deserved to succeed, and the success of it could hardly fail to confer benefits of no small importance, not only upon the colony generally, but upon the city in particular. When they met they had not any old historic buildings to discuss; but they found some profit in the reading of papers and the discussion which followed the reading of them. He asked them, in conclusion, to drink in bumpers the toast he had just proposed.

The toast having been drunk with much cordiality,

Mr. J. SMEDLEY, who rose to acknowledge it, said he was sure they must congratulate themselves upon the success which they had so far attained, and upon the position that institute now held. (Hear, hear.) Like most institutions of the kind, it had had difficulties to contend with; but with a steady perseverance and firm resolve on the part of its office-bearers and members, the time would soon come when their efforts would be crowned with success, and their laws and customs be the recognised rules of their profession. (Applause.) The rapid advance of architectural works in the colony was recognised, and was gradually raising the city to one of importance in regard to the public and commercial buildings. They, he was glad to say, saw around them the buildings of nearly a century ago succumbing to a new and progressive principle, and expensive and commodious premises being erected for the extended work of the community. With those inducements their class of architects must advance to meet the new order of things, and open fresh scope for talent and constructive ability. It would be his earnest wish to see that institute the means of cultivating and encouraging their young students to increased exertions to become thoroughly proficient in their business. The action of their president in offering a gold medal for the best work in architecture was a move in the right direction. (Applause.) The medal would, he thought, be well contested for, and an honour to the pupil who might prove successful. He hoped the time was not far distant when the institution would be in a position to also give encouragement in a similar way, either in the form of the institute's medal or that of a travelling studentship. (Applause.) What the profession to some extent lacked, was, he thought, unity, but he felt assured that they would eventually get that. Their body was becoming too numerous to remain much longer without some governing power to appeal to in cases of emergency, and he thought that the calling into existence of such a power would lead to the profession occupying an even more honourable position than it did at present. (Hear, hear.)

The toasts of the "Royal Institute of British Architects," the "President," the "Ladies," the "Visitors," and the "Press," were also honoured.

LECTURE.

In connection with the Board of Technical Education, on Thursday evening, Mr. Edwin Quayle delivered in the large hall of the Technical College the sixth of a series of lectures on scientific instruments. The subject of the lecture was the spectroscope. After speaking of the comparatively recent discovery of the spectroscope as a mode of analysis, the lecturer said that for a long period it had been known that certain chemical substances, when strongly heated in a colourless flame, imparted to that flame a peculiar colour. Noting then that a certain substance imparted a certain colour to the flame, its presence might thus be detected; but if many such substances were present the colours became blended, thus rendering it impossible to distinguish the colour characteristic of each substance. By allowing the rays of coloured light to fall upon a glass prism, however, the light would be refracted, and each differently coloured ray would be refracted in a different degree. Thus, white light in passing through a glass prism was decomposed into the elementary colours—violet, indigo, blue, green, yellow, orange, and red—composing it; and the band of light thus obtained was termed the spectrum. Red was the least refracted, and violet the most refracted. Upon this decomposition of white light was founded the theory of colours. Objects were themselves devoid of colour, but when placed in white light they absorbed the rays of one or more colours and reflected the rest, the object appearing to be of the colour produced by the ray or mixture of rays reflected by it. If the rays from a coloured flame were allowed to fall through a narrow slit upon a prism, the light thus refracted differed essentially from white light, inasmuch as it consisted of a particular set of rays only, each differently coloured flame giving a spectrum, in which were one or more narrow bright-coloured lines on a dark ground. Thus, sodium gave a bright yellow line in the spectrum, while potassium gave a red and a purple line. These peculiar lines were always produced by the same chemical elements, and by no other known substance. Their position in the spectrum being always the same, they were thus able to detect the presence of certain substances. And this might be done when a number of substances were mixed together, by observing the presence or absence of the bright line or lines characteristic of the substance whose presence they desired to detect. This method of analysis, termed "spectrum analysis," was an exceedingly delicate one, as a portion of a sodium salt less than the 180,000,000th part of a grain could be detected, and a portion of a salt of lithium less than the 6,000,000th part of a grain might also be detected. Five new metals had been discovered by spectrum analysis, and in many ways it was an important aid in chemical research. The property of imparting colour to a flame which thus gave a characteristic spectrum, was possessed by every elementary substance, whether metal, solid, liquid, or gas. In the case of many metals and permanent gases an electric spark was made use of to raise their temperature to the point at which their vapour became luminous. The lecturer then described the construction of the spectroscope, and its method of use. Speaking next of the spectrum of sunlight the lecturer said that certain dark lines, varying in width and in intensity, might be seen crossing the band of coloured rays termed the solar spectrum. These lines extended throughout the length of the spectrum, and always occupied the same relative position. From this fact, and also from the fact that in the spectra of the moon and planets the same lines were to be seen—the light of the moon being reflected sunlight—the conclusion had been arrived at that the dark lines were produced by the sun itself. Careful comparisons showed that the bright lines in the spectrum of iron, sodium, magnesium, etc., coincided exactly in position, width, and intensity with certain dark lines in the sun. Further observations and experiments rendered the fact apparent that the dark lines in the solar spectrum were caused by the passage of intense white light through the glowing vapour of the metals in the sun's atmosphere. This white light proceeded from the strongly heated masses in the sun's interior, and were it not for the passage of the light through the glowing vaporous metals in the sun's atmosphere the lines in the solar spectrum would not appear as dark ones, but would resemble the spectra of metals seen in the ordinary way. So far, 17 metals and two gases had been discovered in the sun's atmosphere, and similar methods of observation had been applied to the study of the chemical composition of the stars. Referring then to the spectroscope as applied to the microscope, the lecturer contrasted the two methods of analysis; pointing out the great difference which existed between spectrum analysis proper and spectrum analysis as applied to the microscope. In the first case it was the analysis of emitted light, while in the latter case it was the analysis of light which had been modified by transmission through the object; and it was the absence, and not the presence, of particular rays which made the spectra characteristic of different substances. The spectroscope was sufficient for all general purposes in spectrum analysis, but it was also necessary to have an instrument by means of which spectra of exceedingly minute quantities of material could be examined, compared side by side with other spectra, and measured with great accuracy. The lecturer then described the instrument used for this purpose, the micro-spectroscope; explaining also the method of using it. The lecture was illustrated by means of diagrams, apparatus, &c., and was attended by a very large audience, many of whom remained at the close of the lecture to ask various questions and to see the apparatus.

For London: Mr. F. Marshall.

The Orient Company's R.M.S. Potosi sailed from Plymouth on the 12th instant, and the R.M.S. Iberia sailed from Suez on the 11th instant, for Australian ports.

The Anglo-Australasian Company's steamship Port Phillip, from London, via Hobart and Melbourne, entered the Heads at a quarter past 7 o'clock yesterday morning, and after being granted pratique, was taken up to a berth at the Grafton wharf. The Port Phillip took her departure from Gravesend on April 10, at 9 a.m., and had foggy weather in the Channel, and variable weather thence to Madeira, where she arrived on the 16th. Next day the N.E. trades, which were light, were picked up, and lasted till near the Equator, which was crossed on the 26th. Strong S.E. winds then set in and continued till May 5. The meridian of the Cape of Good Hope was crossed on May 10 in lat. 38·45 S.; and on May 13 a heavy easterly gale, accompanied by a high confused sea, was encountered, during which the steamer had to be kept at half-speed. The winds in making the easting were of little use to the vessel, and progress in consequence was slow. The Port Phillip arrived at Hobart on the 2nd instant, and after landing passengers and cargo left again at 4 p.m. on the 3rd. Heavy N.W. gales were experienced in crossing the straits, and the vessel did not reach Hobson's Bay until the 6th. Passengers and cargo having been landed, the Port Phillip resumed her voyage to Sydney on the 12th instant at 7 a.m., cleared Port Phillip Heads at 10.44 a.m., and arrived as stated. She had thick foggy weather to Wilson's Promontory, variable squally weather and heavy easterly sea thence till the 14th, and light variable winds and heavy easterly swell from that time till arrival. Among the passengers by the Port Phillip is Captain Peter, who intends to settle in Sydney. He is wellknown in shipping circles here, having been commander of the ship Duchess of Edinburgh.

The steamer Murray crossed the Manning bar at 9.30 a.m. on the 14th instant, passed Seal Rocks at 1.15 p.m., and entered Sydney Heads at 2 a.m. on the 15th. Experienced light easterly winds and smooth sea. Cargo: 1122 bags maize, 30 hides, 87 pigs, 12 coops poultry, 20 cases eggs, 14 bags bones, 15 cases butter, 12 bags pumpkins, 2 bales wool, 3 bags oysters.

The Orient steamship Chimborazo, with Government immigrants, resumed her voyage from Cape Town on the 11th instant, "all well" on board.

The M.M. Company's steamship Dupleix arrived in port early yesterday morning after a passage of 86 hours from Noumea, with mails, passengers, and cargo. The Dupleix sailed on the 11th instant at 1 p.m., and had moderate winds and weather during the passage across. She is to be berthed at the company's wharf, Circular Quay, after the departure of the Yarra.

The ship Lorenzo is now alongside of Mort's Wharf, Waterview Bay, discharging her cargo of timber, preparatory to being taken into dock.

The steamer Buninyong left Melbourne at 2.30 p.m. on the 12th instant, cleared Port Phillip Heads at 6.35 p.m., and arrived in Sydney at 1.30 a.m. on the 15th. Experienced moderate variable winds and cloudy weather to Gabo Island: thence to arrival fresh head winds and fine weather, with very heavy N.E. swell.

The barque Luxor was berthed at the Circular Quay yesterday.

The Press Association states the following is a complete list of the ships of the mercantile marine already taken up by the Admiralty as armed cruisers:—Oregon, America, Arizona, Umbria, Massilia, Lusitania, Coptic, Britannia, Moor, Mexican, Pembroke Castle, Glenogle, India, Alaska, Sterling Castle, and Energia. Negotiations are also proceeding for the taking over of four other vessels.

The Admiralty have decided on constructing a flotilla of gunboats of a special character, designed to operate with fleets of war ships when the latter are subject to torpedo attack. These gunboats will be of the Childers type, but somewhat larger. They are to be 125 feet in length, and are to have a speed of 19 knots per hour; in other words, they will be able to steam more than 1000 miles at the rate of from 10 to 12 knots without recoaling. They are to be armed with light shell guns for the destruction of torpedo boats. A number of these vessels are understood to have been ordered. They can be built rapidly, and their cost will be defrayed out of the vote of credit.

In the Naval Architecture Department of the International Inventions Exhibition, London (says Fairplay), a model will be shown of Tyzack's system for working anchors, successfully fitted during last year, with the sanction of Lloyd's committee, to several steamers, by Mr. Tyzack, South Shields. It dispenses with crane, davits, and other gear on ship's forecastle for handling anchors, and consists in making the ordinary shaped circular hawsepipes rather more diameter than customary, into which the anchors are drawn direct by windlass, while they stow themselves automatically in a secure position. The anchors are under the easy control of one man with a steam windlass, who without further assistance can "let go," "heave up," and "stow" them in a few seconds. A noteworthy instance of the necessity of such a system is made very clear in a letter shown to us from Captain Pattinger, who, while in command of the large steamer Albano, on a voyage to America, in one of the late severe storms, had his strong wrought-iron anchor crane broken and carried away by a heavy Atlantic sea. The loss would have rendered it impossible to work anchors in the ordinary way without rigging up some appliance for the purpose; but this steamer being fitted with a Tyzack's patent anchor, carried in the hawsepipe as described, was ready at any moment to drop her anchor on arrival. As showing that this system is being appreciated, it may be stated that a number of steamers building, some of exceptionally large tonnage, are specified to have their anchors fitted to work in this manner.

The Juno, Norwegian ship, from Bergen, Norway, to Melbourne, was (says the Australasian Shipping News) found to be on fire on April 7, in latitude 37·44 S., longitude 11·30 E., and on the following day the flames burst through the decks, so that she had to be abandoned in such haste that they could only secure a keg or two of water and a few biscuits, but no compass. On the 16th they sighted land near Port Nolloth, Cape Colony, and ran the boat ashore, but in doing so all in her were drowned with the exception of the mate, two of the crew, and a passenger.

The steamer Ly-ee-Moon left Williamstown at 3.30 p.m., and cleared Hobson's Bay at 6 p.m. on the 13th: rounded W. Promontory at 2.45 a.m., and entered the Heads at 7.15 p.m. on the 15th. Experienced moderate and fresh northerly and N.E. winds from Williamstown to Gabo Island, thence to port moderate and fresh northerly and N.N.W. winds and head sea, with dull, cloudy weather, throughout the passage.

The s.s. Governor Blackall left Rockhampton at 8.30 a.m. on the 11th instant, called at Gladstone and Bundaberg, and arrived at Brisbane at 6 p.m. on the 13th; left again at 10.30 p.m. same day, passed Cape Byron at noon on the 14th, Smoky Cape at 3 a.m. on the 15th, entered the Heads at 9.30 p.m., and arrived at the wharf at 10 p.m. The Governor Blackall had moderate N.E. winds from Rockhampton to Sandy Cape, and thence strong easterly gale with thick weather to Cape Moreton. During the gale the ship was put under easy steam for six hours. From Brisbane to Cape Hawke moderate northerly winds were experienced, and from thence to arrival fresh W.S.W. winds, with fine weather.

A four-masted ship passed Wilson's Promontory at 9.35 a.m. yesterday, bound outwards.

A barque passed Seal Rocks at 11.30 a.m. yesterday, bound south.

The Orient Company's R.M.S. Cuzco passed Green Cape yesterday at 11.30 a.m., and should therefore arrive here early this morning.

To-day the steamer Bombay will move from the Orient Company's Wharf, Circular Quay, to the stream, and the R.M.S. Cuzco will be berthed there on arrival.

The ship Siren is to be berthed at Dalton's wharf to-day.

The Tasmanian Steam Navigation Company's steamer Corinna arrived at Launceston at 1 p.m. on Sunday.

The A. S. N. Company's steamship Ranelagh, which has just received a careful overhaul at the company's works, Pyrmont, is to be despatched to Melbourne this afternoon, in place of the unfortunate Cahors.

The German frigate Gneisenau left the harbour yesterday afternoon, clearing the Heads at a quarter past 2 p.m.

The barque Luxor, from New York, was yesterday berthed at the Circular Quay.

News has been received that the well-known coasting schooner Little Pet went on Bellambi Reef, near Wollongong, at 3 o'clock last Saturday night, and became a total wreck, the vessel completely disappearing. All hands were saved by the local steamtug Despatch. The Little Pet was a wooden vessel of 78 tons register, and was built at Shields in 1851. She was owned by Mr. William M. Speer.

The ship Nineveh is to-day to be moved from Neutral Bay to Johnston's Bay, where she will discharge her cargo of timber.

The barque Nighthawk, from Lyttelton with produce, will be taken alongside of the Victoria Wharf to-day.

The ship Clan Mackenzie is to towed to Newcastle this evening.

The barque Nautilus is to be taken in tow for Newcastle this evening. She loads coal there for Hobart.

From the Australasian Insurance and Banking Record for June we learn that the Australasian bank averages show deposits for the quarter ended March 31 amounting to £83,897,775, an increase of £3,539,739 for the quarter, and £8,935,358 for the year; the quarter's increase in the deposits including £2,441,301 not bearing interest and £1,085,287 in those bearing interest. The average advances amounted to £100,775,053, an increase of £2,955,150 for the quarter, and £8,254,078 for the year. The average of coin and bullion held in the quarter ended 31st March reached £14,864,623, an increase for the quarter of £681,232, and for the year of £3,524,187.

Our London correspondent informs us that the report for presentation at the half-yearly meeting of the London Chartered Bank of Australia showed that the available profits for the half-year ended 31st December last amounted to £57,855 14s. 5d., out of which the court of directors recommended that a dividend at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum be paid, absorbing £30,000; that there be added to reserve fund (making £60,000) £20,000; and that the balance (£7855) be carried forward to next half-year.

In the Import markets business has lapsed into a very stagnant condition. On the eve of stocktaking, buyers will not operate in anything beyond mere sorting-up lines; the position to-day being aggravated somewhat by the inclement weather. The demand for breadstuffs was weak, the sale of nothing beyond trade lines being quoted, at from £8 to £9 5s. for ordinary brands: special manufactures at £8 10s. to £9. A considerable quantity of New Zealand wheat is now finding its way to this market, best samples being worth 3s. 5d.; Australian in demand at 3s. 10d. For tea the inquiry has to a great extent subsided, and the quittance of little beyond small lines is looked for pending the receipt of the new season's crop, by which time, however, stocks are likely to be greatly reduced. The sugar market is getting bare of sugars outside the company's makes, business done in Mauritius white at up to £30. The candle market is, if anything, a shade weaker, and 8½d. is a full price for D.R.J.'s in parcels. In other grocery goods, we do not hear of any business of importance or change in value. Brewers' goods are in very limited request, and prices low except of crystals, which are scarce and dear. Our English files report a firmer hop-market. Mr. M. B. Tate, writing on the 7th May, observes:—

"Within the last week prices have hardened all round, and it may be fairly assumed that they will go no lower; on the contrary, I regard it as far more probable that a steady reaction will set in; meanwhile, should anything seriously affecting the prospect of the coming crops happen, either here or abroad, prices would go up very considerably. Hence, with stocks reduced, prospects doubtful, and prices low, it would be surprising were consumers to allow the present favourable opportunity to pass by of stocking-up, and thereby protecting themselves against future contingencies. Summing up this report with a due regard to the position all round, I look for better prices, with a complete clearance of both new and yearling before the next crop can be got to market. To-day's quotations are as follows: East and mid-Kent, from £5 10s. to £6; Weald of Kent, £4 4s. to £5; Sussex, £3 15s. to £4 4s.; American State (Californian), £3 10s. to £4 10s.; Bavarian, £2 16s. to £4 10s.; Belgian, £2 10s. to £2 12s."

In liquors the trade is mostly in small lines. Large shipments of Dagger stout now landing have nearly all been purchased, the bulk of them for Queensland. More inquiry is noted for high-class brandy: Hennessy's still quoted at late rates. Geneva was done at 12s. 9d., which is a full quotation for anything like a parcel. Lowndes' rum, 8s. 10d. in hogsheads and quarters. Red Heart rum done at 22s. Large "to arrive" sales of Robertson's whisky are mentioned, a number of shipments having been taken up at agents' quotations. In wines we notice the quittance of a quantity of Offley's port at current rates. In metals the day's trade disclosed little of special interest; Muntz's is rather lower, 6½d. being outside value of a parcel. Other metals are unaltered in price. The trade in oils was devoid of any new feature, the sales transpiring being inconsiderable. The scarcity of Blundell and Spence's still causes the maintenance of prices. The position of the timber market can hardly be improved by the two cargoes whose arrival was reported this morning.

Messrs. Harris and Ackman will offer at auction to-morrow (Tuesday) morning a catalogue of groceries, &c.

Messrs. Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Limited, held their fortnightly sale of wool to-day, and brought forward a catalogue of 187 bales. There was a rather improved demand for all offered, the few lines of felmongered meeting with good competition. Altogether 162 were sold, at 6d. to 7½d. for greasy, 13d. to 15½d. for fair scoured, and 7d. to 11d. for low and medium, the following being the principal lots sold:—Scoured: JB conjoined J, 38 at 13d. to 15½d.; Ifield, 14 at 9½d. to 15d.; Paddington, 10 at 7½d. to 14½d.; WM over New England, 8 at 7d. to 13½d.; GIE, 11 at 7½d. to 9d. Greasy: G and T over Quitoe, 9 at 7½d.; JRD over CA, 11 at 6¾d.; ABC, 14 (scoured) at 7½d. Sheepskins sold fully at about late rates; demand very fair. The bulk of 121 lots was sold at 4d. to 5d. for fair to good, 3½d. to 3¾d. medium, and 1½d. to 2½d. for pelts and short woolled.

At the Homebush fat stock sales to-day, 791 head of cattle were yarded, and sold at about late rates. Only 5817 sheep were penned; and, owing to the smallness of the supply, the market was rather firmer.

The following is a return of colonial spirits at the bonded distilleries for the week ended Friday, 12th June, 1885, in proof gallons:—

Description of stock, rum; stock in store June 5, 1885, 5872; since distilled, 5220; issued for bond, 7787; total issues during the week, 7787; rate of duty, 12s.; stock in store June 5, 1885, 3305.

A return of foreign sugar at the bonded refineries for the week ended Friday, 12th June, gives the following details:—

Stock, June 5, 1885, 9355 tons 11cwt. 0qr. 4lb.; issued during week (duty paid), 44 tons 10cwt. 2qr. 13lb.—export, 1 ton: total issues, 45 tons 10cwt. 2qr. 13lb.; stock June 12, 1885, 9310 tons 0cwt. 1qr. 19lb.

By the incoming mail we have received London files to the 8th May. The money market was getting weaker day by day, the more pacific aspect of the political situation having already caused a general decline in the discount rates, and some improvement in the value of stocks. Closing rates for bank stocks were:—New South Wales, 64-66; Australasia, 87-89; English, Scottish, and Australian, 30½-31½; London Chartered of Australia, 19½-20½; New Zealand, 25½-26½; Queensland National, 10-11; Union of Australia, 68-70.

The following was the Customs revenue received to-day:—

Spirits, £2252 14s. 8d.; wine (still), £40 10s.; wine (sparkling), £2 10s.; ale, porter, and beer in bottles), £73 19s. 9d.; tobacco and snuff, £287 17s.; cigars, £106 10s.; tea, £481 14s. 9d.; coffee, £6; sugar (unrefined), £216 0s. 4d.; rice, £98 6s. 1d.; dried fruits, £288 3s. 6d.; malt, £12 9s.; hops, £1 5s.; specific duty, £749 17s. 1d.; harbour and light rates, £60 0s. 8d.; pilotage—Sydney, £19 8s.; Chinese restriction, £120; fisheries royalty, £8 5s.; total, £4825 10s. 10d.

LATEST COMMERCIAL TELEGRAMS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, June 13.

The wool market is weaker. Crossbreds have lost the advance obtained at the opening sales. Merinos are ½d. to 1d. below the April rates. Since the commencement of the present series, 104,000 bales have been catalogued, of which quantity 14,000 bales were withdrawn from sale.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Victorian Share Report.—Sales: Federal Bank, 52s. 6d.; Commercial Bank, £6 18s. 6d.; Union Bank, £68; Perkins' Brewery, 30s. 6d.; Melbourne Tramway and Omnibus, 24s. 9d., 24s. 10d.; Barrier Ranges Silver M. A., 39s. 6d. and 42s. 6d. (terms); Duke (Timor), 2s. 6d.; Egerton, 13s. 6d., 14s.; Lone Hand, 92s.; Long Tunnel Extended, £7, £7 1s., £7 2s. 6d.; Madame Berry, £17 17s.: North Band and Burton, 3s. 1d., 3s. 5d.; United Devonshire, 45s. 9d., 46s.; Star of the East, 3s. 8d., 4s.

The breadstuffs market was quiet to-day, and wheat shows little change. Several lots were sold at from 3s. 10½d. to 3s. 10¾d., but it was getting difficult to obtain the fraction. The flour market was dull, country lots moving off at from £7 10s. to £7 15s. There was a strong enquiry for oats, with light stocks. New Zealand and best Victorian sold up to 3s. 0½d. There was a good demand for prime malting barley. Maize was unchanged, at 4s. 1d.; bran was in request, at 12½d.; and pollard was moving off at 13d. in trade lots. Sugars remain steady, and only sales for immediate requirements were carried out. A parcel of 40 bags of Mauritius whites was quitted at late rates. Teas were moving off freely at full rates. Fruits were commanding considerable attention, and sultanas were taken up at 5d.

ADELAIDE, Monday.

Wheat is quiet at 3s. 7d. to 3s. 8d. for shipping parcels. Flour is unchanged, and the market is depressed.

The Sydney Morning Herald.

TUESDAY, JUNE 16, 1885.

Lord Salisbury has undertaken to form a Government, and he will probably succeed. It is intimated that the Conservatives are quite ready to take office, and this is no more than was expected. From the fifteen or twenty motions of censure which have been hurled at the Liberals, the natural conclusion is that the Conservatives have been ready to take office for some time past. It may also be presumed that any Government which Lord Salisbury may be able to form will have a compact and a consistent following. The Conservatives have their weaknesses, but they are not rent by divisions. Any fighting they may undertake will be done shoulder to shoulder. And in the one point in which the Tories are strong the Liberals have been weak. The Liberal party is divided into three separate, and in some respects hostile, sections. There is the section that pins its faith to Mr. Gladstone, and has never deserted him; but there is the Radical section, which, though professing allegiance to the late Premier, has on more than one occasion not only resisted his measures, but condemned them. And besides the Liberals proper and the Radicals there are the Whigs, who have really less in common with the Radicals than they have with the Tories. It is not unlikely, indeed, that the new Tory Government may have a Whig element in it: it is extremely probable that it will find a sprinkling of Whig supporters. But if the Tories should fail to attract outsiders, for all practical purposes they will agree among themselves. They have not always been a happy family. Lord Salisbury has had his difficulties with Lord Randolph Churchill, and both have had fault to find with Sir Stafford Northcote. But, however they may differ among themselves, in the presence of the foe they will be a solid phalanx.

Nor is it safe to predict that, however the Tories may band together, they will not succeed. That they will not secure a majority in the present House of Commons is likely, although that is by no means certain. The majority that turned Mr. Gladstone out may consistently enough decide to keep Lord Salisbury in. But if the general rule is followed the present session will close next month, and as the Franchise and the Redistribution Bills are through both Houses, the expectation is that the new constituencies will be appealed to in November. It is predicted that the result of the appeal will be a triumphant majority for the Liberals; but this is one of the things in regard to which it is safest not to prophesy until after the event. No one knows how the new county voters will act. It is in the towns and not in the country districts that Liberalism is strong. The Tories were victorious at the ballot-boxes eleven years ago, and they have about as much reason for hoping for a victory now as they had then. In politics, as well as in everything else, people like change. In domestic matters, at least, Liberalism is restless and feverish, and after a time the electors get weary of new legislation and sigh for "a policy of silence and consideration." Nor must it be forgotten that one or two of Mr. Gladstone's wars have not been popular, and that the Tories have succeeded in convincing a large number of people that, in regard to Central Asia, the Liberal Government has been hoodwinked by Russia, and that in the game of diplomacy it has been overmatched by Germany. Many Radical politicians believe that in foreign affairs the Tories are better managers than the Liberals. It may be true that the Conservatives are logically committed to go to war with Russia, to renew the Irish Crimes Act, and to find a substitute for the beer and spirit proposals which they have succeeded in getting the House of Commons to reject. But it does not follow that because they are logically committed to do these things they will do them. After denouncing the Russians in good set phraseology seven years ago, Lord Salisbury made a secret agreement with them, and what he did then he would of course do now. As to the Home Rulers, we already hear that, after clamouring for strong rule in Ireland, and charging the Liberals with trimming their sails to catch the Irish breezes, the younger Conservatives are urging the party to take office without insisting on the renewal of the Irish Crimes Act. We are also told that by way of avoiding the financial difficulty they propose that a loan take the place of fresh taxation. This is quite in accordance with the Conservative policy, which, instead of providing for expenditure as it arose, was to accumulate deficits, and leave them for the Liberals to clear off.

Within a certain limit, to espouse one policy in opposition and another in power has also been the manner of the English Tories. The Conservatives will insist on maintaining, if needs be on increasing, the prerogatives of the Crown; they will resist the attempt to increase the burdens on land, and they will object to any interference with the powers of the House of Lords. But beyond these lines they will be ready to adapt their policy to the exigency or exigencies of the moment. They will advocate free trade if that should be necessary, and when it is not necessary they will advocate protection. They will flatter the working-man when the doing so serves their purpose, and when it does not they will declare that the working-man is not to be trusted. In 1865 Lord Beaconsfield maintained that the franchise ought not to be lowered, and in 1866 he opposed and assisted to defeat the bill in which Mr. Gladstone proposed to lower it; but in 1867 he brought in a bill the essence of which was the very bill of Mr. Gladstone's which he had helped to throw out the year before; and not only was this done without acknowledgment, Lord Beaconsfield maintained that the principles of the bill were his principles, and not those of Mr. Gladstone at all. It may be said that such a policy is an inconsistent one, but in reality it is the opposite of that. Lord Beaconsfield's doctrine was that, since "the people have their passions," "it is even the duty of public men occasionally to adopt sentiments with which they do not sympathise, because the people must have leaders." This is the doctrine of Tory Democracy which Lord Beaconsfield proclaimed, and upon which, according to statesmen like Lord Randolph Churchill, the safety of England depends. But even Lord Beaconsfield failed to convince, however successfully he allured, the British public; and in this respect the inferior men who have taken his place are not likely to be more fortunate than he was. English Conservatism may be victorious for a time, but it will have to change its own principles, or those of the English people, before its victory will be a permanent one. During the last fifty years the Conservatives have been in power about fifteen years, and in only a part of those years have they had a clear working majority. Nor is it difficult to get at the source of Conservative misfortunes. On the Continent, a telegram told us a day or two ago, people dislike Mr. Gladstone, but they distrust Lord Salisbury; and in this respect people on the Continent do not differ very materially from those of the United Kingdom. Men who do not like the great Liberal Premier trust him, but during their last reign the Conservatives themselves did not trust Lord Salisbury. Further, defective as the policy of the Liberals has been, they have had a policy; but for some time past the only policy of the Conservatives has been that of denouncing the policy of their opponents. There are those who think that it is a good thing that the Liberals are out and the Conservatives in, but in present circumstances especially we fail to see that the change furnishes any matter for congratulation.

Mr. Howard Vincent, a recent visitor to Australia, and an aspirant for position in English public life, has acquired sufficient notoriety to be catechised since his return on behalf of the Pall Mall Gazette, and to get noticed in our London telegrams. We gather from the London newspaper that, having gone through the colonies at a hand-gallop, and found the colonists to be, in their home politics, "Radicals to a man," it is the Conservative party that he has chosen to join. We learn from the telegram that he has been advocating the federation of the Australian colonies before the Royal Colonial Institute, and that Mr. Murray Smith supported his views.

What are people in England to think of us when they receive such startling and conflicting accounts of what we do and say? Here we have two promising young men, coming forward in the Conservative interest, and turning to account their colonial experience and the knowledge that Englishmen are willing to hear just now about colonial affairs. Mr. Henniker Heaton, proud of his Conservatism, says "Australians are Conservatives." Mr. Vincent, convinced by his short studies of colonial life that he ought to be a Conservative, says that the colonists are Radicals to a man. Who is right and who is wrong? The preference ought to go with Mr.

Vincent, for although he saw all the colonies but South Africa in about nine months, whilst Mr. Heaton lived in New South Wales for years, it will be understood that in this particular he was the better informed. But the curious thing is that Mr. Vincent should give himself over to the Conservatives when he finds that the colonists of whom he thinks so much are Radicals to a man. They are Radicals "in their home politics," he said, and he turns to colonial opinion and feeling for his justification in joining a party with which he was not identified before, the home politics of which are as far apart from Radical politics as England is from New South Wales. That is to say, Mr. Vincent goes all round the world to learn which side he should take on his return to England, and he resolves to promote the government of England upon Conservative principles because he finds the people who will have the colonies governed on Radical principles are dissatisfied with the way in which the Liberals in England have administered affairs abroad. It is possible that Mr. Vincent may have some views of home policy which were not disclosed? He was trying to thrust in a word edgewise about "disestablishment" when the interview-man cut him short. But if he joins the Conservatives because he is a Conservative, and did not insist upon making that plain—if he was content to justify his adhesion to Conservatism by pointing to the dislike of colonial Radicals for the foreign policy of the Gladstone Ministry, he must be content also with cutting a sorry figure before colonial eyes.

Mr. Vincent has gone back to England with a profound sense of the greatness of the British Empire, and of the need for special measures to preserve its integrity. He says "as an Empire we must indeed federate or perish;" and he says of the colonies that "it will be impossible for these great and growing commonwealths to continue much longer in a state of absolute subjection, so far as foreign, naval, and military policy are concerned, to a Government resting solely upon the choice of the electors of the three kingdoms. You give loyal Australia no voice in the direction of your foreign and colonial policy, while Ireland is allowed to send three or four score members to the Imperial Parliament, whose one raison d'être is their hostility to the very existence of the British Empire." Mr. Vincent is not the first to point out that one of the difficulties of the future may arise in the adjustment of the relations of the colonies to the foreign policy of the Empire. What is urgently wanted now is the establishment of some effective system of common contribution and united action for common purposes of defence. When the colonists contribute with the people of the mother country an equitable proportion of a common expenditure for defence, they may claim the right to exercise a fairly proportionate share of influence in the direction of Imperial policy. But the colonies have not yet been asked to share in equal proportion with the mother-country the cost of Imperial naval and military establishments, and they are not in a position to ask for the share of control which might be expected to accompany such a participation in bearing the common burden.

In days gone by the difficulty between the mother-country and the colonies lay in the desire of the latter to obtain, and in the tardiness of the former to grant, self-government. That difficulty has been removed by a policy of the largest concession. But the grant of self-government to the colonies has introduced a new element of complication into the Imperial problem; and that fact seems to have escaped Mr. Vincent's observation, or he would never have talked about Ireland being represented in the Imperial Parliament and Australasia being without a voice. Why is Ireland represented? Because the Imperial Parliament makes the laws for Ireland, and imposes taxation upon the Irish people. Does Mr. Vincent think that the Imperial problem would be solved by offering Australasia representation in the Imperial Parliament on the condition that laws were passed there for Australasia, and taxation schemes were adopted there for our people? This is the first time, we think, that the Irish case has been treated from that point of view. The case of the colonies has often been cited as an argument for home rule in Ireland. Irishmen have said, "The colonies have home rule; why should not we?" And the reply has been that the cases were not parallel, for the reason that Ireland had representation in the Imperial Parliament, while the colonies had not. It may be doubted whether Ireland would, for the sake of being placed in a position corresponding with that of the colonies now, be willing to forego representation in the Imperial Parliament. But it may be taken for granted that the colonies would not be willing to take a place corresponding with that of Ireland now, and giving up separate self-government for the sake of sending twenty or thirty members to the House of Commons.

It may be questioned whether all those who, like Mr. Vincent, talk freely of the "federation" of the Empire, recognise with sufficient clearness the principle that, if any form of federal government for the Empire should be set up, the colonies would purchase the privilege of participating in it at the price of subjecting themselves, more or less fully, to its control. It may be possible to devise schemes of co-operation for defence upon a basis of voluntary contract. It may be possible for the colonies to pledge themselves on such a basis to contribute on a specified scale for a term of years. All this may be done without insisting on a right to share in the direction of Imperial policy, on the broad calculation that with the Imperial Government so strengthened colonial interests would be perfectly safe, whilst an equal degree of safety could not be secured by other means. And, without insisting on a share of control, the colonies might reckon upon the certainty that under such an arrangement their representations in matters specially concerning themselves would not be without practical effect. But Federation—meaning the establishment of federal authority or government—would be a different thing. Participation in governing power involves subjection to the power that governs. And in any scheme for the federal government of the Empire upon representative principles, the colonies would have to face the certainty that their representatives would be liable to be outvoted and overruled for years to come, whilst the United Kingdom would enter with the prospect of being reduced to the status of a province after the lapse of two or three generations.

The beginning of a work, the first of its sort in these parts, was made at Botany on Saturday afternoon, by the Bishop of Sydney laying the foundation stone of a church, to be built expressly for the Chinese. A Chinese catechist has for some years past been working amongst the Chinese, and has made 25 converts, in whose interest service has been held on Sunday mornings in St. Philip's Church. But about 800 Chinese finding permanent employment about Botany and Waterloo, it was considered advisable to provide them with a more convenient place of worship. The Bishop, having performed the ceremony of laying the stone, spoke broadly of the hope of the new church, and plainly of the unworthy jealousy existing between some sections of the English and the Chinese. He deprecated and condemned this jealousy, attributing it chiefly to a lack of understanding, and of that sense of common interest which should make the human kinship more effective. There was much truth in these remarks; but something more might be said in any full and positive deliverance upon the relations between the Chinese and the whites in the Australian colonies. There is some truth in the saying that the Chinese court contempt, and not by mere competition in the labour market, but by lowness of life. In every great city of the colonies the Chinese quarter is intimately associated with some of the grossest vice of the city. It is situated in the slums, is resorted to by the meanest whites, is often an Alsatia for wanted criminals, is the despair of sanitarians, and a chief trouble in the life of the inspector of nuisances. And in the country the Chinese camp brings the vice of the great city within reach of every considerable village where it is pitched. There are exceptions to this rule. There are Chinese homes cleanly and well ordered, but they are rare, and afford no argument whatever against the broad array of discreditable facts. In making any attempt at Christianising or civilising the Chinese it is necessary to make recognition of these conditions, because they mark the depth of the pit which has to be cleansed. They show the amount of labour to be accomplished, and they should be a strong argument in the hands of any reformer seeking ways and means for reform. It is true that ignorance and prejudice on the part of whites operate even to persecution against the Chinese; but before prejudice will die, the Chinese must rise to the level of the community amongst which they live. Socially, throughout Australia, they are below that level. Industry is their one redeeming feature, and we must hope that after conversion they will begin to take to themselves other graces of civilisation, and so help to rid themselves of their largely self-imposed burden of dislike or contempt.

Mr. E. J. Bloxham makes certain statements upon the pastoral lands of the colony and their uses, which may be commended to the very thoughtful consideration of all concerned in making or administering the law. His first letter, published some days ago, dealt with the question of profit or loss from pastoral work in the Darling country, and while admitting the losses incurred by many large holders, he attributed them not to bad seasons or extortionate State rents, but to the impossibility of making sufficient profit to pay interest upon the heavy sums paid for the goodwill of the stations. Holders who have purchased at second-hand have paid great sums for the privilege of renting the land from the State, and are by the burdens of these sums crippled and frequently ruined. He did not try to enlist public sympathy on their behalf, but, simply pointing to facts, left it to others to initiate remedies. He follows a similar course in his second letter, which goes to show what means have been taken by squatters to meet their disproportionate burdens. They feel themselves bound by necessity to screw the last possible penny of profit out of the land. They must shear more and more fleeces; they cannot afford to let one square mile of grass stand uncropped. They crowd on stock, and in good seasons make large profit, but in the oft-recurring years of drought incur heavy loss. His letter goes to show that in 1884 the whole of the Bourke and Brewarrina districts were, according to the squatters' own estimates, stocked up to twice their natural carrying capacity; that right down the Darling station after station traversed by the Minister for Mines had prior to the drought from 50 to 200 per cent. more stock than the unimproved land could be reckoned to feed; that the losses incurred were almost invariably losses which might have been expected had the natural capacity of the land been fairly understood. These representations are worthy of more than a passing glance. They cut at the root of a gigantic evil, a cruel wrong, and a cause of much permanent loss to the State. They sheet home the old charge of cruelty to animals to men who talk about the visitation of God and their own unmerited loss. They expose the folly and the fallacy of the libels so freely brought against the more distant pastoral areas of the colony. They justify the suppositions of rent-paying capability embodied in the Land Act. And they seem to indicate one State duty, which hitherto has escaped recognition—it is the duty of regulating the stocking of runs, with a view to the preservation and maintenance of their natural producing powers. Mr. Bloxham says that in many places the stock-carrying capacity of the Darling country is less now than it was in its original state; which means that under pastoral occupation the land has been damaged. And is it not the clear duty of the State, as landlord, to prevent this damage, to see that herbage and grass are permitted to seed fairly and are not torn out by the roots, and so doing to preserve not only the public inheritance, but the lives of the hundreds of thousands of stock that are starved now, in order (as Mr. Bloxham would say) that interest may be paid upon the extravagant purchase-money of the runs? If the runs will only carry stock enough to pay fair rent to the State and the interest on necessary improvements, it is the man who gives an extravagant price for the goodwill who should suffer for his folly. The State is entitled to a fair rent for the land whether the tenant has managed foolishly or wisely.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The English mail per R.M.S. Cuzco was delivered from the General Post Office at 9 a.m. yesterday. By it we have received our London and Paris letters, together with extracts from English papers to May 8. According to our Paris correspondent, the French regarded the present aspect of affairs between England and Russia with some anxiety, and were very desirous of hearing the exact views of Prince Bismarck on the matter. One journal says, "A war between England and Russia, under existing circumstances, would leave France en tete-a-tete with Germany,—a position which, however agreeable to the latter, would be a cause of anxiety to France." The recidivists question is again occupying the attention of publicists, and the opponents of the measure are doing their best to prevent its becoming law; but they can have no hope of succeeding.

The Hon. G. R. Dibbs, Colonial Treasurer, has so far recovered from his indisposition that yesterday he was able to resume his official duties.

We are glad to hear that the Hon. J. P. Abbott, Minister of Mines, has returned to Sydney, and although not by any means entirely recovered from the serious attack of rheumatism which so unfortunately prostrated him before the termination of his tour, yet he is, we understand, somewhat better in health than at Winbar, and hopes to be able to resume the charge of his important department after a sufficient rest.

The friends of Mr. Vernon, the Secretary for Railways, will no doubt be glad to learn that, after a prolonged and serious illness, he has regained his health to such an extent as admits of his resuming official work.

The circumstances attending the railway collision at Wallerawang are being inquired into by a Departmental Board, consisting of the Secretary for Railways, the Locomotive Engineer, the Traffic Manager, and the Engineer for Existing Lines.

It is anticipated that the Arab, with the Contingent on board, will arrive here on Saturday evening or Sunday morning. Arrangements are being completed for the vessel to be taken into quarantine, but her detention there will be as brief as possible. The sick will be placed in hospital if necessary, and the healthy will pass under the surveillance of medical officers. One object in detaining the vessel in quarantine is to afford opportunities for the men to have their clothes washed and cleaned, that they may be the more presentable on landing; and occasion will also be taken to thoroughly fumigate and purify the Arab previously to her being brought up to Circular Quay. If the arrangements occur as it is thought they will, the public landing of the Contingent will take place at noon on Tuesday, the 23rd: and it is possible that the force, having faithfully fulfilled its mission, and there being no further requirement for its services, will be disbanded shortly after it has been assembled in Victoria Barracks and addressed by the Governor.

The Colonial Secretary yesterday received telegrams from the Premiers of Victoria and Tasmania relative to the reception of the Contingent here. The Premier of Victoria stated as follows:—"It is our intention to send a representative to be present at the reception of the Contingent; will communicate again with you early in the week." The Premier of Tasmania stated:—"Glad to hear of safe arrival of the Arab at Albany; will forward congratulatory address."

The following reference to the departure of the New South Wales Contingent for the Soudan is extracted from a Glasgow letter received by a recent mail by Messrs. Learmonth, Dickinson, and Co., of this city:—"We cannot help expressing the intense feeling of admiration among Scotch people for your kindness to the old country in sending such noble fellows to the assistance of our men in the Soudan, and India, if wanted. May they return victorious, and at some time be able to visit this country to know our gratitude."

The recent successful floating of the New Zealand £3,000,000 loan will no doubt render a precis of the main sources of repayment acceptable to the general public. According to a Government return published last year the value of all real estate in that colony subject to taxation, including real estate under lease or other tenure, amounts to £44,810,000, and of personal estate subject to taxation to £40,190,000. The amounts claimed as entitled to exemption reach the respective aggregates of £30,016,460 and £13,040,000, while the amounts allowed under the £500 exemption clause is £41,000,000, making a total value of the real and personal estate of £169,046,460. The amount contributed to the general revenue from Customs, stamps, land, property tax, beer tax, and territorial revenue for the financial year ending March, 1884, was £2,535,748 2s. 11d.

The Government Statist estimates the population of Victoria at the end of March of the present year to have been 967,187, or an increase of 5911 souls during the quarter. A check upon the total figures is afforded by means of returns of the population of their respective districts, furnished once a-year by the municipal authorities throughout the colony. According to these returns, supplemented by an allowance for persons living outside local jurisdiction and a correction so as to bring the figures on to date, the population of Victoria on the 31st March, 1885, was 963,920, or 3267 less than that shown by the table.

In the Banco Court yesterday the action Macnamara v. the Municipality of Five Dock was resumed, and his Honor the Chief Justice summed up. The jury, after a short retirement, found that the plaintiff was entitled to the whole of the land in dispute. In the action Adams v. the Commissioner for Railways, Mr. Darley, Q.C., opened the case on behalf of plaintiff, and it was then adjourned till Thursday in order that the jury might go to Cootamundra and visit the scene of the accident. In the Jury Court, where his Honor Mr. Justice Innes presided, a verdict for £100, money advanced, was given in the action Morris v. Jones. The slander case, Jonsen v. Solomon—in which the plaintiff seeks to recover damages from the defendant for using the words, "I know Roth's affairs: it is a swindle, and Jonsen is at the bottom of it"—is unfinished. In the Equity Court, his Honor the Primary Judge heard a portion of the suit Marsden v. Plumb and another, which arises out of a partnership formed at Blayney to work a pastoral property in the Kimberley district, Western Australia. The suit stands as part heard. Mr. Justice Faucett presided at the Darlinghurst Court. Two undefended cases were disposed of, the jury in each returning a verdict for the plaintiffs. The ejectment action of Kenyon v. Smart was commenced. This was brought by Mrs. Fanny Maria Kenyon, widow of the late Joseph Kenyon, jun., to recover possession of some 30 acres of land adjoining the Fairfield railway station, and at present in possession of Arthur Frederick Smart, the defendant. The case was not concluded when the Court adjourned.

The weather yesterday morning was such as to raise hope that the metropolis would be favoured with a good downpour of rain. During the previous night several smart showers fell, and the morning broke dull and threatening. Up to midday the sky was overcast, but afterwards the clouds separated, and no more rain fell. At night the air was cool, and the stars shone so clearly and brightly that hopes of additional showers were quite dispelled. Though during the past few days the rains were continuous, the quantity which fell was only two inches; and while a general feeling has prevailed that the dams at Botany have received large accessions to their supplies, the fact is that only a slight increase is visible in the lower or engine-pond dam. Nothing like a sufficient quantity has fallen to justify any modification of the present restricted system of supply, or in fact to dispel anxiety as to the immediate future. So far as may be estimated, the rains have not provided more than a fortnight's supply on the reduced scale. The City Engineer, therefore, is still engaged in securing fresh augmentations. New trenches are being formed in the sand at Botany, Bird's Gully, and the Bunnerong Swamp, about 100 men being engaged in the work. The Bunnerong Swamp has not been tapped, but it is anticipated to yield as copiously as the other sand-beds. An engine and half-a-mile of fluming have been ordered for drawing water from it, and will be placed in position at an early date. For the present the idea of utilising the Veteran Swamp and the swamp at Scarborough Park is not to be acted on.

Our London correspondent writes on May 8:—"The newspapers have not yet published more than I have already sent you respecting the recent Anglo-German settlement of the New Guinea and the Pacific questions. There seems to be a general feeling all round that England has come out of this matter very well indeed. The moderation of Dr. Krauel has been in strange contrast with the bombastic tone of the German press and German officialism generally. It is very largely to the credit of that gentleman, whose influence at Berlin is unquestioned, that such an excellent understanding should have been arrived at. Mr. Thurston is now on his way to Fiji. He has received a letter of thanks for the way in which he has acquitted himself in the recent negotiations with Germany respecting Fiji and Pacific questions. In connection with this subject, I may mention that England and Germany have agreed that neither Power shall establish penal settlements in the Pacific."

In another column will be found an interesting account of the new lunatic asylum at Callan Park, which is now being occupied.

In reference to a sub-leader in yesterday's issue, protesting against the discharge of sewage from Paddington into Rushcutter's Bay, we are informed that the paragraph on which it was based did not fully describe the object of the proposed deputation to the Government. It is intended to ask only for the temporary discharge of the sewage into the bay pending the completion of the Bondi sewer, into which it will eventually be conveyed. The waters of the harbour are not to be permanently polluted by the drainage; and the construction of the sewer may perhaps be tolerated as the least of two evils; for certainly it must be admitted that parts of Paddington ought not to be left in their present filthy condition for another summer.

In our issue of the 1st instant we published some facts connected with the working of diamond-drills and water-augers in New South Wales and South Australia. We now furnish our readers with some extracts on the same subject from the report of the Acting Secretary for Mines and Water Supply for Victoria. Diamond drills were introduced into that colony in 1878 from America, but ten additional drills were subsequently manufactured in the colony at a cost of from £1250 to £1100 each, including the boilers. In quoting these figures attention is irresistibly drawn to the South Australian drills, one of which cost that colony the astonishing sum of £10,000. The drills manufactured in Victoria contained many improvements. The bits were made of crucible steel, and bored up to 1312 feet without requiring to be reset, while the American brass bits would only bore 50 feet. Improvements were also made in the core barrels, and a tubular iron derrick, which answers admirably, has also been constructed. One of the surface drills bored to a depth of 1501 feet in search of coal, and another bored 1450 feet, with the loss of only two or three diamonds, while in other cases the bits have been destroyed after boring only a few feet. The present estimated cost of boring is 10s. per foot in sandstone, 14s. in basalt, and 18s. in metamorphic schist, down to a depth of about 500 feet. This estimate includes wages, the cost of diamonds, fuel, and water, and repairs to machinery, but not the cost of superintendence and of the clerical work connected with the management of the drills. The surface drills bored an aggregate of 60,054 feet, or 11 miles 658 yards, and the underground drills 14,312 feet, or 2 miles 1250 yards.

Mr. Adrien C. Mountain, City Surveyor, has obtained the honour of appointment as a full member of the Institution of Civil Engineers, England. Commencing as a student in 1864 in the office of the Engineer-in-Chief for Roads and Bridges (Mr. W. C. Bennett, M.I.C.E.), Mr. Mountain underwent several years' constant and varied work in connection with the water and sewerage systems of this city; and from January, 1874, until 1878, he was engaged, under the Engineer-in-Chief for Railways (Mr. Whitton), in exploring and laying out railway lines, surveying alike trial routes and permanent lines for contract. That position he relinquished to accept his present office. During this period of more than six years many modern improvements have been introduced. Stock saleyards, 29 acres in area, have been constructed, and much alteration has been effected in the city generally, at an aggregate cost of about £900,000, while at present more than £300,000 is voted for works in connection with the city surveyor's department. Mr. Mountain is especially well known throughout the Singleton and Hunter River districts, and in addition to his latest success is a member of the council of the Engineering Association of New South Wales, by which he was awarded the gold medal for the best paper of the year 1884. He is also a member of the Royal Society of New South Wales.

We have to hand from the secretary of the Agricultural Society of New South Wales a schedule of prizes for the Metropolitan Exhibition to be opened on September 2. Entries are to be received till Tuesday, 18th August, in the following sections, viz.:—Horses, cattle, sheep, pigs, poultry, dogs, wines, farm produce, horticulture, implements, &c., apparatus and processes used in the common arts, food (fresh, preserved, or in various stages of preservation), fermented and other drinks, &c. A glance through the printed list shows that the society is this year extremely liberal with regard to prizes, in point of value and number. The pamphlet also contains the usual details and instruction for intending exhibitors.

The Presbytery of Sydney specially met last evening at St. Andrew's Church, the Moderator (Rev. G. Grimm, M.A.) presiding. There was not a large attendance. The meeting was constituted at 6.30 p.m. with prayer by the Moderator, after which the minutes of the previous meeting were read by the clerk, the Rev. George MacInnes, B.D., and confirmed. The presbytery then resolved itself into a committee of the whole for consideration of the remit from the General Assembly with regard to the federation of the Presbyterian Churches of Australia and Tasmania. The questions to be put to ministers at their ordination or induction, and the formula, were accepted with slight modifications. The declaratory statement and the explanatory note were omitted. With regard to the representative character of the Federal Assembly, it was agreed that the various presbyteries be represented in the same by one-third of their members, the calculation being based upon an allowance of one minister and one elder for each settled charge: secondly, that presbyteries not having on their rolls a due proportion of elders who might be in circumstances to attend the sittings of the Federal Assembly, be allowed to elect elders connected with any other presbyteries of the federated churches to act as their representatives. Also, that the moderator of the first Federal Assembly be elected by the votes of a majority of the presbyteries of the united church, and that for the election of all future moderators a committee, fully representative of all the presbyteries, be appointed by the Federal Assembly, to meet on an early date in the session for the nomination of the moderator of the following assembly. It was further agreed that the presbytery suggest that the general code of rules be not finally dealt with until the Federal Assembly be formed. The following gentlemen were sanctioned as trustees for the church manse and school properties in connection with the Palmer-street church, Woolloomooloo, viz.:—Messrs. James Antrobus, John Watson, Alister Soutar, Archibald M'Neill, and James Matthew Hutton. The consideration of other business was, at 9.45 p.m., postponed until July 14, and the meeting closed with the benediction.

At the meeting of the Marine Board yesterday there were present—Captains Hixson (president), Broomfield (vice-president), M'Lean, Robertson, and Moodie, and Commander Lindeman (secretary). In connection with the collision between the Australia and the Port Jackson, which took place on the 19th May, Alfred Wilkins, the master of the latter vessel, was called upon to show cause why his certificate should not be suspended or cancelled as punishment for the default on his part, which the Board had decided had caused the collision. No additional evidence was taken, and the Board now decided that Captain Wilkins' certificate as master should be suspended for three months. In giving this decision, the president said that in this case the responsibility of keeping clear had rested altogether with the master of the Port Jackson, who should have taken care to have gone out of Neutral Bay at such a moderate rate of speed as would have given him full command of his ship, and enabled him to avoid collision with sea-going vessels.

The usual monthly meeting of the committee of the City Night Refuge and Soup Kitchen was held on Friday, 29th May. Present—Captain R. Deane, R.N., presiding; Messrs. Guy, Monro, Lovett, Gilles, M'Clelland, Love, Crocker, and Torning. During the period under notice the relief given was as follows:—Breakfasts, 2023; dinners, 2780; beds, 2335. Employment was also found for 31 persons.

We notice that the course of lectures in the Engineering School, at the University of Sydney, for Trinity term, has been fixed as follows:—Descriptive geometry, 2 to 3, Tuesdays and Thursdays; applied mechanics, including mechanism and machine design, 4.30 to 5.30; civil engineering 1, water supply and sewerage 12 to 1, on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays; civil engineering, including graphic statics, applied to the determination of stresses in structures, deflections of beams and bridges, continuous girders, lattice, bowstring, and arched bridges, &c., 4.30 to 5.30, on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

A gathering of a very pleasant character took place on Saturday last at Milthorpe's York Hotel, when the employees of Messrs. George Robertson and Co. met their late manager, Mr. A. Lewis, who has just retired, after eight years' service, from the Sydney branch of the above firm. Ample justice having been done to the good things provided by Mr. Milthorpe in his usual excellent manner, Mr. J. Mitchell presented the guest, on behalf of the employees, with a handsomely-illuminated address on vellum, enclosed in morocco case, surmounted by a silver shield bearing his monogram, and in a few well chosen words, followed by Mr. A. B. Fordham, referred to the happy relations that had existed during his connection with the firm, and expressed their best wishes for his future welfare. The recipient briefly returned thanks for the honour done him, as also for the kind expression of feeling shown towards him. After a couple of hours pleasantly spent, enlivened by songs from those present, the meeting terminated, one and all wishing Mr. Lewis success in his future undertakings. The address and case were excellent specimens of workmanship, executed by the firm with which he had for so many years been associated.

At a special meeting of the Standard Brewery Fire Brigade, at the station, on the 12th instant, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—Mr. J. Israel, captain; Mr. H. Woods, 1st lieutenant; Mr. W. Sheehan, 2nd lieutenant; Mr. K. Holmes, 3rd lieutenant; Mr. M. Ray, app. officer; Mr. A. M'Crow, station-keeper; Mr. J. Fitzgibbons, hon. treasurer; Mr. J. Marsh, hon. secretary.

After a long and laborious search by the police for the missing money stolen from the Simpson's-road branch of the National Bank, their efforts (says the Age of Saturday) were in a great measure rewarded on Friday by the discovery of another "plant" hidden in Studley Park. The officers, who were out all day on Wednesday and on Friday, were Constables Fawkner, Doran, Blanchfield, and Crooks, together with the black trackers. On Wednesday they found nothing, but at about 3 o'clock on Friday, when all hope of finding any more of the hidden treasure was about to be given up, Constable Doran was lucky enough to step on the very spot where one man's share of the plunder at least was concealed. The police were at the time carefully examining the ground on the side of a slight hill about 160 yards from the Johnston-street bridge. Constable Doran was a little behind his companions, and, happening to tread on soft ground, which gave way a little under his feet, and which bore the appearance of having been dug recently, called out to Blanchfield to bring him the pick he was carrying. Then on turning up the fresh soil Doran unearthed a pickle bottle, which, upon examination, was found to contain 20 notes of the National Bank, being £20, £10, £5 and £1 notes, and the whole amounting to £204. Further search was made about the spot, but nothing more was found, and with this treasure the police returned to the city. The money was handed over to the Chief Commissioner of Police.

The Chief Secretary (says the Argus) attended a meeting of the Lunacy Commission on Friday for the purpose of completing the evidence tendered by him the previous day. He expressed himself strongly opposed to several of the recommendations made by the Inspector-General, Dr. Dick. In reference to the board of control over asylums, which is suggested in place of the control by the Chief Secretary's department, Mr. Berry said such a body should have full authority, subject to a review by which Parliament would always maintain its rights; and it might be found desirable to pay the members of the board by fees or in some other way. He was not, he said, favourable to the State establishing inebriate retreats for the poor. Too many things were left to Government now-a-days, and he thought this was one of those things which could be left to private effort, with, perhaps, a little support in the way of a grant from the State.

The steamer Catterthun, which arrived at Cooktown o Saturday from Hongkong, bringing files to May 25 reports that considerable indignation had been created by the action of the Russian Admiral, Croun, in running out his guns on the flagship Vladimir Monomach, and bringing them to bear on the British ships Agamemnon, Sapphire, and Swift as they steamed into Yokohama on the 7th ultimo. After the British ships had anchored, Captain Long, of the Agamemnon, called on Admiral Croun, who volunteered an explanation to the effect that owing to the persistency with which his vessels were followed by the British ships it induced him to suspect sinister designs, for which it was as well to be prepared, and for which he professed to have very little regard. The following, taken from St. James's Gazette of May 6, will serve in some measure to explain the above:—"The following and watching of Russian vessels by British ironclads (a Woolwich correspondent says) are thus accounted for. A few weeks ago her Majesty's Government had their attention directed to the shipment at the Victoria and Albert Docks, North Woolwich, of small arms and ammunition which were suspected to be intended for Russia. They were sent from Birmingham by railway in 20 trucks at a time, and shipped on vessels bound for Yokohama, from whence it was supposed that they were to be forwarded across the Sea of Japan to the Russian port of Vladivostock, near the mouth of the River Amoor. Some British ironclads were therefore despatched from the China stations to Vladivostock. On the Birmingham manufacturers and the Shire and other shipping companies being apprised of what was believed to be going on, they are understood to have refused to execute any orders which might appear to be of a suspicious character."

Relative to the date fixed for the examinations in connection with the Pharmaceutical Society and the Pharmacy Board an error appeared in yesterday's issue. The date fixed is the 25th instant, not the 28th.

The following is the report of the Sydney Hospital for the week ended 13th June, 1885:—Admitted: Males, 26; females, 13: total, 39. Discharged: Males, 27; females, 12: total, 39. FEDERAL NAVAL DEFENCES OF THE COLONIES.

[By Telegraph.]
(From our own Correspondent.)

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Sir Alexander Stuart has sent to Mr. Service a circular, a copy of which has also been addressed to the Governments of the other colonies, relative to the federal naval defences. He agrees with Admiral Tryon, that each colony should undertake its own harbour defences, but with regard to seagoing defences, he feels convinced that the wisest and most efficient policy would be to leave each capital in the hands of the Imperial Government. It would be the wisest course, it is pointed out, for the colonies to come to some definite understanding with the Imperial Government as to the extent to which the Imperial naval forces should be maintained in these waters in time of peace and war. The Premier of New Zealand, in a memorandum to Sir Alexander Stuart, appended to his circular, expresses a similar view. He believes that the duplication of the Imperial squadron in the Australian waters would entail an expenditure of about £60 per 1000 upon the population of the colonies. Mr. Griffith, the Queensland Premier, proposes that six fast cruisers should be raised and maintained at the expense of the colonies in proportion to the population, the type of armament to be settled by the Admiralty; the vessels of the colonial Governments to be employed solely for the defence of Australia. The ships should be commissioned as her Majesty's ships, with a distinguishing flag, and should be placed under the command of the Admiral on the Australian station, due regard being paid to the admission of Australian boys to the service. He also favours the establishment of a joint arsenal and dockyard at Sydney; the passing of an Appropriation Act to provide the necessary funds, and the appointment of a defence commission consisting of three members from each colony, each of whom should be a member of the Government of the respective colonies.

INTERCOLONIAL NEWS.

[By Telegraph.]
(From our own Correspondents.)

VICTORIA.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Soon after the Ministerial crisis had occurred in England Mr. Service telegraphed to the Agent-General, inquiring as to how the change of Government would be likely to affect the Federation Enabling Bill. To-day the Premier received the following reply: "It is believed that the Enabling Bill will pass this session."

The portmanteau-makers have commenced to work under the eight hours' system, and a new log of prices has been decided upon. All the employers have agreed to the short hours except one firm, the men in the employ of which have been taken off by the Trades Hall Council, who will support them.

The Bootmakers' Society intend to write to the Employers' Association to the effect that the agreement which was arrived at between the Trades Hall Council and the Manufacturers' Association, which terminated the bootmakers' strike, has not been adhered to by two of the firms, and it is probable that the dispute will be renewed.

To-day the Full Court refused a new trial in the divorce case Malpas v. Malpas and Sullivan, and directed the husband to pay his wife's costs.

Mr. Thomas Hardy, the representative of South Australia on the board of inquiry into the desirableness of replanting vines in the Geelong district, has been requested by the Government of this colony to report on the recent outbreak of phylloxera in New South Wales, and he has proceeded to Sydney for that purpose. The report of the Geelong Phylloxera Board is now being prepared by the chairman, but it will not be presented till Mr. Hardy's return.

There have been very heavy rain throughout the colony, improving the prospects of the agriculturists.

QUEENSLAND.

BRISBANE, Monday.

The Ministerial party arrived at Townsville to-day and had a very enthusiastic reception. Addresses of welcome were presented to the Premier by the municipal council, the divisional board, &c., and also a congratulatory address by the local Liberal party. Mr. Griffith received various deputations during the afternoon, and the Ministers were banquetted by the local Liberal party to-night.

Mr. Jack, the Government geologist, proceeds to Stanthorpe to-morrow, where he will be joined in the course of the week by Mr. Fryar, the inspector of mines. SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

ADELAIDE, MONDAY.

The inquest on the bodies of the victims of the North Adelaide tragedy was concluded to-day. Little fresh evidence was disclosed. Constable Molloy swore that he saw the three parties together on the morning of the murder. Lines was then calm, and told the constable that his wife had run away with O'Connor. He said he had been to North Adelaide, and had seen them in the house together, and he had a good mind to shoot his wife. The constable, however, attached no importance to this remark at the time. The jury returned a verdict to the effect that O'Connor and Elizabeth Lines were wilfully murdered by Alfred Lines, who subsequently committed suicide.

An American-built barque went ashore on a sandspit, four miles N.E. of Queenscliff, Kangaroo Island, this afternoon at an exceptionally high tide. The vessel, which is heavily laden, will be nearly high and dry at low tide.

A meeting of the Carpenters' Society was held tonight, to consider the action of the masters, who, it is alleged, owing to the depression in trade, are seeking to override rules that were agreed to by the employers and employees, and which came into force in December, 1882, affecting the rates of wages, the hours of labour, and overtime. The meeting adjourned till Friday.

Fine rains have fallen in the Far North.

COUNTRY NEWS.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

NEWCASTLE, MONDAY.

Two miners, named respectively George Banks and Thomas Kane, were seriously burned in the Co-operative Company's Colliery this morning. A large charge of powder had been put in a hole; but it missed fire and had to be picked out again. When the powder was loose a spark from Kane's lamp ignited it, the blaze catching hold of both men. Kane is the more seriously injured, and the prospect of his ultimate recovery is impaired by the fact that within the last year he was burnt all over. His recovery then was almost unexpected. Banks is scorched all over the body, but no fatal results are anticipated in his case. Both men are being carefully attended to by Drs. A. Nash and Tomlins.

The export of coal for the past week amounted to 25,304 tons.

A young man named John Bower, who has been missing from here since Friday last, was found to-day by a search party in the Wallsend pit workings, near Flaggy Creek. He is supposed to be of weak intellect.

An inspection of the recruits for No. 5 Battery of the New South Wales Volunteer Artillery took place on Saturday before Captain Kirkcaldy and Sergeant Walker. 50 of the men were received into the ranks.

At a meeting of subscribers to the School of Arts this evening, it was resolved to proceed with a portion of the proposed new building, and to make such modifications in the original plan as may be deemed advisable.

Thomas McPhail, a very old resident of Newcastle, died yesterday, 83 years of age.

Great complaints are made of the meagre accommodation for goods at the Wallsend station; 26 trucks of various kinds of goods arrived on Saturday, and on account of the continued rain it was found impossible to unload them, as no adequate shelter is provided.

WEST MAITLAND, MONDAY.

Mr. J. R. Brooks, the newly-appointed police magistrate, took his seat at the Police Court this morning for the first time since his appointment. An address of welcome from the local magistrates was read by Mr. P. Green, J.P., and Mr. C. F. Solling, on behalf of the legal profession, also congratulated and welcomed Mr. Brooks in his new position.

Mr. George A. Sala lectures at the School of Arts, on Friday night next, his subject being "Russia: What she is and what she means."

COONAMBLE, MONDAY.

In answer to a requisition, the Mayor has called a public meeting for Thursday evening, to take steps to suitably recognise the efforts on behalf of the district of Mr. Cass, one of the members, who is at present on a visit to Coonamble.

The late bazaar in aid of the Church of England realised about £260.

MOREE, MONDAY.

Mr. A. G. F. Munro has been re-elected president of the local Pastoral and Agricultural Society.

Diphtheria still lingers here, and last week claimed another victim.

The mails from Narrabri continue to run most irregularly since the rain. Owing to the dreadful condition of the roads, which renders vehicular traffic impossible, the mails have to be carried on horseback, and are often 16 to 20 hours behind.

The inhabitants are anxious to know when the permanent survey is likely to be completed for the railway, and tenders called for its construction.

DUBBO, MONDAY.

A frightful accident occurred at the railway station on Saturday night. A man named Thomas Evans, employed as a number-taker in the traffic department, was taking the numbers of the trucks of a train just made up for despatch to Byerock, and somehow he stepped from the side line, on which were the trucks, to the main line, and the Bathurst train coming along he was knocked down, run over, and literally cut to pieces.

LITHGOW, MONDAY.

Mr. W. M. Foote delivered his third lecture on iron on Saturday evening, at the School of Arts, and dealt with the process for the reduction of iron from its ore by means of Sir W. Siemens' invention, the rotary furnace. It is the introduction of this process which is recommended by Mr. Foote into New South Wales as being cheaper and more reliable in its results than the blast furnace and its attendant operations. At the conclusion of the lecture he strongly urged upon the committee of the School of Arts to procure modern works relating to iron and steel manufacture as a means of educating the minds of the men engaged at the iron works.

GOULBURN, MONDAY.

The offices of Messrs. Sands and Belcher, auctioneers, were entered on Sunday afternoon, and a number of trifling articles abstracted. The matter comes before the Police Court to-morrow.

WAGGA WAGGA, MONDAY.

The profits from the ball lately held at Junee Junction, in aid of the funds of the Wagga Wagga Hospital and the Junee Mechanics' Institute, amount to the sum of £66, which is to be equally divided between those institutions. The hospital share, together with the Government allowance added, will thus make the very acceptable sum of £66.

Captain Fitzharding has received a memo. from headquarters directing him to hold the Wagga Wagga corps in readiness to proceed to Sydney, to be present at the disembarkation of the Contingent. Between 60 and 70 members of the company have given in their names as wishing to take part in the demonstration.

CARRATHOOL, MONDAY.

A meeting has been held at Carrathool to petition for a road to Whealbah available for travelling stock. Large quantities of sheep are now passing that way, and have to make a detour of 80 miles, as the road from Gunbar to Whealbah has been lately closed by the lessees of the Gunbar run. The meeting on the subject was largely attended, and a petition has already been influentially signed.

THE WRECK OF THE CAHORS.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BRISBANE, MONDAY.

A meeting of the passengers by the wrecked steamer Cahors was held this morning. The meeting was called for the purpose of making a presentation to Captain South and the officers and crew of the steamer Burwah, but, as Captain South had left for Rockhampton, the presentation was postponed till next Friday morning. Several of the passengers made statements relative to the wreck, and called attention to the want of signalling appliances, &c., on board the Cahors. Mr. Williams, the local manager of the A. S. N. Company, was present, and stated that he was glad to be permitted to testify his appreciation of the conduct of Captain South and the officers and crew of the Burwah. The officers of the Cahors, too, he was sure, behaved as British seamen should do. The statement that had been made with regard to the equipment of the ship were to some extent qualified by the report of Captain Trouton, the company's manager at Sydney. Mr. Perkins, one of the passengers, denied emphatically the statement made by Captain Trouton, and said that from his own personal observation he could say that the magazine was badly furnished, and that the supply of rockets and lights was inadequate. The meeting terminated after appointing a committee to draw up an official report of the proceedings from the striking of the Cahors to the time of the rescue by the Burwah.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The following quotation from your issue of Saturday should have closed my letter published by you this morning; and its inadvertent omission by me renders the last clause of same unintelligible, viz.,—"Captain South, of the Burwah, offered to wait for the passengers' luggage, but the captain of the Cahors declined to make an attempt to tranship it."

I am., &c.,
June 15. FREDK. H. TROUTON, Manager.

THE WEATHER IN THE COUNTRY.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

NEWCASTLE, MONDAY.

The weather is clearing up.

WEST MAITLAND, MONDAY.

Rain fell heavily and continuously for about two hours before daybreak this morning, and the weather has been showery all day.

DENMAN, MONDAY.

Heavy rain fell here last night. The Hunter River has risen 2 feet, and is still rising. Altogether 230 points of rain have fallen since Friday night.

PORT MACQUARIE, MONDAY.

Steady showers fell at intervals here to-day, and there is every appearance of a further downpour.

GUNNEDAH, MONDAY.

Rain set in here again on Sunday night, and 116 points were registered up to 4 o'clock this afternoon. The weather is still threatening. This amount, with 148 points on Friday, and 56 points during the previous week, gives a total of 3¼ inches for the past 10 days. This is the best downpour that has occurred for a long time, and it appears to have been fairly general, though in the neighbourhood of the Barwon it was much lighter. With another such fall later on, a splendid spring will be assured, if not summer prospects.

BREWARRINA, MONDAY.

After two days mild, cloudy weather, highly favourable to the growth of herbage, rain again set in here on Sunday night, and continued till Monday morning, by which time 75 points were registered. The weather is now clear and cooler, and unless followed by frosts the rain will prove most beneficial. The total rainfall since Friday is 132 points.

COONAMBLE, MONDAY.

Heavy rain set in here again last night, and up till 9 o'clock this morning 117 points had fallen. About 2¼ inches of rain have been registered here since last Friday, and it is still raining.

BOURKE, MONDAY.

Good steady rain fell nearly all night, 83 points being registered. The weather is still cloudy, but shows signs of clearing. The total fall was 122 points. The following reports are to hand:—Bungonia, raining, 70 points; Barringun, raining steadily, 42 points; Tilpa, calm, clear, 10 points; Wilcannia, clear, light rain; Walgett, like rain, 30 points; Mogil Mogil, showery, 18 points; Mungindi, like rain; Warren, 60 points; Gongolgon, 60 points; Brewarrina, 165 points, raining; Cobar, 50 points; Nymagee, 50 points; Cunnamulla, 81 points, raining. Rain has fallen all over the New England district, the amount ranging from an inch to an inch and a-half.

NYNGAN, MONDAY.

Heavy rain fell last night, registering over half an inch, or 143 points since Friday morning. It is now fine, but the weather is still unsettled.

BYEROCK, MONDAY.

Since Thursday last 180 points of rain have fallen here, and a further downpour is threatening. The streets are impassable.

DUBBO, MONDAY.

Rain commenced to fall here yesterday evening, and still continues.

MOREE, MONDAY.

About 2½ inches of rain have been registered here up to this morning.

MUDGEE, MONDAY.

Rain has been falling on and off since Friday; but a continuous heavy rain fell last night, and to-day there have been showers. Altogether 203 points have been registered since Friday.

BATHURST, MONDAY.

Heavy rain fell here last night and to-day. Since Friday morning about 2 inches have fallen.

LITHGOW, MONDAY.

A considerable quantity of rain fell here on Friday and Saturday, and the sky is still overcast.

GRENFELL, MONDAY.

Up to the present 175 points of rain have fallen.

COWRA, MONDAY.

Some rain fell on Saturday, and also heavy showers in the course of last night. Altogether 94 points have fallen since Friday. The weather has again cleared.

PARKES, MONDAY.

Splendid showers have fallen since Saturday. In all 90 points have been registered. The weather has now cleared. The rain will do immense good to the crops, &c.

GULGONG, MONDAY.

The weather was showery yesterday, and last night heavy rain fell with thunder, 94 points being registered. It cleared this morning, and is now fine and cold.

WAGGA WAGGA, MONDAY.

The weather continues unsettled and showery. So far 84 points of rain have fallen this month, while 34 points have been registered at the Telegraph Office in the centre of the town for Saturday and Sunday. On the heights surrounding the place within a radius of about a mile, 69 points were registered in one direction, and 41 points in another.

GUNDAGAI, MONDAY.

The weather from noon on Friday up to this morning has been showery, during which time 70 points were registered. The rain will do much good in this district, as it will enable the farmers to finish their ploughing operations.

NARANDERA, MONDAY.

Forty-five points of rain fell last night, with every appearance of more. The grass is beginning to grow slowly. The weather is rather cool.

JERILDERIE, MONDAY.

It was raining here all day yesterday, and a cold wind was blowing. The weather is fine this morning.

HAY, MONDAY.

After a week of dull, foggy weather, showers of rain fell on Saturday night and Sunday, and 55 points were registered in Hay. The rain has been general throughout the district. At Balranald 84 points were registered; Jerilderie, 114; Carathool, 25; Booligal, 30; Mossgiel, 23; Ivanhoe, 36; Hillston, 50; Mount Hope, 20; Euabalong, 40; Narandera, 44; Whitton, 40; Menindie, 27; Urana, 96; Moulamein, 36; Pooncarrie, 30; Deniliquin, 37. The rain was much wanted, and it will do great good at the present time. The weather is still boisterous and unsettled.

BALRANALD, MONDAY.

The weather has been very foggy during the last three days; 55 points of rain fell on Sunday. It was greatly wanted, as at present there is no feed for the lambs.

ALBURY, MONDAY.

Heavy rain has been falling here at intervals since Saturday night, the total rainfall until 9 o'clock this morning being 120 points.

COPMANHURST JOCKEY CLUB RACES.

GRAFTON, MONDAY.

Owing to the wet weather which prevailed on Saturday last, the attendance at the Copmanhurst race meeting was not so large as it would otherwise have been, and the course was very heavy. The following are the results of the running:—

MAIDEN PLATE—1½ mile.

Mr. S. Fielder ns blk c Czarewitch, 2 years, Reugney—Gazelle, 7st. 1lb. (L. M'Kay) ... 1
Mr. T. H. Smith's b g Robin Hood, 5 years, 8st. 12lb. (D. Brown) 2
Mr. J. Davison's g Gaffer Gray, 5 years, 8st. 12lb. (J. Dansling) ... 3

Messrs. R. Hamilton's Vivian, F. Michael's Counterfeit, and J. T. M'Kee's Diana also started.

The winner led the whole of the way, and won easily by two lengths, the same distance separating the second and third horses. Time, 2 minutes 30 seconds.

NOVEL RACE—1 mile.

Mr. W. R. Baker's b g Little Jack, 4 years, 8st. 11lb. (Collier) 1
Mr. W. C. Attwater's b f Lurline, 3 years, 8st. 5lb. (Thompson) 2
Mr. W. Holloway's bk g Lazarus, aged, 8st. 11lb. (Dansling) ... 3

This race was won easily. Time, 2 minutes 6 seconds.

COPMANHURST JOCKEY CLUB HANDICAP—1¼ mile and 16 chains.

Mr. W. Davison's br h Yarraman, aged, by Kelpie—Pontificial Mare, 7st. 7lb., declared 7lb. over (R. Saul) ... 1
Mr. T. H. Smith's b g Robin Hood, 5 years, 7st. 10lb., 2lb. over (T. Cross) ... 2
Mr. S. Fielder ns br h San Jose, 5 years, 8st. 5lb. ... 3

Mr. D. Ring's Settler (6st. 10lb.) also started. San Jose and Robin Hood raced on even terms the first round, the former having a slight advantage, with Yarraman about 50 yards in the rear, and Settler completely out of the race. After passing the post the second time Robin Hood led by half a length, and gradually increased his lead until rounding the last turn, where he was three lengths ahead. About 300 yards from the winning-post Robin Hood fell, and San Jose, striking him, also came down. Both riders caught their horses, but Yarraman passed them before they had regained their saddles, and was halfway towards the goal. Robin Hood was first in pursuit, followed by San Jose, still a long way ahead of Settler. Robin Hood was rapidly catching Yarraman, who was completely pumped, but the latter managed to struggle in two lengths ahead, amidst great excitement. Time, 3 minutes 33 seconds. A protest was lodged against Robin Hood by the owner of San Jose for going inside a post, and on examination it was found that the riders of both horses which fell, in the excitement of getting under way again, went inside the same post; hence neither of them were entitled to a place.

MEMBERS' PURSE—1 mile.

Mr. D. Michael ns b g Major, 5 years, 10st. 11lb. (10lb. over) (D. Michael) ... 1
Mr. J. Davison's g g Gaffer Gray, 5 years, 10st. 11lb. (J. C. Davison) ... 2
Mr. F. Michael's ch g Counterfeit, aged, 10st. 11lb. (owner) ... 3

This event was won by half a length. Time, 2 minutes 6 seconds.

FLYING HANDICAP—once round the course, 6 furlongs 8 chains.

Mr. P. Walker's ch h Arundel, 6 years, by Rainworth—Amethyst, 8st. 4lb. (R. Saul) ... 1
Mr. F. Parnell's gr m Butterfly, 5 years, by Czarewitch, 7st. 9lb. ... 2

The mare on the inside was the quickest away, and held a trifling lead to the back of the course, where Arundel forged slightly ahead. Coming round the last time, at the turn both horses were locked together, and thence Arundel had a little the best of it all the way, but had to be ridden energetically for the last 50 yards, and eventually he won by a neck. Time, 1 minute 40 seconds.

FOOTBALL.

WARATAH v. ST. IGNATIUS' COLLEGE (25).—The former team journeyed to Riverview on Saturday, where they met and defeated the collegians after a most stubbornly contested game, the result being equally balanced till within three minutes of time, when Hume, for Waratah, kicked a fine goal out of a host of players, the result being—Waratah, 3 goals 12 behinds; Collegians, 2 goals 10 behinds. Lee and Ryan were the respective skippers. The play was mostly of a give-and-take nature. During the contest the boys played the little marks magnificently, and with a little more tuition under their able captain they will make a very formidable match for any of our senior clubs who may visit them. In Callaghan, Ryan, Forbes, Macauley, and Fagan they possess exponents of the game sufficiently good for any team playing the association rules. The above-mentioned may be singled out for their fine play in trying to avert defeat; while Evans, Fleming, Rounsevell, Murray, Mills, and Greives were the most prominent for the winners. The goal-kickers for Waratah were Goslett, Foster, and Hume; and for the College, Ryan and Walsh. After the match the visitors were entertained by the Rev. Father Dalton, S.J., and his assistants.

The Albions had a very pleasant trip to Liverpool on Saturday last, where they met and defeated the local team by eleven points to two. The game during the first half was very fast and exciting, and at half time the score stood: Liverpool two points, Albions nil, Pierce by a good run obtaining a try for Liverpool. On play being resumed the Albions, with the hill in their favour, and playing a very fast and open game, soon had the Liverpool forwards pumped out. Rice, G. Outram, A. Foster, and Cooper, by the good passing and combined play of the rest of the team, succeeded in crossing the Liverpool line, a goal being kicked from the try obtained by Rice.

Harrowgate v. Cammeray.—A well-contested match was played last Saturday, at St. Leonards, by the Harrowgate and Cammeray clubs, Allt and Lord respectively officiating as captains. The game terminated in a win for the visitors by 5 points to nil. The try for the Harrowgates was secured by Small, from which Corkhill, by a splendid kick, scored a goal. For the losers C. Sykes, Scily, Johnson (2), and Horsey well earned special mention, whilst the victors all did a good share towards the result.

The Balmain Wellington and St. Leonards clubs met on the Reserve, North Shore, on Saturday last, and after a hard game the match resulted in a win for the Wellingtons by two points to a disputed one. The try for the Wellingtons was obtained by Williams, and the disputed one for the St Leonards by Black. For the Wellingtons, it would be unfair to individualise; but for the St. Leonards, Black, Parker, Jackson, and Hornsman played well.

The Victoria and Wentworth clubs met on Saturday last, when the game resulted in an easy win for the former by 23 points to 4. The following players distinguished themselves for the former—Beaumont, Parr, Thame, and Jacobs; as also did Parker and Brown for the losers.

Our Bathurst correspondent telegraphs that on Saturday last the second 15 of the Bathurst Football Club played a football match against a team from the All Saints' College on the latter's ground, which, in consequence of the rain, was rather heavy. The game was a close one, and the play was very exciting on both sides. No score was made by either team up to half-time, but during the second half the Bathurst Football Club 15 got three tries, the scorers being A. E. Ashworth, W. H. Ashworth, and W. J. Wiburd, and won the match, the collegians failing to score. This was the second game that was won by the second 15 during the week, the team having defeated the representatives of the Western Warehouse on the previous Wednesday by 21 points to nil.

Our local correspondent telegraphs that the annual report and balance sheet of the Moree Racing Club, which were read at the annual meeting last week, show the affairs of the club to be in a slightly satisfactory condition. The old committee was re-elected, with Mr. George M'Donald as judge.

Our local correspondent telegraphs that several pigeon matches were shot off at Goulburn on Monday, the principal winners being Messrs. Styles, W. Davis, Hamilton Smith, and Gannon.

MINING INTELLIGENCE.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

WAGGA WAGGA, MONDAY.

The crushing of stone from the new reef at Tarcutta was commenced on Thursday, and about 10 tons have passed through the battery, with an estimated yield of from 15dwt. to 1oz. to the ton.

The mining manager of the new Rangatira mine reports that he has driven further into the reef, a distance of 20 feet north and south, making 40 feet in all. The gold is holding out splendidly, and the stone is of the same quality as that heretofore raised. The manager expects to send a cake of gold weighing 700oz. into Wagga next Friday.

The manager of the Nymagee Copper-mining Company, Limited, reports the output for the week ended 13th instant to be 36 tons of refined copper from 268 tons of ore smelted.

The hon. secretary of the Stock Exchange reports the crushing of the Band and Albion Gold Company for the past week to be 510 tons stone for a yield of 576oz. gold.

The mining manager of the Lumpy Lead Gold-Mining Company, Limited, Forest Reefs, under date 13th instant, reports:—"During the fortnight the north-east drive (top level) was driven 23 feet from jump-up towards shaft. The north-west drive was driven 7 feet and then discontinued, and all hands put in the south-east drive, so as to push it through to shaft as quickly as possible. I hope to effect a connection about Thursday next. Soon as this is finished work will be resumed in the north-east drive, and then I think we will soon be getting payable gold."

The manager of the Lubra mine, Silverton, under date June 12, reports:—"The country continues to improve as we drive south, and next contract will let 7s. 6d. per foot less. Lode also improves, and galena assays 65oz. of silver to ton and 46 per cent. of lead."

The mining manager of the Baraldie Gold-mining Company reports that for the week ending 6th June the tunnel has been driven a further distance of 4 feet, making a total distance of 551 feet driven to date. The shaft has been sunk and timbered a further depth of 5 feet, making a total depth sunk of 81 feet.

THE BATHURST FARMERS' UNION.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BATHURST, MONDAY.

A meeting of the Bathurst Farmers' Union was held on Saturday last to discuss a certain manifesto, which had been drawn up for consideration as a guide to the farmers at elections. Mr. Jacob Knight, the president of the union, occupied the chair, and about 30 members were present. The president advocated the imposition of a tax on farm produce imported from the other colonies, and a reduction of the railway tariff. Several farmers spoke in a similar strain. They condemned the new Land Act and supported the payment of members of Parliament, while others expressed themselves as opposed to these views. Mr. J. B. Dalhunty moved,—"That in the opinion of the meeting, it was absolutely essential to the well-being of agriculture in New South Wales that the interest be fully represented in the Legislative Assembly." Mr. James Fitzpatrick seconded the resolution, which was carried. Mr. A. B. Rae moved,—"That for the proper development of the agricultural district, the following were the essential requirements:—A reciprocal produce tariff, or fair trade: the development of local industries; considerable alterations and amendments in the Land Act; the establishment of agricultural schools and model farms; and the payment of members of Parliament." Mr. Cunningham seconded the resolution, though he said he did not go the whole length as regards protection. Mr. James Fitzpatrick said that he agreed with the spirit of the resolution, but he objected to payment of members, and moved the elimination of this clause from the motion. Mr. John Hughes seconded the amendment, which was lost, and the resolution was carried by a small majority. Mr. Cooper moved, and Mr. W. Hurst, seconded, and it was resolved,—"That the union pledges itself to vote for and secure the return of any such candidate who will pledge himself to support the foregoing resolutions." It was also resolved,—"That a sub-committee, consisting of Messrs. Knight, Cunningham, Dalhunty, J. Fitzpatrick, J. Godfrey, Furness, Croker, Hughes, and the secretary, with power to add to their number, be formed to establish a platform, to confer with others, and to use their influence in furthering the views of the union at the next general election; five to form a quorum." It was stated that the resolutions would be forwarded to other unions for their opinion, and then reconsidered by the union here before their final adoption.

COMMERCIAL.

PRODUCE MARKET,—MONDAY.

At Darling Harbour terminus this morning a good supply of forage and a short quantity of wood were offered. Notwithstanding the wet weather, the sales were well attended by the trade. The forage market opened fairly brisk, buyers operating with freedom, but towards the end bidding became languid, and the market closed dull. Hay and chaff were unaltered, but straw was a shade firmer. The wood market exhibited no improvement, remaining dull. On the wharfs a fair supply was forward from the Northern and Southern rivers, New Zealand, Victoria, and Adelaide. Business was fairly active. Onions were dearer, but other lines show no material alteration. At Darling Harbour sales the following prices were realised:—

Wood.—Short market, and remains dull owing to buyers' requirements being amply met at previous sales. Billet wood, 9s. to 12s. 6d per ton; bundle, 11s. to 15s.; foot, 12s. to 15s.; bakers', 9s. to 11s. 6d.

Hay.—Fair supplies. Market remains unaltered, but a little more activity was experienced than at last sale day. Demand was chiefly confined to prime descriptions, other sorts maintained fair values. Oaten, in bundles, 4s. 1d to 5s. 3d. per cwt.; bales, 4s. 10d.; sheaves, 4s. 3d. to 4s. 8d.; lucerne, in bales, 4s. 11d. to 5s.; wheaten, in bales, 3s. 5d. to 4s.; oaten and wheaten, in bundles, 3s. 7d. to 4s. 9d.; bales, 3s. 6d.

Straw.—Larger consignments forward than on last sale day. Market shade firmer. Fair competition. Clean, in bundles, 2s. 5d. to 2s. 9d. per cwt.

Chaff.—Good supplies. Market unaltered. Prime qualities sold freely, but other sorts were neglected. Oaten, in bags, 3s. 4d. to 5s. per cwt.; inferior, 2s. 10d.; in bales, 2s. 8d; straw, in bags, 2s. 9d. to 3s.

On the wharfs the following are the wholesale quotations:—

Maize.—Stocks augmented by supplies from the Hastings, Manning, and Clarence Rivers, to hand last night and this morning. Quotations, 3s. to 3s. 1d. per bushel.

Oats.—Additions to stocks on Saturday afternoon and yesterday from New Zealand. Stocks in excess of requirements. Sales limited at 2s. 3d. to 2s. 4d. per bushel for feed; seed quoted at to 2s. 9d. per bushel.

Barley.—In limited request. Nominal value of Cape seed, 3s. to 3s. 3d. per bushel.

Bran.—Supplies yesterday from New Zealand. Buyers' requirements are amply met. Moderate sales at 1s. 1d. per bushel.

Pollard.—Sells steadily at 1s. 2d. per bushel.

Hay.—Small additions to stocks forward from the Hunter River this morning. Wharfs fairly stocked. Trade was fairly active. Prime lucerne, £4 10s. to £5 5s. per ton; other qualities, from £3 10s. to £4 10s.

Chaff.—1000 bags from Victoria this morning, and 106 bales on Saturday afternoon from Adelaide. Supplies equal to demand. Market dull at £4 10s. to £4 15s. per ton for Victoria.

Onions.—The balances of the previous week's arrivals replenished by 847 bags from Victoria this morning. Owing to supplies coming in more freely, the market has had a downward tendency. Victoria at £3 10s. per ton.

Potatoes.—Stocks augmented by a small shipment from Victoria this morning and Tasmanian and New Zealand consignments last night. Market well supplied. Selling fairly at per ton. Warrnambool, £2 5s. to £2 10s. per ton; New Zealand, £2 10s. to £2 15s.; Circular Head, £3 to £3 5s.

Butter.—Addition to stocks yesterday from Southern ports. No change. Brisk sales of Illawarra at 2s. per lb.; intercolonial packed quoted at 10d. to 1s 6d.

Cheese.—1100 from Southern ports yesterday. Colonial salable at 5d. to 7d. per lb. Little or no inquiry for other descriptions.

Bacon.—In steady request. Hand-cured Southern at 11d. per lb. Fair supplies of machine-cured offering at 8d. to 9d. per lb.; heavy and rough, from 6d.; hams, 10d. to 1s. 1d.

Lard.—Finely-rendered, in bladders, 7½d. to 8d. per lb.; coarse, in keg, 4d. to 6d.

Honey.—Good and clear at 5d. to 5½d. per lb.; other sorts, from 3½d.

Beeswax.—In demand at 10d. to 1s. per lb., according to quality.

Eggs.—Additions to stocks to hand this morning principally from Northern rivers. Market quiet. Selling at 1s. 9d. per dozen.

Poultry.—Supplies received this morning. All varieties dull of sale at the following rates per pair:—Fowls, 3s. to 4s; ducks, 3s. to 4s. 6d.; geese, 7s. to 9s.; cock-turkeys, 10s. to 12s.; hen-turkeys, 6s. to 8s.

FAT STOCK MARKET.

At the Homebush fat stock sales to-day, 791 head of cattle were yarded. The market was unaltered. The best lot of bullocks averaged £8 6s. 3d., medium £6 6s., and inferior £3 19s. per head. Cows at proportionate rates. 5817 sheep were penned. Owing to the small number forward the market was firmer. The quality of the sheep offered was better than usual. The best lot of merino wethers sold at 11s. to 11s. 3d. per head; others from 9s. 10d. per head; ewes at 5s. 9d. to 7s. 1d. per head; crossbred ewes at 8s. 7d. to 9s. 3d. per head; lambs at 9s. 9d. per head. The following sales were reported:—By Messrs. Joseph Leeds and Co.—27 bullocks (E. A. Smith) to £7 7s., averaging £6 15s.; 88 lambs (J. Colley), at 9s. 9d., wethers 10s. By Messrs. Dranfield Brothers.—7 bullocks (M'Donald), at £7 12s., 22 passed; 20 (R. Jones) at £3 19s By Messrs. Hill, Clark, and Co.—41 bullocks, for Mr. John Egan, at £6 6s. 9d., 31 cows at £5 3s. 11d.; 26 bullocks, for Mr. Thos. Egan, at £6 4s. 1d., 5 cows at £4 16s.; 16 bullocks, for Mrs. Perry, at £5 1s. 5d., 26 cows at £5 1s. 3d.; 2 bullocks, for Messrs. Kater Brothers, at £8 10s.; 167 bullocks, for Messrs. Ball, Power, at £6 13s. 2d.; 552 wethers, for Mr. Thos. Buckland, at 11s. to 11s. 3d.; 354 wethers, for Mr. Stagg, at 10s. 5d. to 10s. 10d.; 139 crossbred ewes, for Mr. J. H. Mutton, at 8s. 7d. to 9s. 3d. By Messrs. Pitt, Son, and Badgery.—166 bullocks (Cudmore, Swan, and Co.), £8 6s. 3d.; 27 cows (ditto), £6 8s. 9d.; 940 ewes (O. Bloxsome), 6s. 10d. to 7s. 1d.; 1290 ewes, culls (ditto), 5s. 9d. Messrs. Wilkinson, Graves, and Lavender.—Fat Sheep: 200 merino wethers for R. Rivers, at 11s.; and 200 for H. Cameron, at from 9s. 11d. to 10s. 6d. By Messrs. Harrison, Jones, and Devlin.—2025 wethers (Gilchrist, Watt, and Co.). 9s. 10d. to 10s. By Messrs. Brown Brothers and Co. (on account of James White).—Bullocks, £6 2s. to £6 5s.; cows, £4 8s. to £5 6s. By Mr. F. L. Barker.—48 bullocks, for Messrs. Berkelman and Lambert, at an average of £5 16s. per head.

LONDON WOOL AND PRODUCE MARKET.

Wool.—Under date 6th May Messrs. Jacomb, Son, and Co. write: "Since the close of the auctions, in the middle of last month, the market here for colonial wool has been unusually quiet, as might have been expected whilst political complications were so anxiously pending. Little business has been done beyond a few hundred bales being sold to the U. S. A. 16,244 bales of South American wool were offered at Antwerp between the 20th and 25th of April, only about half the quantity was sold, and that at an average reduction of 10 per cent. on their previous values. The prescribed quantity available for ensuing public sales here has very nearly now arrived, the list will doubtless be closed in a few hours. Trade reports from all the woollen districts are good, on the whole, and, with now a more clear political horizon, we should hope that, at all events, there is every chance of our article not further depreciating from its recent very low currency."

The Berlin correspondent of the European Mail supplies the following particulars of the second public sale this year of colonial and other wools held by Messrs. Gustav Ebell and Co., of Berlin, on April 28. The catalogue on the occasion consisted of 2576 bales, of which were sold 1276 bales. The sale was less numerously attended than usually, and unfavourably influenced by the news of a further decline of 10 per cent. on River Plate wools at Antwerp, as also by the rumours of the impending declaration of war. Only for snow-whites in fairly light condition, of which the quantity offered was insufficient to meet the demand, competition was brisk, and prices for this class came fully up to the parity of last London sales; all other sorts, however, were neglected, and mostly withdrawn. The next public sale is fixed to take place on Saturday, June 20, which is the second day of the Berlin fair for home-grown wools. As regards business in the United States, Bradstreet's of April 18 states that a fair average volume of sales has occurred at the principal Eastern markets, but at no better prices for holders than the unsatisfactory terms which have ruled through the early spring. It is useless to suggest to manufacturers opportunities for speculation, or the desirability of laying in large supplies for future consumption, or even the chances for their getting caught short for certain lines. Purchases as a rule are made only in small lots, for immediate consumption, and at prices which are in buyers' favour. Suggestions of an advance are not listened to; but at current prices and under the prevailing conditions a good deal of business is done week by week at Boston, Philadelphia, and New York. Combing and delaine wools as a rule maintain a relatively strong position. Nearly everything else is weak. The situation with manufacturers is substantially unchanged. Tallow, &c.: Messrs. Anning and Cobb report that at auction on the 8th May, 1978 packages of Australian tallow were offered, and 1025 packages sold. Fine mutton was unaltered; beef and mutton of fair quality declined 6d per cwt.; low sorts, though very irregular, sold generally without quotable alteration; mutton, fair to good, 30s to 32s 6d per cwt.; beef, fair to good, 29s to 30s. Messrs. Culverwell, Brooks, and Co. report under date 8th May:—Skins (sheep): The periodical sales were held on the 30th ultimo, when the moderate supply of 585 bales was offered, and 466 bales sold. There was a fair attendance of buyers, and active competition for all classes. Prices improved ½d to 1d per lb., the largest rise being in half and crossbred wools. Long wool, washed, 12d to 18d per lb.; short wool, washed, 9d to 11d; merino, long greasy, 5½d to 7½d; merino, short greasy, 4½d to 6½d; cross and coarse, long greasy, 4½d to 7d; cross and coarse, short greasy, 4½d to 5½d; low and short, 2½d to 4d. Pelts in steady demand at late rates. Sales, 276 bales; limed and dry pelts, 13s to 16s; bate shavings, 20 to 21s per cwt.; glue pieces, 2½d to 2¾d per lb.; 170 casks salted pelts, 6s 3d to 16s 6d. Kangaroo: The demand for large continues, but small sizes are lower. Sales, 6218, viz., large, average 22½ to 33¼ lb., per dozen 3s 6d to 4s 6d; middling, average 10½ to 19¾ lb., 1s 7d to 2s 7d; small, average 6¾ to 11¾ lb., 6d to 9d per skin. Opossum: Public sales of 225,690 were held on the 6th, but the demand was very restricted, and for the bulk no offers could be obtained. Only 26,965 were sold, at rather lower prices for firsts and small, viz., firsts, 9½d to 14½d; seconds, 5½d to 6d; thirds, 2½d to 2¾d; small, 4½d per skin. Leather: The market has been very firm, with large sales, from private warehouses, and a good demand at auction. Only one series of public sales was held during the month, when 5122 sides were disposed of—Butts, 9d to 10d per lb.; first sides, average 14lb to 18½lb., 9½d to 11½d; second sides, average 14lb. to 17½lb., 9d to 10½d; light sides, average 9lb. to 12lb., 9½d to 11d.; extra heavy, average 20lb. to 22lb., 9d to 11d; shoulders and bellies, 7½d to 8½d; splits, 4d to 6½d. Basils: The demand has improved, and the common qualities have realised better prices. At auction 102 bales have been sold. Hides, salted ox and cow: The market has not responded to the war feeling which has prevailed at different times. Heavy ox have met a slow demand at barely late rates, but light ox and cow have been in request for export, and marked a rise of ¼d to ½d per lb., which was barely maintained at yesterday's auctions. The sales at auction comprise 10,058 hides, viz., Sydney, prime 1st heavy ox, 5½d to 5¾d; 1st light, 2½d; 1st cow, 5d fair to good; 1st heavy ox 5½d to 5¾d; 2nd heavy, 4½d to 5d; 1st light, 4½d to 5½d; 1st cow, 4½d to 5½d; 2nd, 4½d to 4¾d; sips and skins, 5½d to 5¾d; and first heavy ox, 5d. Horns: Ox and cow, average 13½ to 15¾oz., 38s to 48s 6d per 100; 12 to 13oz., 33s to 37s; 9½ to 11oz., 19s 6d to 28s; 4¾ to 9oz., 5s 6d to 16s; stale, average 5½ to 14oz., 6s 6d to 28s. Bones and Hoofs: Shank slow of sale, and 20s to 30s lower; common neglected. Hoof in very limited demand at £5 per ton. Shank

RAILWAY MATTERS AT ALBURY.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ALBURY, MONDAY.

A numerously attended public meeting was held in the Council-chambers this evening. Mr. G. H. Billson, the Mayor of Albury, occupied the chair, and explained that the meeting had been convened at the request of the ratepayers, to consider the new arrangements said to be contemplated for the conduct of the Border railway traffic, especially with regard to the proposal for transferring the interchange of live stock from Albury to Wodonga.

Alderman EDMONDSON said that the present trucking yards were 1½ mile out of town, such a position being most inconvenient to the owners of stock, as well as to the dealers, and preventing the direct trucking of stock for Melbourne. If the yards were shifted to a point near the terminus they would be close to the Victorian gauge, and the stock could be put into the Victorian trucks, and sent off direct without the necessity of driving them by the road to Wodonga. The present arrangements involved much unnecessary labour and expense. He moved,—"That the Minister for Works be requested to remove the cattle-trucking yards from their present position to the site recommended by the local authorities, immediately south of the Albury railway station, with a view of making the same better available for the transfer of stock from one set of rails to the other."

Mr. JOHN M'DONALD seconded the motion.

Mr. T. AFFLECK, J.P., in supporting the motion, said that he considered the meeting quite justified in taking action, having regard to the phase which the general question had now assumed, and the manner in which it appeared likely to be dealt with by the Victorian Railway Commissioner. If the Commissioner had held out the interchange of the passenger traffic as a kind of sop to the people of Albury in return for taking away the stock traffic to Wodonga, it did not follow that such a bargain was acceptable. Victoria had doubtless found out that it did not pay to run empty trains between Albury and Wodonga, and that it would pay to secure the stock traffic; but the people of Albury had every right to claim that traffic for itself. It must have the passenger interchange in any case.

Mr. C. L. GRIFFITH said that the point at issue was even of greater importance than it appeared at the first glance. He believed that in three or four years' time the intercolonial stock traffic would have attained much greater dimensions. The trade was now much checked by border duties, and by the restrictions imposed many years ago, when scab was present in Victorian flocks. In time, however, the duties on stock would probably be removed, and the other needless restrictions abolished; and when that took place an immense impetus would be given to the stock traffic. The Wodonga people had set them an example of looking after their own interests, and the residents of Albury should do the same.

Mr. TURNER said that the proposed arrangements provided for much greater concessions to Wodonga than to Albury, as the interchange of live stock was of much more importance to the town than the mere interchange of passengers.

Alderman GULSON supported the motion, and said that it was about time for the people of Wodonga to find out that when two persons ride on the same horse one must ride behind. No reasonable man could argue for a moment that in such a matter the interests of Wodonga should be considered before the interests of Albury. Where the business was, there facilities for traffic should be given.

Alderman FREW said that, having been the contractor for the construction of the line from the Albury terminus to the Murray, he was in a position to say that the original intention had been to place the trucking yards near the station. It had also been intended to lay both lines between the two towns with the Victorian gauge, but the influence brought to bear by the people of Wodonga had prevented this being carried out.

The CHAIRMAN said that the request proposed in the motion was a very reasonable one. The chairman of the Victorian Railway Commissioners had told a deputation last week that the yards were at Wodonga, and that he would not move them. He held that the people of Albury should decline to allow the stock traffic to be taken away.

The motion was carried.

Mr. L. SOLOMON moved,—"That a committee be appointed to carry out the foregoing resolution."

Alderman FREW seconded the motion, which was carried.

The Mayor, Alderman Gulson, and Mr. C. L. Griffith were appointed a deputation to wait upon the Ministers, on their approaching visit to Albury, on the subject.

Alderman GULSON then called the attention of the meeting to the necessity of steps being taken to induce the Government to include in their railway policy a line up the valley of the Murray. This project, though not a new one in Albury, was apparently new to the Ministers, Mr. Wright on his late visit admitting that he had never heard of it before. As a fact, however, it would open up a very fertile country, and if pushed on to Tumberumba and connected there with the line from Adelong, it would prove much more valuable as a feeder to the main trunk line of railway than the proposed branch from Wagga Wagga to Tumberumba. It would also be a much cheaper line than that from Wagga Wagga. He would move,—"That this meeting take steps to ascertain the full details of the traffic between Bowna and the Upper Murray, with a view of advocating the construction of a line of railway along the valley of the Murray."

Mr. T. Affleck seconded the motion, which was supported by Alderman Edmondson, Alderman Scanlan, and Mr. C. L. Griffith, and carried unanimously. The following gentlemen were appointed a committee to give effect to the last resolution:—The Mayor, Aldermen Gulson, Edmondson, and Scanlan, and Messrs. Griffith, Affleck, Abercrombie, Solomon, Turner, F. W. Jones, M'Lennan, Schmidt, and Lamport. The meeting then closed.

THE MILITARY AUTHORITIES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Captain Reid considers it objectionable that two of the principal officers of the Telegraph Department hold commissions in the Torpedo Corps, but I cannot see that it is at all objectionable. The English Government do not hold such views, as on reference to the London Times it will be seen that Lord Wolseley's expedition took from the London Post and Telegraph Service a corps headed by a high official as colonel-in-charge, and the late Postmaster-General (Mr. Fawcett)—a man of far-reaching intelligence and ability—in a speech addressed to the officers and men, drawn up before him, spoke in the strongest terms of appreciation of this corps. If in a population of 39,000,000 a whole corps can be spared with the approval of such an eminent authority, in a population of about a million I fail to see where the objection comes in, more especially when only a few in number seem to be employed.

Captain Reid admits his inability to obtain good military books here, and I was convinced of this from his "lectures," notwithstanding his assertion as to books of "admitted authority." I feel grateful to him for his "homily" upon this subject, as well as his allusion to the Armstrong gun experiments in the China war of 1860. I have a full account of these experiments; but they are so antiquated that no modern artillerist would think of going through them, except to say that he had done so.

Captain Reid denies that there are sufficient means of giving timely warning of an approaching enemy. I assert again that there are ample means, which have received the approval of the highest military authorities, and the defects (if any) are reduced to a minimum.

Captain Reid says that Sydney does not cover all the roads. Who said it did? 2. That "a conjoint expedition could choose its own point of landing." I am quite as well aware of this fact as he is. Does he suppose for one moment that no one thinks or has thought of this but himself? If so, he is most grossly mistaken and misinformed.

He asks where the large force is "to come from, and what are its numbers?" I do not carry the numbers about in my pocket, but leave a matter of that kind for the proper military authorities to provide for when the necessity arises.

The problem he gives is amusing, and its enunciation displays his military genius. In the first place, no nation is likely to, or would, send three transports and three ships of war on such a fools' errand. 2. The landing of 5000 troops during the night, or day, at Pittwater would be problematical and dangerous. I would like to see Captain Reid attempt it. Does he imagine, if war were declared between England and Russia, that the Government or the naval and military authorities would be idle with their swift cruisers? Why, in less than an hour after such a rash attempt our gallant Admiral could be on the spot, in conjunction with a land force, and would administer such a crushing attack that scarcely a man would have a chance of escape. I have no fears regarding Pittwater. The authorities are well acquainted with its advantages and disadvantages, and whilst we have a Ministry so patriotic as to send troops from our shores to the Soudan, I think it would take an English fleet and army to join in overturning the liberties of the colony before such an "armada" as Captain Reid's could do any injury to the railways, or on the coast of the New South Welshmen.

I am, &c.,
13th June. ROYAL ENGINEER.

THE SHIPPING RING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

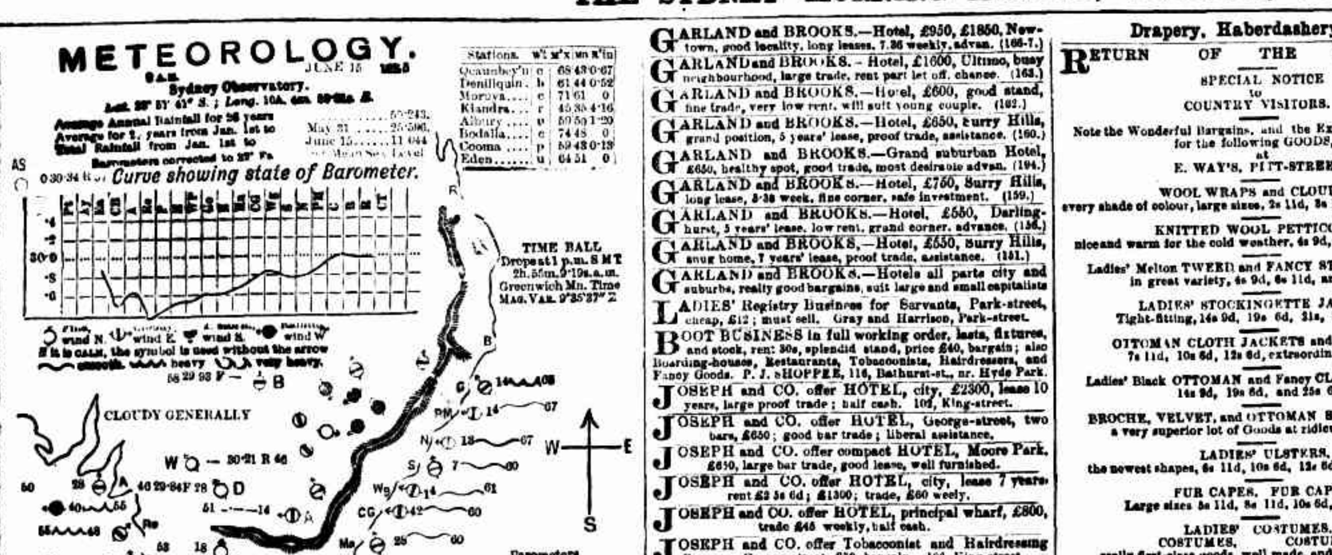

Sir,—A copy of the protest of Sydney importers has been sent to me, as also extract from your issues of 7th and 12th February last. I trust that you will allow me to point out that it is rather hard on the shipowner who is unable to get his ship loaded on this side except through the ring and on their terms (one of which gives choice of wharf to charterer or rings) to be blamed at Sydney for carrying out an arrangement into which he was practically compelled to enter. It is perfectly clear that it is open to merchants to break up the ring at any moment, as any number of ships are at their disposal; but as they did, and do not choose to avail themselves of their opportunities, I can only conclude that the advantages outweigh the disadvantages.

If any pressure is to be brought to bear on the wharf question, it must be through the ring, not the shipowner.

I am, &c., JAS. D. WILLIS.

METEOROLOGICAL REPORT.—June 15.

Western Australia.—Esperance Bay, squally from S.W. with high sea. Rain: 1·28.

South Australia reports weather generally gloomy and squally, raining on and near coast, with N. to N.W. winds varying from 25 to 40 miles per hour in velocity. Rain recorded inland to Alice Springs: 0·30 to 0·60 N. of Adelaide; heaviest on coast; over an inch at Crafers, Clarendon, Elliston, Lincoln, Cape Borda, and Beachfort. Falling barometers and rough sea on coast. Rainfall: Robe, 0·59; Adelaide, 0·30; Cape Borda, 1·86; Streaky Bay, 0·63; Eucla, 0·19; Port Augusta, 0·24; Farina, 0·18; Powell's Creek, 0·10; Alice Springs, 0·05.

Victoria.—Generally cloudy and dull, with fresh N. winds, moderate sea, and falling barometers. Fine inland at Echuca, with fresh N.W. wind. Rainfall: Melbourne, 0·01; Portland, 0·05; Cape Otway, 0·01; Wilson's, 0·13; Lake Entrance, 0·26; Echuca, 0·19; Omeo, 0·79.

Tasmania.—Dull on N. Coast; fresh N.W. wind. Rain: Low Heads, 0·23.

New Zealand.—Russell, barometer 30·60, wind calm; Wellington, barometer 30·40, wind N.W.; Bluff, barometer 30·10, wind N. Winds light, generally fine.

Queensland.—Cape Moreton, calm and fine, but cloudy. Rain, 0·16. Cooktown, strong S.E. gusts of wind, sea slight.

New South Wales.—Generally cloudy and dull, as will be seen in the map above. The rain, though very general, is heavier by far on the highlands, especially in the New England districts, than elsewhere. Kiandra reports 4·16 of rain, and the detailed measurements at all the stations will be found above. On the coast the sea is generally smooth, with fresh to light N.W. winds and falling barometers. It will be seen that little or no rain has fallen in the Western districts, near Wentworth and Wilcannia. Bungonia, up to 9 a.m., Saturday, rain 0·97.; Tumut, very heavy rain Saturday night and Sunday; Coonamble, rain 0·115. Quirindi, wind calm, maximum 69°, minimum 58°, rain 0·73, raining steadily; Cowra, calm, maximum 61°, minimum 54°, rain 0·80, weather threatening; Camden Haven, wind calm, maximum 69°, minimum 58°, weather cloudy; Walgett, wind calm, maximum 70°, minimum 52°, rain 0·29, raining; Balranald, wind N., maximum 65°, minimum 57°, rain 0·54, weather fine; Nowra, wind W., maximum 69°, minimum 54°, weather cloudy; Camden, wind calm, rain 0·17, weather cloudy; Temora, rain 0·62, weather fine; Gundaroo, rain 0·56, weather cloudy; Pooncarie, rain 0·15; Murrumburrah, wind N.E., rain 0·55, weather cloudy.

A WONDERFUL MEDICINE.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

Are admitted by thousands to be worth above a Guinea a Box for Bilious and Nervous Disorders, such as Wind and Pain in the Stomach, Sick Headache, Giddiness, Fulness and Swelling after Meals, Dizziness and Drowsiness, Cold Chills, Flushings of Heat, Loss of Appetite, Shortness of Breath, Costiveness, Scurvy, Blotches on the Skin, Disturbed Sleep, Frightful Dreams, and all Nervous and Trembling Sensations, &c. The first dose will give relief in 20 minutes. This no fiction, for they have done it in thousands of cases. Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these pills, and they will be acknowledged to be WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all humours, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no medicine to be found to equal Beecham's Pills for removing any obstruction or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

For a weak stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the liver, they act like "magic," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs of the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse into action, with a Rosebud of Health, the whole physical energy of the human frame. These are "facts" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of society; and one of the best guarantees to the Nervous and Debilitated is, Beecham's Pills have the largest sale of any patent medicine in the world.

Full directions are given with each box. Sold by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Dealers throughout the colonies.

COUGH NO MORE.—Use GAMBLE'S celebrated COUGH LOZENGES. You will cough no longer.

WHY Dye? GAMBLE'S safe Hair Vigour quickly restores grey hair, making it grow luxuriantly. Chemists.

GREAT BODILY STRENGTH follows the use of PEPPER'S QUININE and IRON TONIC. By enriching the blood and strengthening the muscular system.

GREAT NERVE STRENGTH follows the use of PEPPER'S QUININE and IRON TONIC. It braces up the weakened nervous system. Each bottle contains 32 doses.

GREAT MENTAL STRENGTH follows the use of PEPPER'S QUININE and IRON TONIC. Repairs the ravages caused by overtaxing the brain power.

GREAT DIGESTIVE STRENGTH follows the use of PEPPER'S QUININE and IRON TONIC, as it strengthens the stomach, stopping sinking sensations, removes indigestion, heartburn, palpitation, &c. By its cordial bitter flavour Pepper's Tonic always increases the appetite; and by its use all necessity for beer, wine, or spirit is avoided. Bottles, containing 32 doses, sold by Chemists; but insist on having Pepper's Tonic, made at Bedford Laboratory, London.

PEPPER'S TARAXACUM and PODOPHYLLIN. A fluid combination for derangement of the liver, particularly when arising from slight congestion. By gently stimulating the action of the liver and slightly moving the bowels, the heavy drowsy feeling, headache, pain beneath the shoulders, at the chest after eating, unpleasant taste in the mouth, and manifold other indications of dyspepsia, are removed. Taraxacum and Podophyllin is much safer than calomel or blue pill. Bottles, 2s 9d and 4s 6d each. Sold by all chemists. Insist that Pepper's is supplied. Made only at Bedford Laboratory, London. It is a most valuable medicine for the colonies.

SKIN DISEASES CURED IN A FEW DAYS.—SULPHOLINE LOTION removes Eruptions, Pimples, Redness, Blotches, Scurf in a few days. It is highly successful in Eczema, Psoriasis, Prurigo, Tetter, &c. It totally destroys deep-seated, inveterate skin affections. Sold everywhere.

SULPHOLINE LOTION.—Any one, however deeply and apparently hopelessly afflicted with Skin Disease, should apply Sulpholine as quickly as possible. In two or three days the effect will become evident in a diminished appearance of the malady, a growing tendency to fade away, and complete obliteration of the eruption.

SULPHOLINE LOTION.—As a Remedy for Pimples, Blotches, Redness, Rashes, Blemishes, Spots, Roughness, Discolouration, Eczema, Rosea, Pityriasis, Scurf, and General Irritability of the skin. Sulpholine acts like a marvel.

SULPHOLINE LOTION.—If desiring to have a clear, spotless skin, take care to try Sulpholine. Its beautiful fragrance and freedom from poisons commend it to all. Bottles 2s. 9d. Sold by Chemists. Made by J. Pepper and Co., London.

LOCKYER'S SULPHUR HAIR RESTORER is the safest and best. In a few days it gradually deepens grey or white hair to a perfectly natural shade. Lockyer's surpasses the effect of costly washes. Never disappointing in effect. Guaranteed harmless. Large bottles, 1s 6d. Sold everywhere.

LOCKYER'S SULPHUR HAIR RESTORER produces a perfectly natural colour. The gradual change by scarcely perceptible gradations is certain for removing scurf, beautifying and cleansing the hair, causing it to grow wherever thin and patchy, so ensuring a fine Head of Hair. Lockyer's is unrivalled. Made only in London.

ABRAHAM'S PILLS (DANDELION).—The only safe aperient.

ABRAHAM'S PILLS (DANDELION).—The most delicate can take them.

ABRAHAM'S PILLS (DANDELION).—They cause no nausea, and are easily taken.

ABRAHAM'S PILLS, prepared from Dandelion. Special caution needed against injurious imitations.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.—Be Comforted.—Nothing is more distressing to the mother or well-disposed nurse than to see a child rendered feverish or restless by the skin affections attending infancy. This ointment soothes and removes such cutaneous complaints. Sold at 78, New Oxford-street, London, and by all druggists.

LADIES' AND CHILDREN'S HOSIERY.
We are able to speak in the highest terms of our first MIDWINTER DELIVERIES, to hand ex INDUS.

New Goods abound, and we have never been able to offer a larger, better, or more varied assortment.

MANY NEW THINGS are noticeable, and THE NEW TARTAN HOSE is particularly to the front. The Tartan Hose is very nice, and specially so for winter wear. We have it in all the CLAN COLOURS, from the ROYAL STEWART to the simple ROBROY, and one and all show up capitally, as wearable and comfortable WINTER HOSE. We need scarcely add that our assortment of sizes is perfect.

CASHMERE HOSE, plain and ribbed, with most profuse variety of colour, size and style

DOUBLE-KNEED HOSE, with the extra advantage of being DOUBLE at the heels also. This is the best wearing hose in the world; it meets a long-felt want, it saves in a very great measure the work entailed by the very tedious operation known as darning, and it provides a strong useful hose that will resist the most trying wear and tear. We have it in all sizes, 00 to full ladies'

FOR SALE BY PUBLIC AUCTION, at NETTLINGHAM'S HOTEL, WEST MAITLAND, on
SATURDAY, 11th JULY, 1885,
at 2 p.m.

TITLE PERFECT.

BRUNKER and WOLFE have received instructions from J. A. Wilkinson, Esq., to sell by auction, at West Maitland, on SATURDAY, 11th July, 1885, at 2 o'clock p.m.,
THE FAMOUS WYNDELLA ESTATE, comprising about
1700 ACRES, subdivided into CONVENIENT SIZED FARMS and ALLOTMENTS.

This magnificent property is only a short distance from West Maitland, adjoins Mr. J. K. Mackay's Anambah Estate, and about a mile from Lochinvar Railway Station. The subdivision has been arranged with the view of meeting the requirements and wishes of purchasers of small as well as of large areas, and for the convenience of occupants a roadway has been provided, which affords easy means of access to the river and Main Northern-road from every lot. The agricultural and grazing capacities of the land are excellent, but the auctioneers desire to direct especial attention to the fact that a very large area of Wyndella is of volcanic formation, with rich chocolate soil, and a full proportion of lime and iron, consequently admirably adapted for the culture of the vine. It is well known to those engaged in the industry that the choicest of Australian wines are produced from soil similar in character, and the estate abounds with slopes occupying highly favoured aspects, thus conceding all the elements that are essential to attain perfection in wine-growing.
To parties of the look-out for an unequalled site for a vineyard, the opportunity now offered should not be allowed to pass. It is only on a rare occurrence that properties possessing so many qualifications and advantages can be secured, hence desirable to note that the sale will take place on
at 2 p.m.
Terms:—One-fourth cash, the balance in equal payments at one, two, three, or four years, bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, secured as usual, with liberty to pay off at any time.
Lithograph plans are in course of preparation, and, upon completion, can be obtained at the office of the auctioneers at West Maitland and 31, Hunter-street, Sydney.
